KONOYE TELLS HOW 1941 PEACE PLAN FAILED

Matsuoka Accused in His Memoirs

TOKYO, Dec. 17 (AP)—The war memoirs that Prince Fumimaro Konoye completed writing before he ended his life Sunday were obtained by the Associated Press three days previously, and are being translated and turned over to Joseph B. Keenan, special prosecutor of Japanese war criminals.

Konoye, who was premier of Japan until October, 1941, disclosed that Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka broke up the premier's plan for a conference at sea with President Roosevelt to discuss peace because Matsuoka held the view as far back as May, 1941, that Roosevelt already had decided on United States entry into the European war.

Japanese officials had accepted "in principle" the American compromise plan eight months before Pearl Harbor, but it was blocked by Matsuoka because he was in "a bad mood," Prince Konoye declared.

Approved by Leaders

The plan was approved in general by leaders who included the war and navy ministers, only to be stalled by the sole opposition of Matsuoka until it was made useless by misunderstandings and deterioration of relations, Konoye wrote in his lengthy political testament.

Konoye reported:

1. President Roosevelt suggested a tentative date—some time in October—and a place, possibly Juneau, Alaska, for a personal meeting with Konoye to discuss peace. [It was in mid-October that Japan by an imperial conference decision began preparing for war, and Gen. Hideki Tojo notified Konoye it was time for his cabinet to resign. Tojo succeeded him.]

Navy Fearful of War

2. Japanese naval leaders were fearful of a Pacific war, but unwilling to oppose the army's demand for it.

3. Foreign Minister Matsuoka was blamed by Konoye as suffering from jingoism and pro-Germanism plus "a bad mood" which led to sabotaging acceptance of the compromise plan. [Matsuoka has been listed as a war criminal suspect by Gen. MacArthur.]

4. Talks on adjustment of American-Japanese relations had been under way unofficially since December, 1940, with Frank Walker, then United States postmaster general, in one of the key roles. Konoye named the others as Bishop James Edward Walsh, superior general of the Catholic Foreign Missionary society, Maryknoll, N. Y., and Kichisaburo Nomura, Japanese ambassador to the United States, and others for Japan. He said both President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull were informed of the conversations.

Japs Would Quit China

From these private, unofficial talks, Konoye wrote, came on April 4 a "first trial plan" which the Japanese modified slightly in a "second trial plan." Hull and Nomura held the first talks on April 16. Konoye's description of this program said it was based upon an American promise to help obtain Chungking's agreement to peace in China.

The plan provided for Japan and America to guarantee the independence of China. Japan was to withdraw her troops from Chinese territory "based on an agreement to be formed between Japanese and Chinese." There would be no annexation of Chinese territory, no reparations, revival of the open door policy, union of the Chiang and Wang regimes [Chungking and the Japanese-sponsored puppet government], self-restriction by Japan of immigration of Japanese into Chinese terri-

Asks Penalty for Stoppages by Employes

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 17 (AP)—A demand that "appropriate penalties" be provided against employes participating in work stoppages that violate contract provisions was made upon the CIO United Automobile workers today by General Motors corporation.

The demand was contained in a letter to the union listing more than a dozen stipulations the corporation said must be included in a collective bargaining agreement with UAW-CIO. The letter was made public by the management as discussions of new contract proposals, including the union demand for a 30 per cent wage rate increase, were resumed.

The 30 per cent wage demand negotiations will be transferred to Washington, D. C., Wednesday when management and union representatives will meet with a fact finding board appointed by President Truman to study the dispute.

Call It Satisfactory

The UAW-CIO, led by President R. J. Thomas, submitted what it termed a "standard proposal" at the opening of negotiations with the newly formed Kaiser-Frazer corporation.

The company, thru Edward D. Riordan, director of industrial relations, said it will submit its lists on proposals, including its request for a guarantee of company security, at the next meeting Thursday.

Both sides termed today's initial conference "satisfactory."

The new General Motors agreement, management said, must include a stipulation "that there be appropriate penalties, including loss of seniority, against any employe taking part in any strike or work stoppage in violation of the agreement."

Other Demands Listed

Also demanded was "an adequate guarantee that the union will make good on its pledge to eliminate personal attacks, false accusations and vilification of management thru union publications, handbills, literature and releases; and that the international union as bargaining agent shall accept full responsibility for all items pertaining to management in such publications and releases."

Another stipulation would provide that "wages, hours of employment and other conditions of employment are the only matters which are subject to collective bargaining."

The management also stipulated that "the products to be manufactured, the location of plants, schedules of production, methods, processes and means of manufacture, the right to hire, promote, transfer, discharge or discipline for cause and to maintain discipline and efficiency of employes are the sole responsibilities of the corporation."

The management asked that the union "withdraw objections to the local unions negotiating and agreeing to pay plans which provide for rewarding individuals for increased productive effort." The corporation has said the union objects to the incentive wage plan.

The G. M. demand for penalties against workers participating in unauthorized work stoppages follows

Yamashita's Death Stayed by High Court

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 (AP)—The Supreme court granted a stay of execution today to Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, convicted as a war criminal.

Gen. Yamashita

The former "Tiger of Malaya," convicted by an army commission of permitting wholesale atrocities in the Philippines, sped a petition here by air mail asking that the case be taken out of the hands of the military.

The Supreme court justices held a hurried conference and granted a stay of the death sentence. Whether the high tribunal actually will take jurisdiction over the case was not announced.

The court adjourned until Jan. 2. Attaches said they did not expect it to announce its decision on the petition before that date.

Fights Philippine Decision

It was believed unprecedented for a foreign enemy general thus to appeal to the Supreme court.

Yamashita is not appealing directly from the sentence. That might come later. He is fighting a decision of the Philippine Supreme court denying his contention that the military tribunal was without jurisdiction.

Yamashita has two other petitions pending here in which he challenges the military's right to try him and asks that he be brought before the Supreme court for a hearing.

Holds Trial Unauthorized

His grounds are: when the commission was appointed there was no military government or hostilities in the Philippine Islands and therefore no authority to set it up. He also says he should be regarded as a prisoner rather than a war criminal.

The justice department already has objected to Yamashita's appeals. It says the military tribunal is a branch of the executive arm of the government and outside the realm of the courts.

Secretary of War Patterson earlier had ordered Yamashita's execution stayed pending final decision by the Supreme court.

GEN. PATTON SITS UP; REPORTED GAINING 'LIKE A HOUSE AFIRE'

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Dec. 17 (AP)—Gen. Patton sat up in his hospital bed today for the first time since his automobile accident eight days ago.

Doctors had removed a traction apparatus that had realigned the vertebrae in his broken neck and had substituted a plaster cast, which encases Patton's neck and the upper part of his chest.

Army medical authorities said the 60 year old 15th army commander was getting well "like a house afire." The former commander of the 3d army was fast throwing off the paralysis suffered by injury to his spinal cord.

The cast kept his neck immobile, but Patton was able to read and eat sitting up. Mrs. Patton spent the day with him.

Messages of encouragement continued to come in, including one from Winston Churchill. Others were from Gen. Arnold, Gen. Spaatz, Gen. Bradley, and the Swedish army.

N. Y. TUBE TRAIN CRASHES BRIDGE; 1 DEAD, 46 HURT

Newark, N. J., Dec. 17 (AP)—The motorman of a Hudson and Manhattan tube train, Michael J. Mullins, 36, was crushed to death and 46 passengers were injured here tonight when the train, loaded with homebound commuters, crashed into the east end of a Passaic river lift bridge between Harrison and Newark.

Emergency railroad crews worked with acetylene torches in the near zero weather for an hour before being able to extricate two men and a woman trapped in the wreckage.

The train crashed into the bridge as it was being closed after a vessel had passed thru.

The tube trains shuttle back and forth between Newark and New York, passing under the Hudson river and emerging into the open in Jersey City. They then remain above ground, passing over the Hackensack and the Passaic rivers before reaching Newark.

Canada Acts to Deport All Japs Found Disloyal

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OTTAWA, Ontario, Dec. 17—A commission will shortly be appointed to investigate all Japanese nationals in Canada or naturalized Canadians of Japanese origin, with power to recommend deportation of those whose behavior during the war indicated disloyalty to Canada, Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced tonight. Each of those deported will be allowed a minimum of $200 in the case of an adult and $50 in the case of a child for assistance in their resettlement in Japan.

GI Booby Trap Works, and to Surprise of All

With typical GI ingenuity, Arnold Olsen, 19, former soldier just back from Germany, rigged up a booby trap of his own invention as a burglar alarm in his home at 1645 N. Campbell av.

He made the trap of a 3 inch maneuver shell which the army uses in training troops for combat. While Olsen, the veteran, knew by personal experience that the shell was harmless except at close range, he also knew that it made noise enough to arouse five regiments.

The ex-soldier planted the trap in the casement of a pantry window, which his mother, Mrs. Hazel Olsen, a widow, often declared was the point in the flat most vulnerable to house breakers. The shell was embedded in such a position that any upward movement of the sash would set it off—Olsen hoped.

Leaves Test to Prowler

Lacking a supply of ammunition, Olsen decided to permit a prowler to make the first test.

Mrs. Olsen felt so secure behind the trap that she neglected to mention it even to her fiance, Frank R. Carr, 37, of 2940 S. Harvey av., Berwyn, a tailor since he came back from the war in Europe.

When Carr called yesterday Mrs. Olsen put him to work to help clean house for Christmas. Carr energetically shouldered a mop and invaded the pantry.

Some minutes later came an explosion which rattled every dish in the pantry.

The Trap Works!

"It works!" shouted young Olsen, exultantly.

Running to the pantry he found Carr lying on the floor near the open window, bleeding from a superficial gash in his neck and cuts on his arm.

After young Olsen told the other veteran about his application of the booby trap Carr sputtered:

"And to think I was a demolition squad expert! Why, I must have dug up those things by the gross when I was in France."

Smashes Car Into Truck and Crowd Says 'Thanks'

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 17 (AP)—Police Sgt. William Galvin hit a truck today and was thanked by quite a crowd of people. Galvin saw the truck heading down an incline straight for a group standing on the curbing. He sped up to it in his patrol car, maneuvered to its side, and struck it a glancing blow. Then he got ahead of the truck and rounded it to a stop. It was a runaway without a driver.

FIGHT UNO SEAT IN SOUTH; CITE RACIAL TABOOS

Debate Over Site of League Capital

BY WILLIAM FULTON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 17—Sentiment against settling the new world organization's permanent headquarters in the southern part of the United States because of race discrimination was revealed today as the united nations preparatory commission started debate on a specific site for its future home. The commission had decided Saturday that the UNO capital should be settled in the United States.

Arcot Ramaswami Mudaliar, delegate from India, opened the question of privileges which might be withheld from some delegates, such as those from Ethiopia and Liberia, in certain sections of the United States.

"The site should be so free that every member of each delegation will have the same freedom of movement and privileges as any other," asserted Mudaliar. "I don't wish to carry this any further."

Seven Southern Bidders

There are seven southern invitations, headed by Miami Beach, Fla. Others include: Thomas Jefferson's home, Monticello, at Charlottesville, Va.; New Orleans; Portsmouth, Va.; Richmond, Va.; Virginia Beach, Va., and Williamsburg, Va.

Mudaliar suggested the preparatory commission narrow down the prospective sites in the United States to a half dozen, which would be recommended to the UNO general assembly convening in London on Jan. 10.

Adlai Stevenson of Bloomington, Ill., who is acting United States delegate in the absence of Edward R. Stettinius, obtained the floor.

"I'd like nothing better than to furnish the delegate from India a travelog on cities in the United States," said Stevenson. "If I do so or even intimate a preference I'll never be able to return to the United States. While I don't expect to return in the near future, I do hope to return some time."

Briton Asks Delay

The United Kingdom's delegate, P. J. Noel-Baker, who led the fight for a European site, counseled the delegates to delay their decision.

The French delegation suggested that the mean average temperatures during August and September at the various proposed sites in the United States should be investigated. According to the French view, parliaments would be in recess during these months and the general assembly would then convene.

It was finally decided that the subcommittee, which has been hearing the presentation of cases of various American cities including a deputation from Chicago, would report to the commission Friday. The group expects to hear representatives from Cincinnati, O., and St. Louis, Mo., on Thursday.

On Saturday the commission will decide whether to appoint an interim commission to visit the United States on an inspection tour of proposed sites. The preparatory commission's recommendations must be ratified by the first general assembly meeting.

Lindy Favors World Group to Rule Atom

BY WILLIAM STRAND
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17—Charles A. Lindbergh, former member of the America First committee, tonight declared himself in favor of a world organization backed by force to safeguard civilization in the atomic age.

He warned, however, against misuse of the power which would be vested in such an organization, declaring he favors strong military forces to preserve peace only because he believes the alternative is worse.

The former "Lone Eagle" spoke before a dinner of the Aero club of Washington marking the 42d anniversary of the Wright brothers' first flight at Kitty Hawk, N. C.

Fears Atomic Rockets

In his speech Lindbergh asserted that the oceans which were barriers against bombing planes in the last war will not protect this country from atomic rockets hurled thru space in another war.

"To me," he said, "It is no longer a question of whether or not we should have world organization, but of what form it should take."

The famed flyer, an outspoken opponent of President Roosevelt's foreign policies before Pearl Harbor, said that all known defenses against air attack are valueless against rockets bearing atomic bombs. A counter-attack which might win an atomic war, he argued, would not replace ruined cities or bring back the dead.

"Pressure of a Button"

"Life would be intolerable here in America if we knew that an irresponsible foreign government could, without warning, send an atomic rocket hurtling toward every city in our country," Lindbergh continued. "If we permit the world to continue uncontroled an enemy could have such rockets aimed at our vital areas waiting only for the pressure of a button to send them off."

Against the background of the first successful airplane flight at Kitty Hawk, Lindbergh pictured the ruin caused by great bombers which he saw in the Pacific and Europe.

"I have had to tell myself over and over again that all this has happened within a lifetime," he said.

Annual Awards Made

The Robert J. Collier trophy for the year's outstanding contribution to American aviation went to Gen. Spaatz for demonstrating the air power concept thru the employment of United States planes in the war against Germany. Spaatz was senior air officer in the European theater and at the war's end was in command of the B-29s in the Pacific.

Dr. H. W. Hurt, of Gainesville, Fla., research director of the Boy Scouts of America, received the Frank G. Brewer award for the most significant contribution to aviation education. He has been Boy Scout research specialist since 1919 and is the author of many books and handbooks in the fields of scouting and education.

The Andrew J. Haire award of $5,000 for airport achievement went to Beverly E. Howard of Charleston, S. C., head of the Hawthorne School of Aeronautics, for his work in training 4,275 aviation cadets for the army and 1,652 for the French air forces during the war.

HUSBAND FINDS WIFE DEAD, BABY GIRL, 4, STABBED

When Alex Soby, an upholsterer, returned to his home at 2648 Hirsch st. last night he found his wife, Anna, 30, dead, her head in the oven of the gas stove and their daughter, Linda, 4, suffering from stab wounds in the chest.

Linda, at Norwegian-American hospital, told North av. police that her mother had stabbed her with a butcher knife and then placed her head in the oven.

On the kitchen table was a note scribbled in red crayon, "I love you, am willing to work to help along."

Physicians at the hospital said Linda's wounds were superficial. Soby told police his wife had been employed as a janitress in a loop office building but that she quit her job two weeks ago. He was unable to supply a motive for her act.

THEY'LL NEVER REPAY MONEY, SAYS SENATOR

Warns of Strain on U. S. Resources

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17—Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.], in a 55 minute senate speech this afternoon fired the first broadside against the pending 4 billion 400 million dollar United States government loan to Great Britain.

Raking fore and aft the recently signed credit agreement and predicting that, if made, the loan never would be repaid, the Illinois senator said that for two reasons alone it should be rejected by congress.

Gives His Reasons

These reasons are:

1. The conditions on which the loan is based are such "that neither England nor the United States can carry them out."

2. The obligation assumed by the United States in terms of dollars "will put a strain of the first magnitude upon our resources."

American industries, working men and farmers, said Brooks, never will permit their government to carry out the assumed obligation to tear down our tariff walls and admit the products of foreign low cost production to compete with the high cost production of the country with the highest standard of living in the world. And once the United States fails to fulfill that condition of the bargain, Britain, the senator added, will consider itself relieved of the obligation to repay the loan.

"Cunning Escape Clauses"

The agreement is so cunningly provided with escape clauses, the senator asserted, that it is not really a loan that is proposed but the multi-billion dollar gift that Britain originally sought. But Brooks said he does not subscribe to the theory that the British have pulled the wool over our eyes.

"I think the British in this negotiation," he said, "are looking after themselves. I think that somebody ought to be looking after America. Apparently nobody has been looking after America. The men who negotiated this agreement with Britain understand this as well as you do and I do.

"I think we are having the wool pulled over our eyes, but I do not think it is being pulled over our eyes by the British. I think it is being pulled over our eyes by the men who are misrepresenting America again and sacrificing the interests of this country to the interests of another country—for some reason which I do not undertake to understand."

"Game of Chance"

The whole deal impressed Brooks as a "great international game of chance in which the United States is to furnish the money for both participants and in which the British Labor party is to furnish the dice." Like all of "those fantastic enterprises in which we have been drawn before and since the war, this one is being sold—to the American people, of course—with the same pretensions of altruistic concern for the world mixed with some supposed benefits which we are to obtain," he charged.

After analyzing in detail the agreement to lend Britain 3¾ billions and grant a 650 million dollar credit in settlement of 25 billions of lend-lease goods, the senator recalled the 4 billion loan to England in World War I.

"She paid a miserable fraction of this," said Brooks, "and then began to denounce us as old 'Uncle Shylock' for even suggesting that she should pay on a very much reduced basis. Do you think either we or our English friends have changed?

"They Can't Pay"

"We now have another proposal for another loan of $3,750,000,000. The English themselves have warned you that they take it only because they are desperate. They have practically told us that they couldn't stand a loan. They have—in words as plain as involved diplomatic double talk can make it—told us they can't pay such a loan.

"After the last war, England was in an economic condition far more powerful than she is today. Yet she couldn't pay us four billion dollars. Do you think that England, weakened as she is today, is better able to assume such an obligation than she was 25 years ago? She will never pay it.

"Under this arrangement, she is supposed to pay an average of $96,000,000 a year. Where is she going to get the $96,000,000? Her exports can't do it. They will be scarcely sufficient to pay for her imports from this country.

"Seeds of Friction"

"And when England comes to us later and tells us she can't pay, a lot of people in America will say that once again England is rooking us—but remember we are going into this with our eyes open. England cannot pay this money, and we are sowing the seeds of endless international friction and old animosities and setting in motion the flood and counter-flood of bitter criticisms across the Atlantic ocean between two nations which should be friends."

The senator recalled that when the Roosevelt administration in 1941 promised that the lend-lease billions would be repaid in goods, he had pronounced that "a wholly dishonest assertion to make to the American people." He wondered what the American people will say when it dawns upon them that Britain is to be allowed to settle its 25 billion dollar lend-lease bill for 650 millions—about 2½ cents on the dollar.

"Amazed" at Negotiators

"So far is I am concerned, and considering the generosity of our internationalists when dealing with England," he went on, "I am amazed that our negotiators exacted so much. I haven't the slightest doubt that before this episode is ended it will be called by the British a 'hard settlement' and perhaps another instance of the financial depravity of old Uncle Shylock."

Of the 650 millions, 532 millions cover the settlement for lend-lease before V-J day and surplus property and installations of the United States in the United Kingdom.

"As a matter of fact, when we come down to it," Brooks continued, "England is really paying a very small sum for vast stores of property, magnificent air fields, and great installations which cost billions and which she still has and can use and, as to some of it, can sell.

Offers Some "Congratulations"

"I want to congratulate those distinguished Americans who have been looking after our interests in this agreement for the manner in which they have guarded them, for I note with great relief and satisfaction that the agreement provides that England cannot export any of this surplus property back to us."

The senator detected a mystery of the first water in the provision that this lend-lease debt is to be paid not in dollars but in sterling in 50 million dollar amounts from time to time as called for by the United States.

"And what will be done with this $50,000,000?" asked Brooks. "Will we bring it back here and use it to do a little rehabilitating in our own land—perhaps pay some of the obligations we owe our own soldiers, perhaps do a little something in the way of relieving the unemployment which seems to loom ahead?

Answers Own Question

"O, no! Here is what we have agreed to do, and I quote: 'The government of the United States will use these pounds sterling exclusively to acquire land or to acquire or construct buildings in the United Kingdom and the colonial dependencies for the use of the government of the United States.'

"In other words—I break this off for a moment to be sure that you get this—we will never take that $50,000,000 out of the United Kingdom—we will use it to build such things as we will want in the United Kingdom.

"I don't know what we are going to want to build there that is going to cost $50,000,000, now and then, but that is the agreement—and now I resume the quotation because I do not want you to miss this—there is another purpose for which we can spend the money, and I quote: 'And for carrying out educational programs in accordance with agreements to be concluded between the two governments.' This, mark you, we do not have to do in the United Kingdom, but this means that a part—and doubtless a large part—of this $650,000,000 is to be spent by us in carrying out educational programs in combination with England.

Lesson from History

"Here, I want to amend the observation with which I started. I said that this is a game of chance in which we will furnish the money and the British will furnish the dice. I think history has taught us that in any educational program carried on by ourselves in coöperation with the British, we will furnish the money and the British will furnish the teachers.

"What are these educational programs? What are we going to teach? To whom and to where are we going to carry these adventures in propaganda? To Asia? And whose system of economic government are we going to propagate? The system of private property and Republican free government of the United States, or the planned society and socialist government of Great Britain? Certainly, whatever is done with this agreement, that incredible, that obnoxious provision should be stricken from it.

"One thing, however, is certain to come out of this lend-lease settlement—little or no part of the $650,000,000 will ever come to the United States. The whole settlement, so far as that agreement is concerned, is a pure and unmixed fraud upon the American people."

The senator recounted the history of the loan agreement. The advance agent who came to Washington in September was John Maynard Keynes, who as plain Mr. Keynes often was here in the middle thirties instructing Mr. Roosevelt in the arts of government mass spending and deficit financing.

When Mr. Roosevelt tried to taper off spending in 1937 and balance the budget, the country went into an economic tailspin, but Keynes told the President the only trouble was that the New Dealers were not spending and borrowing enough.

The Deficit Theory

"And so," said Brooks, "was born the new theory of the New Deal which appeared among us in 1938 of the permanent deficit—the endless borrowing upon the theory that a government debt is not like a private debt—that we owe it to ourselves—that we need never pay it and that the interest on it is not a burden because we merely take it out of the right hand pockets of the people in the form of taxes and put it back into their left hand pockets in the form of interest.

"This same John Maynard Keynes had been preaching the theory in England. He had gotten himself elected to the position of director of the Bank of England, and was later elevated to the house of Lords and sent to America to negotiate this present agreement. I congratulate him. Any man who can settle a debt of 10 dollars for two cents is good, and deserves the admiration of all financiers and the thanks of at least his coutrymen."

A "Grant in Aid"

Keynes, arriving in September, said he was not interested in getting a commercial loan because it couldn't be repaid and would only lead to friction and bad feeling between the two countries. What he frankly wanted was a "grant in aid," which is a euphemism for a gift, not a loan.

"That's what he thought!" commented Brooks, smiling in gentle sarcasm. "Lord Keynes, well as he knows us, just did not know who he was dealing with. He might have thought that England would not borrow money from us, but he was bargaining without us. If he thought that England could get away without a loan of billions from us, he now knows he was mistaken.

"Anybody can borrow from us. We are now talking about a loan to Russia, and we want it understood that neither England nor Russia nor Lord Keynes, nor anybody else, can escape borrowing money from us if we want to lend it—and we want to lend it to anybody and everybody!

"I have voted for coöperation with the countries of the world. I voted to grant great powers to our executive in those dealings, but I want our representatives to truly represent the interests of America and, above all, I want them to be honest with the American people."

Brooks Battles Loan to Britain

Loan Debate Revives Labor Threat to House of Lords

BY E. R. NODERER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 17—Britain's peers had some harsh things to say about the United States today in debate on the $4,400,000,000 loan, but reprisals open to the Labor government were expected to discourage the upper house from going so far as to reject the American offer.

With Conservatives holding the great majority in the house of lords the offer could easily be defeated. But if this step is taken, Laborites are expected to make good their election threat to do away with the ancient upper house.

If the lords should reject the loan, it would delay passage of the bill for two years. As a consequence political observers believe the lords will follow the example of the Conservatives in commons and make a great deal of noise but refrain from voting on the issue.

Beaverbrook Retreats

Conservatives began to climb down early in the six hour debate when Publisher Beaverbrook withdrew a motion to reject the loan, altho he indicated that he would speak against it.

Former Minister of Food Woolton said the loan was degrading to Britain and would create great sales resistance against American products in empire markets. Declaring the British public "resents dollar dictation" Woolton called the agreement harsh, unjust, and commercially unwise.

He expressed the view that "in justice and honor" the United should unconditionally return to Britain all the securities sold in the United States to finance Britain's war in the pre-lend-lease days.

"Tea Party in Reverse"

Henry Page Croft called the loan terms a "Boston tea party in reverse" and said he regarded the deal as "interference with the freedom of our county."

John Maynard Keynes, chief British negotiator in Washington, D. C., intervened in the debate a few hours after arriving on the Queen Elizabeth. He said imperial preferences would be reduced or eliminated only if the United States made a commensurate reduction of tariffs.

Secretary of State for India Pethic-Lawrence said grave consequences would follow rejection of the loan and bring about economic war with America.

Urges Big Change

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 17—The British Communist party today urged a period of economic stimulation to be afforded by the American loan be utilized to carry thru a "most drastic reorganization of British economy." The party's executive committee issued a statement declaring the socialist government should bar all luxury and other unnecessary imports and strive for the fullest development of the country's productive resources.

ASSERTS WORLD MUST UNITE TO COMBAT A-BOMB

Canada's Premier Tells of Danger

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 17—"It is difficult to see a solution to the problem of the atomic bomb short of some surrender of national sovereignty by nations," Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King told the house of commons today.

The statement came in the prime minister's first public report on the recent Washington conferences at which he, President Truman, and Prime Minister Attlee of Britain agreed that information on the use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes should be exchanged among nations with safeguards.

Commons unanimously approved the Washington declaration calling for a united nations commission to study ways of preventing atomic energy from being used for destructive purposes.

Stresses World Politics

Mackenzie King said it is an error to think atomic energy can be controled in "police terms." Solution to the problem must be found in world politics," he said.

"The more deeply one ponders the problems with which our world is confronted in the light of the implications of the development of atomic energy," he said, "the harder it is to see a solution in anything short of some surrender of national sovereignty.

Study New Atom Ore

"For a limited surrender of national sovereignty there must be substituted some form of world government, restricted, at least at the outset, to matters pertaining to the prevention of war and the maintenance of international security."

Mackenzie King said that a study is being made at Chalk River, Ont., of the use of thorium as a starting point for the production of atomic energy.

British General Divorced; Names Air Chief Marshal

AMERICAN SERBS DENOUNCE TITO AS LIBERTY FOE

Send Protest to Foreign Ministers in Moscow

BY CARL WIEGMAN

Cablegrams protesting against the soviet sponsored regime of Marshal Tito in Yugoslavia were sent yesterday to the Big Three foreign ministers, meeting in Moscow, by the heads of organizations representing 90 per cent of the Americans of Serbian descent.

The messages were signed by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Dionisiye of the Serbian Eastern Orthodox diocese of the United States and Canada; Mile Radakovich, acting president of the Serbian national defense council, and L. C. Christopher, president of the Serbian National federation.

Anglo-American Action Urged

Two of the cablegrams, addressed to Secretary of State Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Bevin, charged that Yugoslavia has been placed under a dictatorial regime in direct violation of the Yalta agreement of the great powers. The messages urged that the United States and Britain refuse to recognize the results of the Yugoslavia election on Nov. 11, when Tito's party permitted no opposition.

A third cablegram, addressed to Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov, asked him to direct the Tito regime to guarantee the democratic liberties promised by the Yalta conference.

Croats Turn on Tito

Interviews with leaders of Yugoslavian organizations in the Chicago area disclosed that the sentiments expressed in the cablegrams are held not only by Serbs, but also by Croats and Slovanians, the two other groups that make up the Yugoslavian nation. Their ancient rivalries have dissolved in the misery of communist oppression.

The Croats are especially bitter, altho Marshal Tito is himself a Croatian. A recent meeting in Chicago of 250 delegates from all parts of the country adopted resolutions protesting against "conditions of horror imposed upon the Croatian people by the rule of communistic bestial gangsters."

Holds Tito Red Agent

Speakers at the meeting, held in the Croatian home, 96th st. and Escanaba av., represented the Croatian Catholics Union of America, the lodges of the Croatian Federal union, the Croatian Catholic parishes, the American Croatian Citizens clubs, and other organizations.

Steven Warnick, publisher of the Yugoslav Herald, who is a native of Croatia, said his people admired Tito until about a year and a half ago, when they began to realize he was an agent of Russia.

Louis M. Peyovich, secretary of the Serbian national defense council, said he believed Gen. Draja Mihailovich, the Chetnik guerrilla chief, had been sold out by the British and Americans, altho he is the true leader of the Serbs, and still has 75,000 fighters in the mountains, waiting for a chance to rise against Tito.

URGES GREECE BE ACCEPTED AS VICTOR NATION

Harris J. Booras of Boston, supreme president of the order of Ahepa, Greek-American fraternal organization, declared last night that Greece should be considered as an allied victor nation, and not as one that had been vanquished. He spoke before 6,000 persons attending a Victory bond dance of that organization in the Aragon ballroom.

Booras asserted that Bulgaria is insisting on outlets to Greek ports and that offers of such a nature made by several of the allied nations are an insult to Greek integrity.

The order Ahepa stands for the American Hellenic Educational Protective association and has more than 100,000 members. Admittance to the dance was by the purchase of Victory bonds and more than 5 million dollars worth were sold. The organization has sold close to 1 billion dollars worth since the drive started, Booras said.

REVEAL DETAILS ON AIR FORCES' NEW 'SUPER' SHIP

Dwarfs B-29; Pusher Type Propellers

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 (AP)—The army air forces revealed today some additional details of its coming super bomber, the Consolidated-Vultee XB-36. It said in a monthly publication, Air Force, the huge plane was "about to take to the air."

A drawing of the bomber showed it with lines resembling those of the Boeing B-29 Super Fortress, except that the six engines are set into the after part of the wing and the propellers push rather than pull.

Gen. Arnold, commanding general of the AAF, discussing the new weapon recently, said it would weigh more than 250,000 pounds and have an operating radius of 5,000 miles. This compares with the B-29's peak gross weight of 140,000 pounds and about 1,600 mile radius.

Built in Texas

Air Force gave these general facts about the XB-36, which is being built at Fort Worth, Tex.:

The fuselage is 163 feet long and 150 inches in diameter. The tail rises 46 feet 7 inches above the ground. Its fore and aft compartments are linked by a pressurized tunnel as in the B-29. The crew will total 17, including relief crewmen. There will be sleeping accommodations and a galley to prepare hot meals. It will operate at more than 30,000 feet altitude and can make non-stop flights from Tokyo to New York as a "matter of course."

The engines will be Pratt & Whitney "Majors," the four bank radial, air cooled monsters recently announced as having an emergency power rating of more than 3,650 horsepower each. Cooling will be by air taken in thru ducts in the leading edge of the wing.

Five Bomb Bays

The drawing indicates five bomb bays.

By comparison with the XB-36, which has a wingspan of 230 feet, the B-29 has a wingspan of 141 feet and a length of 98 feet.

ALDERMEN BACK MOVE TO MERGE 4 RAIL STATIONS

Sentiment for action by the city to consolidate the four south side railway passenger stations was voiced in the council yesterday, and early hearings were promised by Ald. Kovarik [15th], chairman of the committee on terminals.

Ald. Waller [43d] introduced a resolution calling on the council and the Chicago Plan commission to adopt and to put into effect with the interstate and state commerce commission a modern adaptation of that portion of a 1919 ordinance which called for a lake front terminal.

Would Abandon Four Stations

This adaptation would provide for abandonment of the 12th st., Dearborn, La Salle st., and Grand Central stations, to be replaced by a modern, adequate terminal, probably at Randolph st., north of Grant park.

Kovarik delayed action on his resolution to force the removal of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad's tracks across Plymouth ct. at Taylor st. The delay was requested by Mayor Kelly, who said he hadn't seen the ordinance.

Power Claimed for City

Under a 1941 ruling by the Illinois Supreme court giving municipalities expanded authority over utilities, Kovarik said, the city has power to force removal of the tracks, which connect Dearborn station with its mail and express annex.

The tracks were installed in 1919 under a five year permit, which was renewed in 1924. In 1929 the council asked that the crossing be removed, but action was blocked by a court injunction.

SHORT OPPOSES A 'WORLD WPA' AT U. S. EXPENSE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 (AP)—Opposition to establishment of "a world wide WPA financed by the U. S. A.," was expressed today by Rep. Short [R., Mo.], who said the proposed loan to Britain would be "a gift."

"Christmas is coming and I am in a charitable frame of mind," Short told a reporter. "But I'm realistic enough to know that this government can't play Santa Claus to every nation."

Short said he believes Britain has "hidden assets" and that "the veil of secrecy should be torn from the assets of all nations" before this country makes loans.

O, MAYOR, WAIT UNTIL COUNCIL HEARS OF THIS

Mayor Kelly told the Illinois section of American Society of Civil Engineers yesterday that he enjoyed city council meetings, "but when I want to go to a place where real thought is expressed, I come here." The mayor and 11 other engineers were made life members of the society at a luncheon in the Palmer House. I. F. Stern, a consulting engineer, was elected president of the group, succeeding Ralph H. Burke, chief engineer for the park district.

U. S. OFFICIAL LINKS AMERICA TO JAVA'S WAR

Agrees with Halifax That We're In on It

BY ROBERT YOUNG
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17—An official spokesman for the state department tonight backed up the statement of British Ambassador Halifax that the United States shares with Great Britain the responsibility for the operations of British empire military forces against natives seeking their freedom in the Dutch East Indies.

The state department spokesman said that Halifax's statement of joint Anglo-American responsibility for current military operations against Javanese nationalists "is the truth." The British ambassador's declaration was made last Friday in Washington at a banquet of the English Speaking union.

Byrnes' Recent Stand

This impression appeared to have been confirmed several weeks ago when State Secretary Byrnes denounced the British use of Japanese troops to fight the Indonesians. Byrnes also called upon the British to remove American markings on lend-lease weapons employed in their attempt to put down the Indonesian uprising.

The question of American responsibility is expected to be brought up in congress in view of the state department's confirmation of Halifax's statements.

Several congressmen said tonight they were horrified at the thought that the United States shared in orders which have resulted in the current bloody strife between British forces and the Javanese. They asserted that the Javanese are a liberated people and are fighting for their freedom.

Comparison with Lidice

One senator compared the recent obliteration of native communities by British bombers with the German destruction of Lidice in Czechoslovakia during the recent war.

The admission of American responsibility in the Dutch East Indies came in response to a request by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for comment or reaction from the state department on Halifax's statement. The answer was given by a member of the state department's current information division after the customary consultation with officials.

"There is no comment or reaction," the information division spokesman asserted. "What Halifax said is the truth. The decision to send British empire troops into Java was not solely British, but was Anglo-American. The troops were sent there to carry out work which had been assigned to them by the combined chiefs of staff at the time of the Japanese surrender."

The state department member said that the combined chiefs of staff, which is an organization of British and American land, sea, and air commanders, and the Southeast Asia command, ordered troops sent to the Dutch East Indies to disarm and repatriate Japanese troops and to protect about 100,000 allied war prisoners and civilian internees. He said that regardless of the Indonesian revolt and the strife between the East Indies and the Netherlands, the disarming of the Japanese, and protection of civilians must be carried out as ordered.

Halifax made similar statements last Friday. He said some internees have been murdered by revolting Javanese, and said thousands of women and children in the East Indies are in "daily danger." He said that Great Britain wanted to avoid bloodshed, but that it was its duty to carry out the assignment of the joint chiefs of staff.

The state department spokesman described the order sending British empire forces into the Dutch East Indies as "a hangover from the war," implying that the current revolt and bloodshed were not anticipated when the order was issued originally.

DUTCH REDS ASSAIL BRITISH FOR 'NAZI METHODS' IN JAVA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, Dec. 17—Dutch Communist and radical newspapers are attacking the British Southeast Asia command for burning the Java village of Bekasi as reprisal for the murder of a British airplane crew by nationalists. They say the English are using "nazi methods."

Opinion in Dutch official circles is that the early suppression of "extremists" is necessary because 40,000,000 Javanese face famine due to attacks on food transports. Two Dutch divisions are ready to help police the islands after the British restore order.

Repel Indonesian Attacks

BATAVIA, Java, Dec. 17 (AP)—Three hundred Indonesians, armed with knives and shouting for their "Moslem brothers from India" to join them, were dispersed today when they attacked a guard post in the Buitenzorg area of western Java.

British Indian troops broke up the attack with rifle fire. Several hours earlier, an attack by Indonesians armed with machine guns also was repelled.

Indo-China 'Pacification' Speeded; Fight Goes On

SAIGON, Indo-China, Dec. 17 (AP)—A British-French statement said today that pacification of Indo-China was "making rapid progress" as British, Indian, and French troops continued operations against insurgent strongholds. Indian forces cleared an island off the coast, taking more than 400 prisoners, along with machine guns and grenades.

FINN SAYS WAR CRIMINAL TRIALS ARE LATEST FAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

HELSINKI, Finland, Dec. 17—War crime trials are the latest fad but Finland occupies a special position in staging them, Vaino Tanner, former Socialist party chief, told the court at today's session of the war responsibility trial.

Finland's accused cannot be labeled Quislings because they never consorted with the enemy or neglected national defense, he said. In addition, the war time government enjoyed the support of parliament and the overwhelming majority of the population.

Imposed from Outside

Tanner, who often is called by Moscow and Finnish Communists Finland's No. 1 war criminal, branded the trial a political stunt imposed on the Finns from outside in violation of the national code of justice.

He recalled that the legislation setting the prosecuting machinery in motion was passed "only under extreme pressure" and that the Finnish nation has not wanted this depressing spectacle." He criticized the circumstance that the period preceding 1941 was left outside the sphere of the juridical investigation.

He asserted that the crisis in Finnish-Soviet relations goes back to 1939 when the U. S. S. R., "thru a special envoy made demands violating Finland's territorial integrity and sovereignty." The government's answer was negative because agreement would have signified a surrender of neutrality and the conclusion of a military alliance with the soviet union, he said.

On demand of the envoy the negotiations were wholly secret and could not therefore be reported to parliament.

Foe of Nazism

Tanner boasted that "probably no one in Finland so consistently and mercilessly attacked [nazism] as myself." He depicted all other dictatorships also as a menace to mankind.

Laughter resounded thru the courtroom when the defendant said he had intended to let his war time speeches speak for him, but that the prosecutor had himself read them to the tribunal.

Tanner's speeches reveal him as a pacifist, anti-nazi, dyed-in-the-wool Social Democrat, devoted to the cause of peace at the earliest genuine opportunity and opposed to all territorial conquest.

Tanner deplored the "attempts to disturb the lawsuit from the outside and to put pressure on the court."

Nazi Reveals Mystery Death Ended Plot for Irish Revolt

NUERNBERG, Germany, Dec. 17 (AP)—German intrigue to stir up revolution in Ireland thru the Irish Republican army simultaneously with invasion of England failed largely because of the mysterious death of an Irish revolutionary agent on board a U-boat in the English channel, Maj. Gen. Edwin Lahousen, former German intelligence official, said today.

Lahousen, surprise witness for the prosecution at the war crimes trial here, said the key revolutionary figure was an Irish-American in the outlawed I. R. A. who had worked his way from New York to Genoa, Italy, as a crew member of a United States ship, and was brought to Germany after making contact with nazi intelligence officers thru an intermediary.

Under Hitler Foe

Lahousen worked under Adm. Walter W. Canaris, Greek born chief of the German intelligence who was hanged for his part in the Hitler bomb plot.

Soon after the I. R. A. man arrived in Berlin he was taken to see Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop, Lahousen said, and "after things were ready this man was put aboard a submarine."

Lahousen's diary says the submarine then left for an undisclosed point on the Irish coast. A radio transmitter and special sabotage equipment were to be dropped by parachute at a pre-arranged rendezvous.

"The U-boat had just left a very few hours when it sent a radio message that the agent had suddenly died," Lahousen said.

"When the U-boat returned, investigation showed the man had died of illness of the stomach. The foreign office, however, accused Canaris of poisoning him. I can say it was absolutely out of the question that Canaris poisoned him.

That Ended It

"His death practically ended all enterprises in Ireland. With regard to other agents that went to Ireland, then to England, with the help of the I. R. A., I believe we succeeded in getting four or five of them across by using a submarine in one instance and an airplane in another. . . . But I must say on the whole the enterprise was a failure because they all were caught."

Lahousen was asked, "What was the chief satisfaction Germany obtained from Ireland during the war?"

"There was no satisfaction," he replied.

PREDICT SOME RELIEF FROM RECORD COLD

Slight relief from the record cold wave which pushed the mercury down to 6 degrees below zero yesterday was promised by the weather bureau last night. I. W. Brunk, forecaster, said the low last night might reach 5 degrees below zero, depending upon the degree of cloudiness, and that today's high would be in the neighborhood of 10 degrees.

Snow is predicted for downstate Illinois and Indiana, with the possibility that some snow may fall in Chicago, which will be on the fringe of the storm.

Railroads reported many instances of interrupted traffic, particularly the New York Central whose trains were snowbound by a paralyzing blizzard at Buffalo which left 48 inches of snow in its wake.

The park district warned that skating is unsafe on park lagoons, but that skating rinks are open in 50 small parks. The Chicago Motor club reported 25,000 calls for assistance. Freezing weather extended from Texas to Georgia in the south. Some zero readings were recorded in West Virginia.

RUSSIANS SCOOP UP CZECH PLANTS OWNED BY YANKS

Nationalization Decrees Fail to Block Reds

BY LARRY RUE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Dec. 17—Czechoslovakia, like Poland and Yugoslavia, constitutes a test case in determining not only the sovereign status but the social, political, and economic trends of small allied central European countries liberated in German defeat.

Altho occupied by the Germans for six years, Czechoslovakia did not suffer the ravages of war such as damaged Poland and Yugoslavia. Physically, the nation is intact. The expulsion en masse of the German population is providing new homes and means of livelihood for millions of Czechs. Every one with whom the Chicago Tribune correspondent talked agreed that no Czech would starve this winter.

It is early to say how far Czechoslovakia will be independent. Many Czechs expressed uneasiness over President Benes' policy in tying the nation irrevocably to the tail of the Russia bear. They said the next possible step, incorporating Czechoslovakia as another republic of the U. S. S. R., would not be difficult for Russia to achieve if she so desired.

Russians Remove Factories

Benes has nationalized mines and industries. No mention is made of how, when, and with what American, British, or other allied nations will be compensated for their losses thru this move.

The decree providing for state ownership of the mines and industries, even down to "whole production of gramophone recordings," failed to prevent Russian removal of factories. Nor has it prevented the removal to Russia of property owned by Americans and British. The Russians have seized several telephone factories owned by the International Telephone and Telegraph corporation, and have crated for shipment a radio tube factory here, 100 per cent American owned, that was the largest in central Europe before the war.

Russian soldiers are guarding the plant and refuse to permit American representatives of the I. T. & T. to enter the works.

Soviets Take American Oil

The Socony Vacuum Oil company properties in Czechoslovakia, Austria, and Hungary are being exploited by the Russians. Oil wells in Austria alone, which were entirely American owned, are producing 3,000,000 barrels of crude oil yearly, all of which is now being sent to Russia.

The Chicago Tribune correspondent understands that the Czech government, answering American protests, can only reply that it is helpless before Russia.

A Czech land reform bill providing for outright seizure of 7,000,000 acres of land formerly owned by the Germans and Hungarians does not attempt to set up a Russian system of collective farms. The land will be allotted to Czech farmers.

The farmers will be communized to the extent that they will have to sell the bulk of their production to the government at a fixed price and obtain agricultural machinery from a common pool, which the UNRRA is now helping set up.

A lack of raw materials—the UNRRA is sending in large quantities of wool and cotton—is hampering industry. There is also a reported shortage of labor.

FATHER HUBBARD ASSAILS SOVIETS' RULE IN EUROPE

All persons living in zones occupied by the Russians are under a yoke of a few million who control the Communist party and are suppressed in the same manner as the millions of residents of Russia, the Rev. Father Bernard R. Hubbard, famous Jesuit priest, said yesterday on his return from the European war zones. Father Hubbard is famous for his 27 years of scientific explorations in Alaska.

Father Hubbard said the United States appears to have no foreign policy. "Russia liquidates anybody who isn't afraid of or opposes the Communist party. . . . Russian authorities are making Communists by giving residents of occupied zones 500 marks and a ticket showing that they are members of the Communist party. An additional 500 marks is given the new party members a month later," he said.

"The trouble lies with American diplomacy. It appears that our state department men are working on America's strength while foreign diplomats are working with their wits. Until we get our wits to working we're going to be lost as far as diplomatic relations are concerned."

Some Germans Will Get O.K. to Cross Allied Lines

BERLIN, Dec. 17 (AP)—One year passes permitting travel across occupation boundaries will be issued to limited classes of Germans, it was decided today by the coördinating committee of the allied control council as the first step toward permitting normal interzonal travel.

MOSCOW PARLEY READY TO TAKE UP BIG PROBLEMS

Stalin Back at Work

LONDON, Dec. 18 [Tuesday] (AP)—The Moscow radio said today that Generalissimo Stalin returned to Moscow yesterday and resumed his duties. The brief announcement said: "On Dec. 17 president of the council of the peoples' commissars of the U. S. S. R. Stalin returned to Moscow from his vacation and resumed his duties."

Stalin left Moscow on Oct. 9 for a vacation spot near Sochi on the Black sea. When he failed to return to review a parade of 1,100,000 soviets in Red square on Nov. 7, reports circulated that he was ill.

MOSCOW, Dec. 17 (AP)—The foreign ministers of Russia, the United States, and Britain, with soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov presiding as permanent chairman, met for two hours late today. There was no announcement of the progress of their conferences on multiple world problems.

While little actual news of the meetings could be gleaned, there was every reason to believe that representatives of the three nations were prepared for discussion of the big items on their agenda. It was their second formal session at Speridonifka palace.

Meeting is Businesslike

An observer said the ministers met in an atmosphere of "serious businesslike discussion." They will meet again at 4 p. m. tomorrow, a United States embassy spokesman said.

An eyewitness said American Secretary of State Byrnes, British Foreign Secretary Bevin and Molotov cordially greeted one another as they entered the sparkling white and gold conference room.

A flag of his respective nation was placed on a huge circular table before each minister and his delegation.

Warn Against High Hopes

Observers were quick to point out, however, that both Byrnes and Bevin had predicted the conference might not result in the reaching of any agreements and said the fine air of cordiality which prevailed should not raise hope beyond the expectation of the principals themselves.

Both Byrnes and Bevin were said to be keeping in touch with Chinese and French representatives in Moscow.

RANGOON, Burma, Dec. 17 [Reuters]—Gen. Aung San, president of the Burmese Anti-Fascist People's Freedom league, today appealed to President Truman to sponsor the cause of dependent countries in accordance with his Navy day statement and on the fundamentals of American foreign policy.

The former commander of the anti-Japanese "patriotic Burmese forces," said: "We look to the United States as the arsenal of democracy and hope the American government and people will help us in a positive way.

"This would enable America further to expand her commerce and industry, for free Burma will have plenty of room for advanced countries like the United States to come and develop the country's resources."

PREDICT A THIRD PARTY MADE UP OF REDS AND CIO

Wallace Is Slated to Lead New Bloc

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17—A split in the Democratic party and the rise of a third political party in 1946, composed of communists and left wing laborites, was freely predicted by Capitol Hill observers today in the light of two significant developments. Commerce Secretary Wallace, after resigning his job, may lead the new party, it was said.

Formation of the third party, based on "disillusionment among the masses with the Truman administration," was advocated first by Eugene Dennis, high Communist party official, in a recent issue of the Daily Worker, official Communist publication.

Labor Reported Ready

Last Saturday, George F. Addes, international secretary-treasurer of the CIO United Automobile Workers, warned in his annual report that organized labor was prepared to form a third party. Addes heads the left wing element of the UAW.

Congressional Democrats and Republicans alike saw a political forward pass from Dennis to Addes in these two announcements.

Dennis said the CIO political action committee, the followers of Commerce Secretary Wallace, the La Guardia forces in New York City, Negro organizations, and liberal labor groups were all in favor of a third party.

"The post-war period," Dennis declared, "has demonstrated the falsity and dangers of collaboration between labor and big capital such as represented in and by the Truman administration and the Democratic party."

Addes Uses Same Theme

The voters, especially those in labor groups, in the next Presidential election, Dennis said, must have a choice "other than between a Truman and a Dewey or a Vandenberg. They must not be in the position of having to choose "a lesser evil."

The CIO political action committee, he concluded, must remain as the main organ of "progressive forces" until a third party can be organized.

The report of Addes, UAW secretary-treasurer, sounded much the same theme.

Grosse Point Lighthouse to Be Repaired in Spring

Zeto Faulkner, city traffic engineer of Evanston, yesterday said that the Grosse Point lighthouse, a historical landmark, will be placed in use again as soon as the city can obtain automatic equipment for it, probably in March or April. The lighthouse, which was maintained by the coast guard for many years, is now the property of the city of Evanston which will maintain it at a cost of $150 per year. The coast guard discontinued use of the light early in the war.

U. S. OFFICIALS CALL UPRISING IN IRAN INSPIRED

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 (AP)—United States officials expressed belief today that the uprising which led to the creation of an autonomous regime in Azerbaijan was inspired and not spontaneous.

These officials, who asked not to be identified, told reporters this government attributed the troubles in northern Iran largely to the presence of Russian occupation troops.

Dispute Soviet Right

A request that the United States register a vigorous protest with Moscow was made by Iranian Ambassador Hussein Ala. After a visit to Acting State Secretary Dean Acheson, he told reporters that Russia had deliberately engineered establishment of the Azerbaijan regime.

American officials, altho conceding that the history of Azerbaijan includes several incidents of revolutionary ferment, said there had been no widespread demands for complete autonomy until the present uprising was considerably advanced.

U. S. Differ with Reds

They added that the United States differed strongly with the Russian view that soviet officials had the right to bar regular Iranian government troops from Azerbaijan on the excuse that their presence would increase the disorders

Ala said he had asked Acheson to forward his government's request for a protest to State Secretary Byrnes, who is expected to discuss the Iranian situation at length with Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov and British Foreign Secretary Bevin at Moscow.

Report Iran Revolt Spreads

TEHRAN, Iran, Dec. 17 [Reuters]—The separatist movement sweeping northern Iran which has resulted in the establishment of an autonomous "national government" in Azerbaijan today was reported to have entered the adjoining Caspian seaboard province of Gilan.

Pressure of events is having its effect in Tehran, where observers see the beginning of a crisis in the Iranian cabinet.

PLEA TO STARK TO WARN KIMMEL DEC. 7 RELATED

Adm. Wilkinson Tells of Fear of Jap Attack

BY LAURENCE BURD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17—Vice Adm. Theodore S. Wilkinson, naval intelligence head in 1941, testified today that, more than four hours before Japan hit Pearl Harbor, he urged his naval chief, Adm. Stark, to send a special warning of an imminent Jap attack to Pacific fleet commanders, including Adm. Kimmel, at Hawaii.

Evidence before the congressional Pearl Harbor committee, which started hearing Adm. Wilkinson this morning, shows that no such naval warning was sent. An army warning, dispatched Dec. 7 by Gen. Marshall, chief of staff, with instructions to pass it on to fleet commanders, reached the army in Hawaii hours after the attack.

Wilkinson told the committee he and Comdr. A. H. McCollum, his assistant, went to the office of Adm. Stark, chief of naval operations, about 9:15 on the morning of Dec. 7. They took to Stark, he continued, a copy of the complete 14 part intercepted message from Tokyo instructing Jap envoys here to break off relations with the United States.

Showed Stark Message

The witness said McCollum had brought him the 14th or key part, about 9 a. m.

Wilkinson said they found Stark in his office when they arrived and showed him the entire decoded message.

"I pointed out to Adm. Stark the seriousness of the language," Wilkinson said, "and advised that the Pacific fleets be notified."

The witness explained that, even then, he did not expect an attack on Pearl Harbor, but did expect a Jap thrust momentarily in the South China sea, and hence thought the Pacific commanders, Adm. Kimmel at Hawaii and Adm. Thomas C. Hart, chief of the Asiatic fleet, should be warned.

Other Admirals Present

Questioned by Assistant Counsel Gerhard Gesell about the conference with Stark, Wilkinson said that also present were Admirals Royall E. Ingersoll, deputy chief of operations, and R. K. Turner, chief of naval war plans.

"My recollection is," he continued, "that Adm. Stark, after reading the 14 part message, tried to call Gen. Marshall."

Gesell observed that White House switchboard records show no call from Stark to Marshall until 12:10 p. m. that day, but show two calls from Marshall to Stark, at 11:30 and 11:40 a. m. The White House switchboard is used by cabinet members and high ranking military men.

[According to testimony already heard from Marshall, he, Marshall, drafted a warning to army commanders about 11:30 a. m. and called Stark, but Stark said he thought no warning was necessary. Marshall said that on his second call to Stark, the naval chief asked that a note to inform fleet commanders be included in the army warning.]

The White House was a clearing point for telephone calls between cabinet members, top army and navy personnel, and other high federal officials. They used this method for communicating with each other, presumably in the interest of keeping greater secrecy than could be obtained thru regular telephone channels.

Surprised at Jap Note

Wilkinson said that at the time of the 9:30 conference with Stark, those present did not have the intercepted message directing Jap envoys to deliver the war note to State Secretary Hull at 1 p. m. [Washington time] that afternoon. He explained he left Stark's office for about an hour and that when he returned about 10:30 or 10:40, they had the 1 p. m. note.

[Documents in evidence before the committee show that both the 14th part and the 1 p. m. message had been received and translated by our intelligence by 7 a. m., Dec. 7.]

He was surprised, he continued, to learn of this note, because "it indicated the Japs planned action earlier than we expected."

Questioned by Gesell, Wilkinson said he recalled no discussion at this second meeting with Stark of sending a warning to Kimmel and Hart.

Received Note Dec. 6

The witness said the first word he had of the interception of the first 13 parts of Japan's war note was about 9 p. m. on the evening of Dec. 6, when he was telephoned at his home by Lt. Comdr. Alwin D. Kramer of naval intelligence.

Kramer reported he had already delivered the message to Navy Secretary Knox, that Knox had made a phone call or two, presumably including one to Secretary Hull, and told Kramer to bring the note to the state department at 10 a. m. the next day, Wilkinson said.

Kramer also reported he had delivered the message to the White House but Wilkinson could not recall to what person there.

Ignored Jap Activity

In earlier questioning, Wilkinson admitted that as chief of intelligence, he did not attach any particular importance to Japan's request to Honolulu agents for detailed data on the exact location of our warships in Pearl Harbor.

The request was made Sept. 24, 1941, and translated by our army intelligence Oct. 9. Wilkinson said he was aware of it soon after he became chief of intelligence on Oct. 15, 1941.

Gesell observed that this vital message has since been interpreted as laying the groundwork for Japan's "bombing plot" on Pearl Harbor and asked him if he ever so construed it.

"I did not, I regret now," Wilkinson replied, "attach to the message any relation to Pearl Harbor as a possible bombing target.

Saw it as a 'Nicety'

"I mentioned it to some other naval officers and said, as I recall, that I regarded it as evidence of the nicety of Japanese intelligence."

The witness said he "understood" when he became intelligence chief, that contents of intercepted Jap messages should not be sent to Adm. Kimmel or other field commanders.

He said this policy had been established before he took office, on the theory that transmission of intercepts, or the gist of them, overseas, might allow the Japs to discover that we had broken their codes.

Jap Activities Related

Information that the Japanese were "particularly active" in reporting United States' fleet movements at Honolulu and on the west coast was officially reported to high naval officers in Washington as early as February, 1941, an exhibit placed before the committee disclosed.

This development was reported in a secret memorandum on Feb. 15, 1941, for Adm. R. K. Turner, then chief of naval war plans, by H. D. Bode, not identified, but apparently a subordinate of Turner.

Another confidential report by Adm. Wilkinson on Dec. 1, 1941, six days before the Pearl Harbor attack, predicted the then expected Jap war thrust would be into Thailand.

No Report to Kimmel

Wilkinson further reported in this paper that the "greater portion" of Jap carriers "remains in home waters," indicating that our naval intelligence and reconnaissance had failed to detect the departure of the carrier force that struck Hawaii.

The Wilkinson report was in the form of a fortnightly summary of "current national situations" in axis and South American nations, and was circulated, Wilkinson said, among about 100 naval officers in Washington. He said it did not go to Adm. Kimmel at Hawaii or other overseas commanders.

The prepared naval exhibits placed before the committee today included a series of naval intelligence estimates on Japan's actions and intentions from Feb. 15 to Dec. 1, 1941. No mention was contained in these documents of a possible Jap attack on Pearl Harbor.

LEADERS DEBATE FUTURE OF PROBE ON PEARL HARBOR

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17—Tempers flared again today in the congressional Pearl Harbor investigating committee and its leaders were uncertain about the future course of the inquiry, following the wholesale resignation last week of committee counsel.

Illness and the approaching holidays prevented a scheduled executive session of the committee as Sen. Barkley [D., Ky.] chairman, was forced to leave today's session with a reported temperature of 101 degrees. Sen. George [D., Ga.] already has gone home for the holidays.

Principal items on the committee's executive agenda are finding replacements for Committee Counsel William D. Mitchell and his three assistants who quit after protesting against lengthy questioning of witnesses, and a decision on continuing the life of the committee, now due to expire legally Jan. 3, 1946.

Barkley See Truman

Mitchell has agreed to remain with the committee for a short while in January to break in new counsel. Barkley also has threatened to resign but before leaving the committee room today, he said he had not yet made up his mind whether to resign. He conferred with President Truman this morning, but asserted the Pearl Harbor inquiry was not discussed.

Today's outbreak in the committee was touched off by the reading by Sen. Brewster [R., Me.] of a letter from his assistant, Percy L. Greaves Jr., former Republican national committee researcher, in which Greaves expressed regret for what Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.] had branded a "gratuitous insult" last week.

Lucas had charged Greaves chuckled at him when the senator interposed a comment during questioning of Gen. Marshall by Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.], Lucas questioned the propriety of senators having advisers sit with them at the committee table.

Smile Misconstrued

"I am sure," Greaves wrote Brewster, who was absent last week, "that the senator from Illinois misconstrued an unconscious and which I thought was a silent smile that went unnoticed by any one else. . . . There never was any intention on my part to insult or reflect on any members of the United States senate."

Apparently not satisfied with Greaves' explanation, Lucas declared he would bring the matter up again when the committee meets in executive session. "I intend to find out more about Mr. Greaves—also about two other gentlemen at these hearings who seem to be giving information to members," Lucas said.

Brewster told a reporter he thought an investigation could well be made of the background and motives of committee counsel. He said he had no information of what they were being paid or who hired them, other than that Mitchell and his first assistant, Gerhard Gesell were approved by the committee. Gesell is a former law partner of Dean Acheson, undersecretary of state.

TELLS OF PLANS FOR U.S. TO GIVE SHIPS TO CHINA

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 (AP)—Navy Secretary Forrestal revealed plans today to help China "establish and maintain" a navy which can contribute substantially to "maintenance of peace in the Pacific."

To that end, Forrestal asked congress for an act authorizing the President to turn over surplus American warships or other vessels to China. The ships could be given, sold, exchanged, or transferred on any terms "the President may deem proper."

The bill also would empower the President "to detail officers and enlisted men" of the navy and marines "to assist the republic of China in naval and maritime matters." These men would get their regular United States navy pay plus "such compensation and emoluments as may be offered" by China.

Dec. 18—13th Amendment Outlaws Slavery

"NEITHER slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction."

This 13th amendment to the Constitution, proclaimed 80 years ago today, swept away an evil institution which had cast its shadow over the Constitutional convention, had continually caused bitter controversies between the north and south over law enforcement and over the status of territories and prospective states, and had added immeasurably to the fury of the Civil war.

The war was begun over the issue of secession, rather than that of slavery, but as the conflict deepened and widened, it became obvious that the federal government would have to take the lead in settling the status of slavery once and for all. The Confiscation acts and the Emancipation proclamation had left the matter vague, for the slaves of many persons loyal to the Union were not affected and there was no assurance that the institution would not be revived.

The resolution looking toward an actual amendment to the Constitution to give slavery its death blow was passed by the senate April 8, 1864, by a vote of 38 to 6. Ten weeks later it failed in the house to obtain the necessary two-thirds vote, but in January, 1865, it passed 119 to 56.

By Dec. 18, 1865, when the amendment was proclaimed, three-fourths of the states, including eight of the former seceded states, had ratified.

ACCUSE 600,000 NAZI LEADERS AS WAR CRIMINALS

Produce Letter Bormann Wrote to Rosenberg

NUERNBERG, Germany, Dec. 17 (AP)—The United States prosecution plumbed the structure of the pyramided nazi political system today in an attempt to convict 600,000 "little fuehrers" of criminality, but doubts were raised that actual guilt reached that deep in what the American counsel called a "hierarchy of descending Caesars."

The doubt was cast by pointed comments from Justice Geoffrey Lawrence, presiding over the international war crimes tribunal trying 21 top nazis, and by the reported view of the British prosecution that the trial should not attempt to convict the bottom levels of the nazi political hierarchy.

United States Assistant Prosecutor Robert G. Storey of Dallas, Tex., opened this most controversial and difficult phase of the trial and Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief United States prosecutor, will present the final argument on why six nazi organizations should be ruled criminal and membership in them automatically a crime.

Many Now in Jails

Many of the 600,000 now are in allied jails "waiting the outcome of this war criminal trial," Col. Storey told the court.

If the United States venture is successful, it will mean the blanket conviction of the leadership corps of the National Socialist [Nazi] party, all members of which will be considered guilty in varying degrees.

Actually, Storey said, 600,000 is a conservative figure, for if all subordinate staff officers of the leaders were included, the total would reach 2,000,000.

Those Storey sought to convict included 41 gauleiters [provincial leaders]; 808 kreisleiters [county leaders]; 28,326 gruppenleiters [group leaders]; 89,378 zellenleiters [unit leaders], and 463,048 block leaders, plus the staff officers assigned them.

Storey said he would attempt to show the responsibility of the leadership corps as a whole for the plotted misdeeds of the National Socialist party, ranging from Jewish pogroms to the murder of captured allied airmen.

Quotes Bormann Letter

Twice Storey was halted by questions from Justice Lawrence. Storey quoted a letter from the missing Martin Bormann, Hitler deputy and reichsleiter who is being tried in absentia, to Reichsleiter Alfred Rosenberg, another defendant, urging inclusion in the nazi catechism of some of the 10 commandments plus some added nazi commandments. Lawrence interrupted to ask what that had to do with block leaders, the small fry Nazis who ruled 40 to 60 households each for the party.

Storey replied he could not hope to prove at each stage that all the leadership knew about each crime, but that the prosecution was attempting to show that crimes were committed at different levels within the party organization.

Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma (left) is escorted from army plane by military policeman after arrival in Manila, P. I., from Tokyo.

MANILA, Dec. 18 [Tuesday]—(AP)—Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma will be arraigned before an American military commission here tomorrow on charges involving the deaths of 67,000 American and Filipino prisoners of war.

Specifically the former Japanese commander in the Philippines is charged with responsibility for the death march of Bataan, in which 17,200 captured Americans and Filipinos died.

Also chalked up against him are brutalities and executions that took the lives of 4,831 Americans and 45,000 Filipinos between April and August of 1942 in the O'Donnell and Cabanatuan prison comps. Tomorrow Homma will be asked to plead guilty or innocent. His trial is expected to begin Jan. 7.

6 NAZIS ADMIT GUILT IN SOVIET WAR CRIMES CASE

MOSCOW, Dec. 17 (AP)—Six of the 10 Germans on trial before a soviet tribunal at Smolensk for war crimes confessed on the stand today that they had participated in atrocities.

Willy Krause was quoted by the Tass news agency as admitting taking part in punitive expeditions, of raping and beating Russian women, mass lootings and burning peasants' houses.

Kurt Haudiyan confessed that he hanged and shot Russians, robbed, raped, and killed girls, the news agency said. Fritz Henchke told of shooting Russian war prisoners. Willy Weiss said he gave orders to machine gun civilians including women and children. Eric Mueller admitted participating in a punitive expedition in which 50 persons were burned alive and Heinz Winkler confessed taking part in mass shootings and deportations of slave labor to Germany.

Hermann Made Harmless by British Army Experts

tory, and American recognition of Manchukuo.

Planned Celebration

The plan further agreed that America and Japan "will not position naval and air strength which would mutually threaten the other. When the agreement is reached in the Japanese-American negotiations the two nations will dispatch fleets to visit the other formally and celebrate the arrival of peace in the Pacific."

Konoye summoned a conference of cabinet and military chieftains when he received the plan on April 18.

"The general opinion," he wrote, was that "to accept this American proposal would be most suitable for the disposal of the China affair."

Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs Ohashi, altho agreeing with the idea, insisted on "postponement of action until Matsuoka returned from Europe."

Matsuoka returned on April 22. Konoye met him at the airport, intending to present the important plan at the psychological moment. But something went wrong.

ORDERS REMOVAL OF JAP JUDGE FOR TOO LIGHT A FINE

TOKYO, Dec. 17 (AP)—Gen. MacArthur today ordered the dismissal of Judge Takeo Ishiwara of the Kyoto District court for imposing an "unusually light sentence"—$13.33—on a former Japanese army captain charged with carrying arms for distribution to his disbanded command.

The government section of allied headquarters said the dismissal, the first of its kind, was for incompetence in sentencing offenders against allied directives.

Hirashi Kondo, a former technical captain in the Japanese army, had been arrested by a 6th army searching detail and accused of carrying seven hand grenades, a samurai sword, and a Japanese pistol. The case was referred to Kyoto police, with a warning the allies considered the offense "very grave."

Jap Communications Strike Aimed at Officials

TOKYO, Dec. 17—Employes of the Japanese government are striking for the first time in history. The postal, telegraph, and telephone employes of Shiogame City, all members of a union recently organized under the Japan labor federation, are demanding the resignation of high officials, plus a 50 per cent salary rise.

WOUNDED YANKS CLUBBED AT GI CAMP, 2 TESTIFY

Couldn't 'Lift Legs High Enough'

LONDON, Dec. 17 (AP)—Two soldiers testified at a court-martial today that they saw wounded American soldiers clubbed at the 10th reenforcement depot at Litchfield, Staffordshire, because they couldn't lift their legs high enough when ordered to march double time.

The defendant, Sgt. Judson H. Smith, Cumberland, Ky., provost sergeant at the depot, has denied that any troops were mistreated, and has been supported by Col. James A. Kilian, Highland Park, Ill., former commander of the depot. Eight other enlisted men and three officers face trial later on charges involving brutal treatment of the men.

[Col. James A. Kilian commanded the reënforcement depot from Nov. 11, 1942, to Jan. 18, 1945. In 1944 he received the Legion of Merit for his services there.]

Trial a "GI Nuernberg"

Capt. Earl J. Carroll, San Francisco, Cal., the prosecutor, said he was trying to show there was a plan to make Litchfield so tough in the last months of the war that soldiers would prefer combat to confinement there. He called the trial "the GI Nuernberg."

Carroll received permission to mark as a prosecution exhibit a medical report to the effect that a head blow may have caused the death of Pvt. Eril Bolton, a Negro, two days after he left the depot last March.

"Beaten After Operation"

Pvt. Henry Petras, Newark, N. J., a witness, said he was beaten across the legs and back by a guard known as The Move before he had recovered from an appendectomy.

Another soldier told of hearing a guard threaten to kill a Negro soldier the guard was beating. A third witness told of punishments such as being forced to clean a floor with a toothbrush, or removing and replacing a hat 5,000 times.

TOKYO, Dec. 17 (AP)—Japanese shipyards operating on a full-time basis have under construction 122 steel ships and 1,356 wooden vessels, allied headquarters announced today. The rebuilt merchant fleet will be geared to support a "minimum Japanese economy." From their own shipyards the Japanese have been ordered to produce craft to meet harbor requirements, the fishing industry, the repatriation program and a merchant fleet to supply the nation with vital imports.

SENATORS RIP UNRRA, BUT VOTE IT 1.3 BILLIONS

Relief Tragedy Laid at Democrats' Door

BY WILLIAM MOORE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17—Democrats and Republicans united in denouncing the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration in the senate today.

Then they united in voting UNRRA a billion 350 million dollars for global relief—duplicating the original authorization, which internationalists had promised would be the only one asked to feed and clothe the needy of war stricken nations.

Sen. Taft [R., O.] laid the blame for the tragedy of UNRRA squarely upon the Democratic administration and Chairman Connally [D., Tex.] of the senate foreign relations committee.

Too Late to Change

"If the chairman had been on the job six months ago," Taft said, "he would have seen that we were prepared to set up an American organization when UNRRA's money ran out."

Taft agreed with Connally and other administration leaders, however, that it is now too late to establish an American relief organization to spend American money in world relief. Forty-five other nations now share the spending with the United States, altho UNRRA's sponsors concede that the United States foots 71 per cent of the bill and critics say the American contribution is much greater.

Recalls Hoover's Work

Taft was one of the senators who opposed from the beginning the plan to place American giving in the hands of foreigners who outvote the United States 45 to one.

Taft recalled that he was secretary of the American organization which administered American relief under Herbert Hoover after the last war. That organization, he said, was feeding and clothing Europe's needy three months after he and Hoover sailed from the United States.

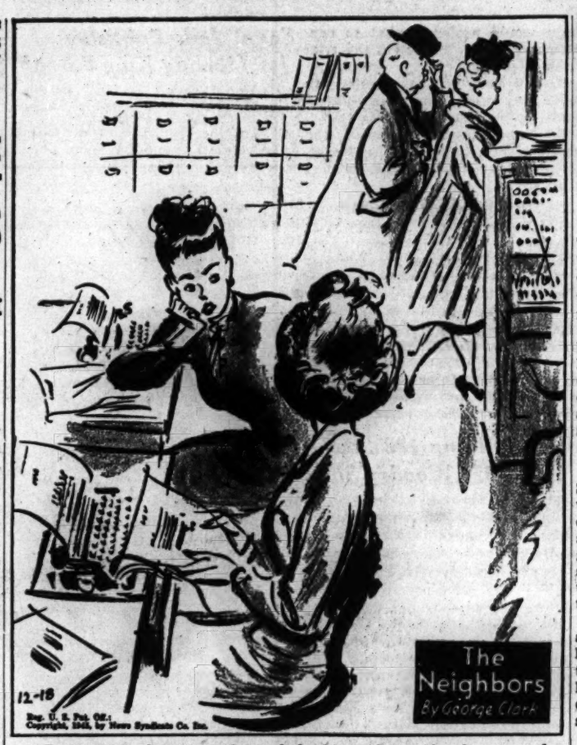
Since White Russia and the Ukraine, so-called republics which are soviet puppets, are to receive UNRRA benefits, senators expressed fear that Russia would take the supplies intended for these countries and use them as she sees fit.

Roll Call Is Refused

Connally frankly admitted that those who opposed establishment of an international organization to administer American charity had been right. Not a speaker defended UNRRA against charges of inefficiency. The burden of the argument, even from the internationalists, was that UNRRA was a mistake but it was now too late to correct and more money was essential to keep war victims from starving.

The bill passed today was only an authorization, already passed by the house. The senate, nevertheless, had anticipated senate passage and appropriated 750 million of the money last Friday, at the urging of President Truman.

Republicans emphasized today that they would vote for the bill on the administration's recommendation, and then hold the administration responsible for UNRRA's future acts.



"Every year she comes in to help him select gifts for us and it's always the same old bottle of toilet water."

LEGALIZED PARIS BROTHELS TO BE SHUT BY POLICE

Chief Tells Council His Men Can Do It

BY DAVID DARRAH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Dec. 17—The notorious bordellos of Paris, which had a billion franc annual turnover and some of whose pre-war clients wore crowns, were doomed to extinction today. Charles Luizet, prefect of police, told the Paris municipal council his men would close all houses of legalized prostitution in the capital. Paris is said to have some 5,000 legalized and clandestine brothels.

The council has been debating doing away with licensed prostitution for several days as a result of a campaign launched against red light houses by Mme. Marthe Richard, member of the council and former wife of Thomas Compton, a Rockefeller Foundation executive who died in Europe 17 years ago.

Active in Two Wars

Mme. Richard, known for her intelligence work against the Germans in both wars, won wide support for her crusade.

When her proposal to abolish legalized prostitution "despite political and economic opposition" was originally brought up in the council it was favored in principle, but the council decided that Police Chief Luizet would have to be consulted first on whether enforcement of the closing order could be carried out. Luizet's answer was that it could and would be.

Centers of Espionage

Mme. Richard said she would not rest till "Paris is cleansed of these stinking sewers which are a shame to the world and our country." She charged that the houses of prostitution had been centers of espionage as well as vice during the German occupation. She said girls were kidnaped in these houses and taken to Germany to be placed in military brothels.

The question of brothels came up before American army authorities a year ago. All red light houses were declared off limits. They were carefully watched by military police especially after the venereal disease rate started rising.

Back to Prison

Walter Rich in Criminal court building yesterday.

A fugitive convict for 13 years, Walter Rich, 38, of 10945 Michigan av., and his wife, Mabel, 38, blamed another woman yesterday for "turning him in" as he was taken back to Mansfield, O., to finish serving a 1 to 15 year reformatory sentence for the theft of a calf in 1931. Rich, then known as Lester Wallace, escaped in 1932.

"If you had stayed away from Marie, you wouldn't have been in all this trouble," his wife told him. Rich said the woman he called Marie "turned me in."

Rich, who said he had not eaten in three days before he stole the calf, which he sold for $27, was married after he escaped from the reformatory and was employed as a millwright by the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company at 11001 Cottage Grove av. Police received an anonymous letter last Thursday that Rich was a fugitive.

SENATE BIDS U. S. HELP JEWS GET INTO PALESTINE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 (AP)—The senate formally called on the United States today to use its "good offices" with Great Britain toward the opening of Palestine to free entry of Jews.

It passed, on a voice vote, a resolution by Senators Wagner [D.-N. Y.] and Taft [R., O.] favoring establishment of Palestine as "a democratic commonwealth in which all men, regardless of race or creed, shall have equal rights."

Rejects Hart's Plan

It rejected an amendement by Sen. Hart [R., Conn.] to provide for working out the problem with other nations—including the Arab states—as well as Britain. Hart argued there was danger of bloodshed if the Arabs thought too extreme measures were being undertaken.

President Truman several months ago asked Great Britain, which holds a mandate over Palestine, to permit the entry of 100,000 homeless Jews. This was turned down and instead a commission was set up to study the whole question.

Connally Only Objector

Chairman Connally [D., Tex.], who was the lone "no" man in a 17 to 1 foreign relations committee vote approving the resolution, told the senate:

"The President doesn't want this resolution passed. He told me on the telephone and I told the committee. He told me, 'I do not regard it as advisable. I don't want to see any sort of resolution enacted until this commission has completed its inquiry and reported back.' The secretary of state does not want it at this time."

WAUKEGAN ASKS: MAINTAIN BASE AT GREAT LAKES

A resolution demanding that the Great Lakes Naval Training center be maintained as a strong inland base was adopted unanimously by the Waukegan city council last night after such action had been suggested by Mayor Frank G. Wallin. The resolution will be forwarded to Illinois' senators and congressmen.

Reports from Washington, D. C., recently said that a board of admirals would vote on a proposal to strip the station to 1,000 officers and men and a small radar station.

Mayor Wallin asserted the midwest furnished 44 per cent of the naval recruits in World War II, and added, "We owe it to the 5,000 people of our own city who took part in the recent war to make every effort to see that Great Lakes be maintained as a working station."

DELAY SERVICE PROMOTIONS, TRUMAN ASKS

Urges Congress Wait on Merger Bill

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 (AP)—President Truman will send to congress, probably on Wednesday, his long awaited recommendations on the proposal to unify the military services, the White House announced today.

Meanwhile, the President vetoed a bill which would have given the rank of vice admiral to chiefs of naval bureaus and the rank of rear admiral to assistant chiefs.

His veto message said that this matter "should await decision by the congress on the matter of the organization and composition of our whole post-war military establishment and consideration of the problem of suitable rank for higher commands and staff assignments in the ground, sea, and air forces."

Somervell Testifies

The senate military committee proceeded with hearings on the army-navy merger proposal. Gen. Somervell, chief of the army service forces, testified that unification would eliminate "wasteful" competition between the services and "unnecessary duplications."

Somervell estimated that 25 per cent or more could have been saved on military construction costs during the war if the war and navy departments had been combined.

Somervell also cited these cases of "duplications, overlappings, and conflicts," which he said might have been avoided.

A shipyard had contracts for navy tugs and army towboats. Both services sent in expediters and the conflict slowed down both programs.

Tells of Towel Supplies

The navy purchased towels when the army had an excess supply.

"At Fort Sheridan, Ill., the army maintains a sizeable separation center only 10 miles from the navy's important Great Lakes separation point."

Army engineers tied up all construction lumber in 1942 and the navy "dry dock construction was retarded."

The marines developed a better and cheaper herringbone twill but the army "was unaware" of it.

Identical army and navy supply items were listed under different names with resulting confusion.

Army and navy supply depots 10 miles apart in Utah competed for critical labor with the navy paying $1.02 an hour and the army $1.16.

The army put three men in a Pullman section and the navy two. An order in July, 1945, resulted in one-third reduction of navy Pullman requirements that could have been reduced earlier.

TRUMAN TO GET PLAN CREATING A U.S. 'GESTAPO'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17—A master plan for the creation of an all-powerful intelligence service to spy on the post-war world is about to be placed on the desk of President Truman, it was learned today.

Early congressional reaction to the plan was not favorable. It was first proposed by Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan, head of the office of strategic services.

When the Donovan plan to spy on America's neighbors thruout the world for the purpose of formulating strategy and foreign policy was disclosed by THE TRIBUNE last February, it was denounced in congress as smacking of the nazi Gestapo and the NKVD, the terror inspiring soviet secret police.

Donovan proposed to create a general intelligence service which would outrank military and naval intelligence.

The plan to be placed on Mr. Truman's desk is an adaptation of the Donovan program worked out largely by Col. Alfred McCormock, whom Donovan had selected as his successor before OSS was demobilized.

VOTES TO RETURN 300,000 BODIES OF U.S. WAR DEAD

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 (AP)—Legislation directing the war department to return for burial in this country an estimated 300,000 bodies of Americans killed abroad was passed unanimously by the house and sent to the senate.

The bodies to be returned are those of service men and civilians whose death since Sept. 16, 1940, was directly attributable to the war or to government service, and whose next of kin desire their return. They will be reburied in national cemeteries or in places chosen by relatives.

Rep. Sikes [D., Fla.], who handled the bill for the military committee, estimated at $700 the cost of each reburial, including transportation.

GIRL, 8, GETS HER GIFT FROM ADMIRAL SANTA

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 17 (AP)—The letter Maurine Roesken, 8, sent to Adm. Daniel E. Barbey, asking him to send her sailor father home for Christmas, paid off today.

Specialist Maurice Roesken, 36, stepped off a train this afternoon after a 10,000 mile boat and rail trip from Shanghai and Maurine climbed all over him. The little girl had addressed the admiral as "Santa Claus" and told him, "I want you to send my daddy home fore Christmest. Because he is too old in the navy." She added she had seen the admiral's picture and thought he was handsome.

Maurine said her father brought her some Russian boots, some toys, and a sailor hat. What did her father think about her letter to the admiral, she was asked. "Daddy thought that was fine!" Maurine said.

FRATER RAMS BRIDGE; BOSTON TRAFFIC HALTED

Boston, Mass., Dec. 17 (AP)—The frater John Hathorn, laden with 10,000 tons of grain, rammed the high bridge in Charlestown with such force today that a section of the structure fell into the harbor and the bridge was put out of commission. All traffic over the bridge, including the passage of Boston elevated railway trains, was halted.

DR. LYONS' WIFE GIVEN DIVORCE FOR DESERTION

Judge John A. Sbarbaro in Superior court yesterday granted a divorce to Mrs. Alice Lyons of the Stevens hotel from Dr. Horace R. Lyons, ear, nose, and throat specialist.

Mrs. Lyons originally had sought separate maintenance and her suit was upheld by a jury in Judge Sbarbaro's court after a 10 day trial marked by frequent flareups. The jury simultaneously held against Dr. Lyons' cross-complaint for divorce.

Yesterday's action was taken on an amended complaint, under which Mrs. Lyons sought a divorce. She charged her husband with deserting her April 23, 1944. Her witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Allen Ripley of 60 E. Scott st.

Altho terms of a property settlement were not disclosed in court, it was reported that Mrs. Lyons received $57,500 in lieu of future allmony and for attorneys' fees, and sole possession of the couple's Lake Geneva home, valued variously at $40,000 to $60,000.

12 MILLION GIs GET TESTIMONIAL OF APPRECIATION

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 [Special]—Official testimonials of appreciation are being sent to the 12 million men and women who served in United States military forces during World War 11.

The testimonials, which bear the Presidential seal and signature of President Truman are being sent as an expression of gratitude from the nation for war service. The testimonial reads:

"To you who answered the call of your country and served in its armed forces to bring about the total defeat of the enemy, I extend the heartfelt thanks of a grateful nation. As one of the nation's finest, you undertook the most severe task one can be called upon to perform. Because you demonstrated the fortitude, resourcefulness and calm judgment necessary to carry out that task, we now look to you for leadership and example in further exalting our country in peace."

Lists Stipulations for Union Bargaining

the line of a Ford Motor company demand for "company security."

Ford demanded that the union pay a $5 a day fine for each worker taking part in illegal stoppages. The union countered with a proposal for fines of $3 for the first offense and $5 for subsequent contract violations, the money to be deducted from the offender's pay check. The proposal still is under discussion.

Postponed until tomorrow was a scheduled meeting of union and Ford representatives to discuss further a 30 per cent wage rate increase demand and contract revisions.

Body Plant Closes

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 17 (AP) — John Weiland, manager of the Nash Kelvinator Seaman body plant here, said that a strike-caused glass shortage resulted today in the shutdown of most of the plant's automobile body production.

Weiland said the shortage was caused by a strike at the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company at Pittsburgh, Pa. The shutdown forced the layoff of 2,100 Seaman workers, the manager said. The Seaman plant is the sole supplier of bodies for Nash automobiles.

Weiland said the shutdown would not result in an immediate production curtailment at the Nash assembly plant at Kenosha, Wis., because of a considerable backlog of bodies.

PICKET WAR LOOMS

Flint, Mich., Dec. 17 [Special]—State troopers and local authorities were alerted tonight to be ready for action tomorrow morning when returning office workers at General Motors' AC Sparkplug plant will pass thru a picket line which was broken today by a flying wedge of policemen.

Tho contradictory statements obscured the forming picture, it was agreed the situation was highly volatile. Various representatives of the CIO-United Automobile Workers predicted that from 1,000 to 10,000 pickets will be on hand, and they disagreed as to whether returning employes will be permitted to pass.

Combustible prospects generated from defeat of the pickets today when local policemen, lining up in the old football wedge formation, smashed thru their thin line to lead 500 clerical workers into the plant.

By Weight of Numbers

By sheer weight of numbers a phalanx of 30 policemen opened a hole in the line. Surprised strikers were scattered by the rush. They reformed and tried to make a stand, but were pushed aside again. The policemen formed two solid lines which left a five foot wide alley for the workers to go thru.

Pickets jeered both policemen and returning workers, calling the former "strike breakers" and the employes "scabs." Jack Holt, regional director of the CIO-UAW, threatened: "You cracked our 25 man line. We'll have 10,000 pickets here tomorrow. Let's see what you can do with that."

Reports that union officials had issued a call to all UAW members in the immediate area to assemble at the sparkplug plant for picket duty could not be traced to any official, but all asserted, "There will be substantial picket lines at the plant tomorrow morning."

Agree on Large Numbers

"We'll ring the entire main plant with pickets," Holt said.

Charles Lewis, UAW international representative in Flint, and Archie Myers, president of the Sparkplug local, agreed that pickets will be out in large numbers.

Police Chief James T. Byers, after a lengthy conference with local union officials, said they told him about 1,000 pickets will be on hand tomorrow but that they will not attempt to prevent office employes from entering the plant. He said he did not plan to request state police aid but confirmed that troopers are standing by.

Meantime, international officers in Detroit tried to bring pressure on the local to agree to admit salaried workers without trouble. The Detroit office announced that locals are being instructed to admit salaried employes.

Hasn't Heard of It

Meyers said, "I haven't heard of any such plans." The Flint local has been known for its independent action.

As a result of the police aid in cracking the picket line, Robert Carter, president of the CIO-Greater Flint Industrial Union council, announced he would ask revocation of the police department's charter in local 507 of the CIO State, County and Municipal Workers of America union. The union asserts 80 per cent of Flint policemen are members of the CIO organization.

VET LOSES APPEAL FOR JOBLESS PAY IN MOTORS STRIKE

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 17 [Special]—John E. Cody, 26, veteran of World War II., and father of three children, today lost a test case appeal for compensation for his unemployment resulting from the strike at General Motors' AC Spark Plug plant in Flint, where he was a production worker.

Cody worked six weeks at his old job, after returning from military service, and then was made idle by the strike, which began Nov. 21. He is not a member of the striking union and did not vote for the strike.

When he was denied compensation at the Flint office of the Michigan unemployment compensation commission, an appeal was filed in his behalf by the state office of veterans affairs, which said 14,000 other Michigan veterans are similarly affected by the strike. Referee Samuel Sternberg, in denying Cody benefits, suggested that congress waive the labor dispute qualification of the GI bill of rights, which holds that veterans made idle by a labor dispute may not draw jobless compensation.

BANDIT THEORY SUGGESTED IN BOULTON DEATH

The man who fatally stabbed Jay Boulton Jr., 45, of 677 N. Clark st. early Sunday may have been a civilian who took him for a holdup man, a witness said at the inquest yesterday.

Edward Muhlenbaker, 59 W. Huron st., said that shortly before Boulton was found dead he [Muhlenbaker] ran from his home to help a man struggling against a robber. The bandit fled. The rescued victim showed a pocket knife and said he intended using it, the witness said. The hearing was continued to Dec. 28 for further investigation.

Earlier, the stabbing had been attributed to a tavern quarrel between Boulton and his two drinking companions, Mrs. Jacqueline Brandenberg, 22, an Indian, and Leo Galdes, 32, of 3243 Parnell av. They were at the inquest but did not testify.

ARREST STRIKER CHARGED WITH LABOR SLUGGING

Joseph Kula, 47, of 2942 N. Kilbourn av., a machinist on strike, was arrested yesterday and charged with slugging a fellow worker who had joined a back to work movement. The arrest was made by Capt. George Barnes of the labor detail on complaint of George N. Burdick, 55, of 4753 Maypole av., who said Kula attacked him.

Kula and Burdick were employed by the D. O. James Manufacturing company, gear cutters, at 1140 Monroe st. A strike has been on among the 400 employes since Nov. 19.

Some 2,000 office workers yesterday passed thru picket lines around the plant of the Electro-Motive division of General Motors corporation at McCook, where a strike has been operative since Nov. 21.

CHICAGO TOPS ALL CITIES IN FUND CAMPAIGN

Chicago raised 87 per cent of its $13,040,700 goal in the Community and War Fund campaign just concluded, 500 drive workers in the Palmer House were told last night by drive officials. This is 4 per cent above the average for other cities. Total raised here was $11,310,609. Clarence B. Randall, vice chairman of the drive, said Chicago raised more money for the war fund than any other city in the nation.

Of the total collected, 36 per cent goes to the Community fund, 29 per cent to the United Service organizations and other service groups, and 27 per cent to war sufferers in Europe and in the Pacific area. Campaign costs take 3 per cent and administrative expenses 1 per cent. Four per cent is set aside as a reserve.

The women's special gifts division raised $341,936, or 104 per cent of its quota; business division, $9,302,646, or 91 per cent; city division, $761,351, or 76 cent; suburban division, $694,294, or 82 per cent, and special events division, $536,850, or 82 per cent.

DAMAGES OF $2,500 CAUSED BY FIRE ON RIVER SALVAGE BOAT

Fire resulting from an overheated stove in the cabin caused damage estimated at $2,500 last night on a salvage boat belonging to the J. C. Hoskins Coal and Dock corporation, moored just east of the Outer dr. bridge on the north bank of the river.

Damage was confined to the cabin and upper deck. Charles Schmidt, a watchman who lives on the boat, had gone ashore a short time before. His clothing and other personal possessions were destroyed.

The fire department was summoned by John Northrup, bridge tender of the Outer dr. bridge, who observed the flames from the bridge tower. The fire boat Fred Busse stood by while firemen extinguished the blaze.

IDENTIFY CLINE AS ARRANGER FOR CREMATION

Macon, Ga., Dec. 17 [Special]—Solicitor General Charles H. Garrett said today that an attendant at Hart's mortuary here has identified a photograph of Alfred Leonard Cline, murder suspect held in San Francisco, as the person who arranged under the name of "F. A. Klein" for the cremation of a woman in February, 1944.

Garrett did not reveal the name of the attendant but said the identification was positive. The woman cremated here died Feb. 21, 1944, in a local hotel under the name of Mrs. Alma Willa Carter of San Francisco.

Had Adjoining Room

Garrett said he has examined registration records at the hotel and that Mrs. Carter's name was entered on a registration card in a woman's handwriting on Feb. 18. On the same day, he said, an adjoining room was assigned to a man who registered as F. A. Klein.

The woman who died under the name of Mrs. Carter is believed by San Francisco prosecuting authorities to have been Mrs. Alice W. Carpenter of St. Petersburg, Fla., widow who left her home with Cline early in February of that year. Garrett said handwriting comparisons will be sought with specimens of Cline's writing and that of Mrs. Carpenter.

Metal in Ashes

The ashes of the woman cremated as Mrs. Carter, which have remained unclaimed at the mortuary, were sifted by police today, Garrett said, and particles of metal which may be teeth fillings were recovered.

These particles will be sent to Dr. J. J. Hodges, St. Petersburg, Fla., dentist, who did dental work for Mrs. Carpenter, Garrett said.

SAILOR, 18, GETS 50 YEARS FOR RAPE OF NURSE

A jury in the Circuit court at Waukegan last night found Ernest Hubert Pugh Jr., 18, a sailor at Great Lakes, guilty of raping a 20 year old student nurse in Waukegan last Aug. 10, and fixed his punishment at 50 years in the penitentiary.

Ernest H. Pugh Jr.

Pugh, chewing gum, heard the verdict stolidly. His mother, Mrs. Rugh Pugh, 41, of 1610 N. Mason av., Chicago, who had left the courtroom for a few minutes to buy some aspirin, wept when she returned and learned of the verdict.

Cecil Cass, defense attorney, received permission to file a written motion for a new trial within 10 days. He said if the motion is denied by Judge Ralph J. Dady he plans an appeal to the state Supreme court on the ground that the court erred in not permitting him to argue the point of insanity.

The jury took four ballots. Pugh was found guilty on the first. The other three ballots were required to fix the punishment.

Estonian Child Cries; Happy Over America

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 17 [Special]—Tears, which her mariner father said were tears of happiness, streamed down the cheeks of a 3 year old girl today as she rode down this city's main street in an army truck.

"She wants to know is this really America," explained the father, Capt. Harry Pahlberg, 33, of the Estonian merchant marine, who brought his daughter, wife, and mother and 12 other Estonian citizens here from Sweden in a 33 foot sail boat. "I tell her, yes, this is America, and then she cries. She has never known such happiness."

The 16 Estonian refugees reached port in their tiny craft at Little Creek, near here, Saturday after a 129 day voyage from Sweden which they undertook rather than obey a Swedish government order to return to Estonia, now under Russian rule.

Have No Visas

They came without visas and the United States immigration service today began struggling with the problem of what to do with them. Adults in the party asserted they never will return to Estonia and that if denied sanctuary in this country they will go back to the sea and seek haven elsewhere.

All members of the party fled Estonia at various times in 1942 and 1943, when Germans occupied their country, and took refuge in Sweden. When the order to return to Estonia came this summer they pooled their resources, bought their diminutive vessel, and sailed from Stockholm Aug. 9.

Immigration officers gave them a hearing behind closed doors today. Recommendations will go to the Philadelphia office. Adverse rulings are appealable to the attorney general in Washington.

Five adult male members of the party begged officers to keep their names secret, stating they feared reprisals by the Russians against members of their families still in Estonia.

Several Children in Party

Capt. Pahlberg's wife is Ellen, 24, and his daughter, Juta, 3. His mother, Mrs. Minna Pahlberg, is 61. Others in the party are Arvid Kuun, 38, also an Estonian merchant marine captain, who served as mate on the voyage; his wife, Nora, 33, their three children, Aimi, 10; Inga, 7, and Ulla, 3; Miss Maia Andre, 27, and Miss Andre's mother, Mrs. Juliane Altenbrun, 58.

The refugees tasted American hospitality after they had thawed themselves out and eaten a hot meal at the army mine base at Little Creek. Women and children were put up at the U. S. O. headquarters here and the men at the army base officers' club.

Seafaring men marveled as they heard details of the voyage and called it a brilliant feat of navigation. Capt. Pahlberg's navigation aids were a sextant, a few charts and a radio receiving set to tell him the time of day.

"If they won't let us stay here, we'll go on," Capt. Pahlberg said. He added they might try Cuba or Mexico or might head for New Zealand or Australia. He said his father is a resident of Lakewood, N. J., and that he hopes to get in contact with him.

ATTACKER WHOM WOMAN TRAPPED GETS 3 TO 6 YEARS

Ralph Stanover, 27, of 2840 Normal av., who was arrested Nov. 17 when he followed Mrs. Helen Hasselbrink, 38, mother of three children, to her apartment at 2651 Burling st., was sentenced to three to six years in the penitentiary yesterday by Judge Julius H. Miner in Criminal court on a charge of attempted rape.

Mrs. Hasselbrink lured Stanover to her apartment after he seized her in the 700 block on Wrightwood av. and attempted to drag her into an alley. Her husband, Arthur, was home and collared Stanover.

Judge Miner praised Mrs. Hasselbrink's "fine presence of mind." Stanover, who had a dishonorable discharge from the navy, pleaded that he had received a Presidential unit citation. "Even a Presidential citation does not give any one the right to assault a woman," the court said. "This is one type of crime that cannot be stopped by coddling defendants."

Crew Shortage Delays Ships

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 (AP)—A shortage of crews is delaying the sailing of 60 ships from American ports, the war shipping administration said tonight. Six troop ships are among those being held up. To man the vessels, WSA said in a statement, the merchant marine needs 1,000 officers and 10,000 men immediately.

WILLING TO DEAL WITH CHINA REDS, CHUNGKING VIEW

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 17 (AP)—Chinese government willingness to make a deal with the Communists was expressed by a high official today. President Truman's declaration of American policy toward China and the favorably spoken reaction to it continued to be the top news.

K. C. Wu, government minister of information, said that he believed the government would agree to form a coalition with the Communists provided they would abolish autonomous armies and cease independent control of territory, but that the Communists still wanted to retain both.

Wu said President Truman's statement, urging the rivals to settle their differences and create a united China in order to get American aid, was not regarded here as a warning. President Truman's stated objectives are identical with those of the central government, Wu asserted.

Authoritative American sources in Peiping disclosed that the United States army air transport command [ATC] would fly government troops into Mukden and Harbin, important cities of Manchuria.

DENIES ZIGZAG COURSE BALKS SUB ATTACKS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 (AP)—The defense in the court martial of Capt. Charles B. McVay III. offered testimony today to discount the effectiveness of zigzagging to evade submarine attack.

Capt. McVay, skipper of the heavy cruiser Indianapolis, is being tried on charges of negligence and inefficiency in the loss of the ship last July 30 while en route from Guam to Leyte. The charge of negligence is based specifically on alleged failure to maintain a zigzag course thru waters where enemy submarines might be encountered.

The witness was Capt. Glynn R. Donaho, whose submarine in seven war patrols made 23 consecutive successful attacks on enemy shipping, sinking or damaging 28 ships totaling 200,000 tons. Capt. Donaho told the court zigzagging was effective only if the target ship makes a radical change of course after the torpedoes are fired. Submarine officers anticipate zigzagging by the target ship as a matter of course, he said, and if the target ship makes a change of course before the torpedoes are fired, attack is delayed only a matter of seconds to permit new calculations.

GI HAS HIS SAY TO BIG BOYS IN BAR'S 21ST SHOW

Two More Performances on Schedule

BY ROBERT HOWARD

The troubles of a returning GI, who gets embroiled in banter and song with some of the biggest men in public life, furnish the central theme of "Christmas Spirits," the 21st annual fun show of the Chicago Bar association, which opened its three performance run last night in the Terrace Casino of the Morrison hotel.

The cast, numbering 50 lawyers and 23 judges, upholds the association's reputation for producing a hilarious and fast moving revue. The satire and music, interspersed with belly laughs, will be repeated tonight and tomorrow nights.

Millionth Soldier Back

The central character, played by Edward Hershenson, is Pvt. Patrick Cohen, the one millionth Chicagoland soldier to return to civilian life. Several scenes after Mayor Kelly [L. Duncan Lloyd] helps welcome him home, he is elected president of the Bar association. That seems logical on the ground that Cohen was a cook in the army and that "this association is nothing but a glorified luncheon club." As the revue progresses, he is super chief justice of the war trials court, which leads to impersonations of Stalin, Attlee, Tojo, Goering, et al, by the lawyer actors.

Here is a sample of dialog skipping all over the map:

GOERING—I object. Dot is contrary to der Geneva convention.

COHEN—That's one convention I missed.

GEN. PATTON—Furthermore, it's unconstitutional.

Improvise on Rules

COHEN [to Patton]—O, don't be a Republican. This is just like the Municipal court. We make our own rules as we go along.

John G. Black, former president of the association, makes his 21st annual appearance in the cast. His role is that of J. Frank Dammitt, legal light and friend of A. Portly Surcharge [John J. Sharon], a banker.

Elliott Roosevelt [Thomas I. Underwood] comes in with John A. Hartford [John G. Birks] and Jesse Jones [Glenn G. Paxton] and is given a loan by Surcharge from a special trust fund, set aside for any purpose which might embarrass the Democratic party.

Emphasize Recent Events

The revue as usual gives recognition to events of the last year, including the legislative program sponsored jointly by Gov. Green [Robert G. Macdonald] and Mayor Kelly. Their duet, "The New Combination," was sung to the tune of "Come to the Fair":

The pols in the city are loyal to Ed,
Heigh-ho! Kelly and Green!
The voters downstate favor Dwight H. instead,
Heigh-ho! Kelly and Green!
If you study our records it's easy to see
On most basic issues we're apt to agree,
So it's let's go
Whether or no
And all vote for this new combination.
So pin on your badges for Dwight H. and Ed
With a heigh-ho! Kelly and Green!

HUNGER STRIKE WIFE, 17, SUED BY MATE AS CRUEL

Mrs. Betty Lou Camm Dice, 17, who went on a hunger strike in Lake county jail last May when her parents interrupted her honeymoon with Harold S. Dice, 38, was sued for divorce yesterday.

Mrs. Betty Lou Dice

Dice, employe of a Waukegan auto body shop, who married the girl in an elopement to Woodstock, Ill., last May 24, charges his bride with cruelty. When his bride's parents found the couple living in the Plaza hotel, 215 Madison st., Waukegan, and filed charges against Dice of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, and charged their daughter with delinquency, Dice told reporters, "Our love will never cool."

In his divorce petition, he charges Betty slapped him and kicked his shins on May 25, the day after their marriage, and that she slapped him on May 26.

Charges against both Dice and his bride were dismissed last June 13, and Mrs. Dice was released to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Camm, 5389 Bowmanville av., Chicago.

Proposed Grant Park Amphitheater

How amphitheater will look with hinged roof open during fair weather.

Amphitheater with roof closed to cover 10,000 seats.

Would Seat 25,000

Plans for an outdoor amphitheater in Grant park in a setting to demand world-wide attention were announced yesterday by the park district commissioners. Design of the stage structure and a seating arrangement for 25,000 has been completed, and the project is ready for inclusion in the 1946 budget.

The stage will be equipped for open air symphony concerts, opera, drama pageants, and other spectacles. Over the platform and also covering 10,000 seats, will be a horizontal roof formed of two huge wedge shaped parts. These will hinge on a pillar and will be opened or closed, according to the weather.

Ralph Burke, assistant to the president of the park district, estimated the total cost would be $1,500,000. The tentative appropriation set up in the 1946 budget, which will be acted on next week, is $652,562.

CHARGES COURT WRITES SOCIAL VIEWS INTO LAW

Bar Head Hits Legal 'Double Talk'

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 17 [Special]—David A. Simmons of Houston, Tex., president of the American Bar association, addressing the opening session of the associaton's annual meeting today, charged United States Supreme court justices with reading their personal, political, social and economic theories into the law by legal "double talk."

Defining constitutional and statute law, he said: "The function of the judge is to determine what that law is, and to apply it to the facts in the case before him, and he is no judge but a partisan if he changes either the law or the facts to suit his own notions or those of any one else."

Simmons recalled that Chief Justice Edward Douglass White, in his 27 years on the Supreme court, wrote 700 majority opinions, 10 concurring opinions and only 33 dissents. He was, the speaker said, "a great judge who recognized that the first principle in the supremacy of law was certainty."

Reasonable Certainty

"He found it necessary to dissent in less than 5 per cent of his opinions," he added. "Lawyers could advise their clients as to applicable rules of law with reasonable certainty.

"In 1943 in the Supreme court of the United States dissents were filed against 44 per cent of the opinions of the court; in 1944 there were dissenting opinions in 63 per cent of the cases, and during the last term of the court there were almost as many dissents or qualified concurrences as there were majority opinions.

"Is the applicable rule of law really so difficult to ascertain? Or is each judge seeking to extract from the atmosphere about him, or from his own personal sense of justice—social or otherwise—his own notion of equity, which he writes into the law?"

Urges Uniformity

Simmons declared that "if the Constitution and laws are to have any meaning, their interpretation must be uniform when applied to the same facts and circumstances, irrespective of the persons before the court."

Simmons urged that the atomic bomb be made available to the united nations organization security council; condemned the use of the veto in the UNO; appealed for free discussion as the first step toward industrial peace and warned that unless law replaces burocracy the nation will find itself with "bargaining rather than adjudictation."

In an address at tonight's session, F. P. Brais, past president of the Canadian Bar association, said that the lawyer, "individually and collectively," should share responsibility for seeing "that the history of the first great war and its aftermath are never forgotten."

$24,000 FORTUNE OF LANGE FOUND; MYSTERY GROWS

An added element of mystery was injected into the slaying Wednesday night of Lawrence A. Lange, 36, in his perfumed apartment at 3148 Wilson av., with the discovery late yesterday of securities valued in excess of $20,000, which were owned by Lange. A bank book showing a balance of more than $4,000 in the Harris Trust & Savings bank also was found.

The securities and bank book were in the private safe of Charles H. Morse, retired president of Fairbanks Morse & Co., whose private secretary Lange had been for several years. The safe was in the company office at 600 S. Michigan av.

Employer Surprised

Capt. Thomas Kelly of the Albany Park police said that Morse had known nothing of his secretary's treasure and that Morse expressed surprise that Lange had been able to accumulate such a sum on his $290 a month salary.

The securities, of large corporations, were cached in the rear of the safe, behind sheafs of miscellaneous papers, in what Capt. Kelly said was an apparent attempt at concealment.

Also found in the safe, Capt. Kelly said, were letters from Mrs. Margaret Heiss of West Palm Beach, Fla., who has been identified as the governess 30 years ago of Mrs. Morse's sister's children.

Several stock certificates, jointly owned by Mrs. Heiss and Lange, were found in the safe. Attached to them was a note, signed by Lange, directing that "in the event of my death" they should be mailed to Mrs. Heiss.

"Regarded Lange as Son"

Mrs. Heiss, located in a hospital in West Palm Beach, said she had a deep affection for Lange and for years "had regarded him as a son." Mrs. Heiss, who is 60, said she became acquainted with him thru his late mother and late aunt, who were her friends.

When told that police found her name on some of the stock certificates, Mrs. Heiss admitted that she had given some money to Lange "to repay him for his kindness to her." Lange visited her in her Florida home from Nov. 4 to 17, but she declined to talk about the purpose of his trip. She said she knew of no motive for the murder.

Second Woman in Case

Capt. Kelly said police are investigating a Chicago married woman whose name was found in letters in the safe. This woman, he said, held Lange's stocks and securities while Lange recently was on a month's vocation in Florida. They propose to question her, Kelly said, regarding Lange's acquisition of the modest fortune, as well as an Oct. 31 deposit of $3,600 shown in the bank book.

An inquest which opened yesterday was continued at the request of police until Jan. 14.

Hospital Orderly Seized as Rape Attempt Suspect

Leo Davis, 27, of 2624 Ogden av., an orderly at Mount Sinai hospital, was arrested yesterday by Marquette police on complaint of a young woman that he attempted to rape her early yesterday in a hallway at 2216 S. Washtenaw av. She told police the attempt occurred as Davis was escorting her home from a tavern where they met and that he fled when she screamed.

SEPARATE AIR FORCE?

Representatives May and Vinson, chairmen of the house military and naval affairs committees, respectively, have introduced bills to separate the air force from the army and place it in its own department, with a secretary in the cabinet. The navy would keep its own air force.

Vinson and May say that this is their answer to proposals, now being discussed before the senate military affairs committee, to unify all of the nation's forces in a single department of national defense. The congressmen have at least posed the issue which the country must decide. If there is anything to the argument that prosecution of the war just ended was hampered by difficulty in coördinating the efforts of two services, the creation of a third, independent one would merely confound the confusion. If, on the other hand, unification would result in a structure too unwieldy to be controled, as the navy contends, a separate air department might make for simplification and greater efficiency.

In some respects the two proposals are not as far apart as they may seem. Under unification each sector of the national defense would have an undersecretary, under the departmental secretary. Under the three service proposal, administration would presumably be unified under the President, and operations under a committee of three chiefs of staff.

It is noteworthy that agitation for a separate air force, which was pressed strongly by many air officers before the war, has largely been dropped in favor of unification, of which army air officers have in general been strong proponents. The revival of the proposal may permit the navy, which opposes unification, to sit on the sidelines while the air and ground forces renew their old battle over a divorce. It might even be calculated to do that.

Only two facts are patent, and neither solves the question of one department or three. One is that the air forces have become too vital an arm of national defense to be permitted to sink back to their pre-war status of a mere corps in the army, as they would under existing statutes. The other is that the navy should keep its own air force. The British failed to do that when they established an independent air force, and to that failure has been attributed the fact that British naval aviation was distinctly inferior both to the British land based air force and to our own naval aviation.

The real question for congress to decide is not the right of air power to equal status with land and sea power. That is assured. It is rather the extent to which the United States shall rely upon air power as its principal defense, and the extent, accordingly, to which land and sea power shall be relegated to the position of largely auxiliary services.

Every campaign, perhaps every battle on land and sea, and every landing of the last war was decided by superior air power. This was as true in the Pacific as in Europe. On land there obviously must be forces to protect air bases and to occupy territory. At the same time the verdict is becoming increasingly sure that land victories, brilliant as they were, would have been impossible without the strategic bombing which starved German armies for munitions and fuel, and the tactical bombing that, in the end, completely immobilized them.

At sea, despite enormous advances in anti-aircraft protection, instances of surface ships which alone were able to resist determined air attacks are few, if any, in comparison with those of ships which succumbed to such attacks. Cannon bearing ships seem doomed in the not too distant future to be reduced to the duties of protecting carriers and providing artillery preparation for amphibious operations. At present the navy is vitally needed to supply air bases and keep sea lanes open to them. That need will diminish if long range planes become as effective as the air officers assert they soon will become.

We already have the atomic bomb. Rocket projectiles, carrying atomic charges thousands of miles thru the stratosphere, may not be too far distant. The day when the air force, in its turn, may be forced to auxiliary status is at least conceivable.

LIDICE REPEATED

When the Nazis destroyed Lidice the news was greeted with horror thru what was accounted to be the civilized world. There is a new Lidice, but this one is in Java, and no cry of outrage has followed the news that the British have leveled it by fire. The village was destroyed because, the British said, it harbored Indonesian nationalist snipers who fired upon British forces fighting to suppress the native independence movement.

The Czechs who peopled Lidice were called patriots because they resisted the nazi interlopers in their country. Czechs who assassinated Heydrich, the Gestapo "hangman," were heroes. In what particular are the Indonesians less of the nature of patriots and heroes? Are they not fighting for freedom? Are they not resisting a brutal oppressor? Are those who fall before their guns less the tyrant than was Heydrich?

The man whose moral standards have withstood the campaign to justify brutal acts with pious sentiments will condemn the destruction of an obscure Javanese village, just as he condemned the destruction of an obscure Czech village. He will condemn the same indiscriminate methods of vengeance when they are practiced by Americans, as they were when our troops in China were ordered to shell an obscure village whose headman refused to surrender suspects in the shooting of an American marine. If we do not condemn such inhumane treatment we say, in effect, that Hitler and Heydrich were right.

Yet few are the voices in the world today which are raised in behalf of justice. The united nations organization was imposed upon the American people by a propaganda campaign which asserted that any one who opposed it on grounds of reason or justice was a Fascist working for a third World war. Yet before the united nations council and assembly have even met we find that the weak and the oppressed are to be denied any voice in the forum of world "peace."

A report submitted to the league's preparatory commission shows that Britain and South Africa have won the support of China in resisting a plan submitted by the Philippine commonwealth whereby dependent peoples might be entitled to elect spokesmen who would present their grievances to the league. The British have almost half a billion natives under their rule, some of whom are the black peoples of South Africa. They intend to grant these subject peoples no opportunity even to appeal for justice.

In these circumstances how will the Indonesians, or the people of India, Burma, Malaya, or Indo-China ever be able to inform the world officially of their complaints against tyranny? They are destined for all time to bow to the yoke, to suffer and die, to be exploited so that their imperial masters may prosper. The united nations are to sit by benignly, approving this monstrous injustice. There will be no complaint from the oppressed, for no official channel is provided for it to be received.

This is the fraud which, packaged by propagandists, was sold to the American people as promising a peaceful and happy world. At the Christmas season only the charred Lidices of this millennial world need disturb the sahibs and tuans as they exchange the greeting, "Peace on earth, good will to men."

BEAR BY THE TAIL

The departure of Gen. Marshall for China provided Mr. Truman with the occasion for issuing a long-winded statement outlining his Chinese policy. He could have spared himself a lot of words and trouble if he had said, merely, "We have a bear by the tail and can't let go."

His program, if that is the word for it, calls for a union of China under Chiang. Chiang, however, is to let the Communists have some of the jobs. To purchase this kind of a settlement the United States will lend China an unspecified sum under unspecified terms for vaguely specified purposes. Meanwhile the marines remain in North China to disarm the Japs and ship them home. What Mr. Truman proposes to do if one or another of the Chinese factions rejects his program isn't told, but he does say that "United States support will not extend to United States military intervention to influence the course of any Chinese internal strife." At another point Mr. Truman says that a strong, unified China is essential to the world's peace. It all adds up to nothing.

Mr. Truman's China policy is of a piece with the rest of his diplomacy. We are involved all over the world, at enormous expense and with enormous risk, and the Truman administration has no plan to reduce or limit the responsibilities. Mr. Truman may comfort himself with the notion that the fault isn't entirely his because he inherited a mess from his predecessor. There is some truth in that, but not as much as he pretends. Potsdam is his baby. Mr. Roosevelt at his worst never surpassed that essay in the surrender of principle to expediency.

The moral is so obvious that it is scarcely necessary to point it out. The only hope for the country lies in freeing the state department from Democratic control. The only practical alternative is the Republican party, but it has shown little capacity for organizing itself for a victory at the polls and there is as yet little reason to expect that a Republican victory would be followed by any material alteration in foreign policy. Certainly if the eastern wing of the party continues to dominate it no improvement would be likely to follow.

Nevertheless, what hope there is lies in the Republicans. The alternative is a nation bled white and bankrupt.

RAILROAD ENTERPRISE

The railroads of the country, in the next few years, are going to have a strenuous fight to keep their first class long distance traffic from going to the air lines. Those roads with alert management know this and are preparing to engage in the fight by offering better service.

The Monon railroad has just got authority to buy 19 diesel electric locomotives and 15 streamline passenger cars. The cars and four locomotives will be used in three high speed trains between Chicago and Indianapolis and Louisville, and the rest of the locomotives to speed up and improve frate service.

On the same day the Burlington railroad, which was a pioneer in the use of diesel power, announced that it is now hauling all its thru trains between Chicago, Omaha, and Denver with that type of locomotive, and also it is using a large number of powerful diesels in its thru frate service. Only a few local trains and suburban service on the Burlington will continue to be powered by steam. We hope the railroad does something for its long suffering suburban passengers in the way of fast diesel power, and other improvements. If it doesn't, it is bound to find a good many of its customers driving to town in their automobiles, particularly after super-highways cut thru the traffic barriers of the west side of Chicago.

The New York Central doesn't go for diesel p wer on its luxury trains as yet, but it is ordering 22 streamline trains, a total of 420 cars. They will all be in service within 18 months. The order is the largest ever placed by an American railway.

In the intense competition of the post-war era, it's going to be a case of root, hog, or die, and the railroad companies that don't start rooting will start dying.

INK-STAINED ODYSSEY

Ralph Fletcher Seymour, widely known in Chicago for more than 40 years, has published his memoirs, a volume of his own illustration and typography as well as writing, which bears the title, "Some Went This Way." It will be reviewed on the book pages, but we wish to give it casual greeting here for numerous reasons, ancient and modern. For example, Seymour's first hand-lettered book, "Sonnets from the Portuguese," came to us as a Christmas gift in 1899; and his totem-pole party of 1943 inspired the cover design of that year's Linebook.

This story of a life in the arts-and-crafts movement is both amusing and instructive. It contains many sidelights on personalities of note, and also presents a useful survey of typography and its chief practitioners from Gutenberg to Kittridge. In either vein, Seymour's vein is winning, and the book reveals, as his friends have always known, that this artist, etcher, illustrator, typographer, and publisher has enjoyed every diligent day of his long pilgrimage.

Among Seymour's anecdotes is a tale of Isadora Duncan, dancer, and I. K. Pond, architect, which would have been a first-page feature item if it had come to newspaper attention when it happened, all of 30 years ago. Isadora was visiting lioness at the Little Room, a Friday afternoon group of tea-drinking artists and intellectuals. She advised Pond to take dancing lessons; he counseled her to study circus acrobatics. He proceeded to prove their value by spinning head over heels in a perfect somersault—a trick for which he was famous, even among professional performers. Isadora was so impressed that she kissed the austere bachelor on both cheeks. This incident was the Little Room's highest point of Bohemian life.

There is much in the book, too, about Seymour's out-of-doors life. He has been Chicago's most active voyageur or canoe tripper. How come, then, he said nothing of the exploration of the Fox river and lakes from the Wisconsin frontier to McHenry, Ill.—a notable event in our own life? Well, perhaps because in such a varied life, a fellow can't tell all in one book.

THAT DREAM HOUSE

[Client to Modern Architect.]

Build us a house of quarried stones,
With roof of slates—we hate asbestos—
Where we may sup on wine and scones
And sweetly rest us.

Or e'en a house of well-burned brick,
With oaken beams, would amply please us,
So be it that the walls are thick,
For thin walls freeze us.

We loathe a house with too much glass,
And have scant love for plastic features
Or stools of chrome, for we, alas,
Are natural creatures.

And so we are constrained to state
That we reject, without misgiving,
Your cantilevered boiler plate

Alphabet Conversation

Since the American burocracy has set the horrible example, why shouldn't we apply the alphabet soup language to casual conversations? When two friends meet on the street, their remarks might sound something like this:

"G. M."
"G. M. H. E. W. Y.?"
"F. H. E. W. Y.?"
"F. H. T. W.?"
"F. H. Y. W.?"
"F. H. A. T. K.?"
"F. H. A. Y. K.?"
"F. I. G. T. H. S. Y."
"I. G. T. H. S. Y. S. L."

Key: "Good morning." "How's everything with you?" "Fine." "How's the wife?" "How's your wife?" "How are your kids?" "Fine. I got to hurry. Seein' you." "So long."

BUT FOR A DREAM

Because I sing the foolish songs that make
A travesty of lovers and of love,
O, do not think my heart is shallow, friend,
For it can ache beyond your dreaming of.

Not for a man alive [to this I swear]
But for an image glimpsed each day afresh
And fashioned by the heart's own high desire,
But for a dream that will not turn to flesh.

Gloria Love

Linemaster: May I enlist your collaboration in a plan to persuade radiorators to look up the meanings of the long words they misuse. We could begin with the gentleman who loved to gaze into his aquarium and "watch the genuflections of the goldfish." Surely his vocabulary would be bettered if, before each broadcast, he would recite [privately] the following:

The goldfish, having no genoux,
[As seen on close inspection]
Is hardly well equipped to do
Such tricks as genoux flexion.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

D. P. B. writes: "I am a single, discharged soldier and back at work. I find that 20 per cent of my salary is being deducted for income tax, altho I will not earn $500 for the calendar year 1945 and the pay I received in service is not taxable. Do I have to pay income tax on the first $500 I make as a civilian?"

Your employer must withhold the income tax on your salary, but if you do not earn $500 between the time of your discharge and Dec. 31, 1945, you are entitled to a refund. After the end of the taxable year you may make application to the collector of internal revenue for refund.

C. P. writes: "I am a veteran and have been working since September. Do I have to pay income tax for the remainder of the year? How can I get the withheld taxes back? I am working for the government."

If you do not earn more than $500 you do not have to pay any tax. If your earnings exceed $500, you may apply to the collector of internal revenue for refund.

BEG YOUR PARDON: In reply to a question in this column Dec. 14 about the pay of a fireman first class assigned to submarine duty and the extra pay for sea duty or overseas service it was stated erroneously that the fireman's base pay is $114. His base pay is $66 with 50 per cent added for submarine duty. Sea duty and overseas service pay is 20 per cent of base for enlisted men. The $114 base pay is received by first class petty officers.

TRACE THE CAUSE OF SWOLLEN ANKLES

SWELLING of the ankles was probably as good a topic of conversation during antiquity as it is today. The condition has always been a problem, but we are closer to the solution than ever before. At least we recognize the existence of numerous causes, for which treatment is available.

Should puffiness develop, many individuals jump to the conclusion that something has gone amiss with the heart or kidneys. Perhaps so, but the physician can decide definitely as these disorders usually have certain suggestive indications. Vein trouble is another possibility. But ordinarily, only one limb is involved and enlarged vessels are present or the patient recalls a recent attack of phlebitis.

What other factors may be responsible? It occurs in starvation states but not necessarily to the degree that we read about during the war. Lack of proteins in the diet may be to blame. Nutritional edema is seen in people who are addicted to one-sided menus. Such poor eating habits may have been brought on by disease of the stomach, fad regimens, quick lunches instead of balanced meals, or lack of appetite because of too much liquor. By correcting the omission or commission, the extremities quickly resume the old profile.

In the normal person, drinking large amounts of water or taking table salt in excess rarely lead to dropsy. But in certain circumstances, the practice may force fluid to accumulate in the tissues, especially when the capillaries have been damaged previously or a mild heart disturbance exists. Heat may dilate the tiny vessels, particularly after a day on the feet. Women may complain of the phenomenon just before menstruation. This is apparently of glandular origin and is not serious.

Swelling may occur after prolonged standing or sitting with the legs hanging down. These positions increase pressure within the capillaries by the effect of gravity on the column of blood above. Furthermore, the tissue fluids have difficulty in returning uphill to the body itself. This may be noted in soldiers who stand perfectly still for a long time during a review. Shipwrecked mariners encountered the manifestation after being crowded for days on a life raft. Dampnes and cold played a part, but in many the symptom was minimized by stretching or elevating the legs occasionally to permit drainage.

During the blitz in London, civilians were bothered after sitting for hours in shelters. Many used deck chairs and the pressure on the calves, along with inactivity, encouraged the irregularity. The abnormality was also associated with some cases of trench foot.

Recently Ross and Ormond described its occurrence in 12 train coach passengers. They seldom left their seats or moved about. In addition to swelling, the feet were painful and tender to the touch. After a few days of rest in bed the disturbance disappeared spontaneously. Those who travel to distant points under these conditions must not remain static, as much discomfort can be avoided by walking about the car at frequent intervals.

HOME HEATING

R. L. writes: At what temperature should the living quarters be kept in the winter time for health and comfort?

REPLY

This depends upon the relative humidity but in general a temperature of 68 to 70 degrees F. is recommended. If the air is unusually dry, many inactive individuals will feel chilly at this reading. A cooler environment is preferred at night but not to the extent that chilling occurs.

AN ANTIBIOTIC

F. T. writes: What has happened to the new wonder drug, tyrothricin? Is it still being used?

REPLY

This preparation, a mixture of gramicidin and tyrocidine, is being employed in various disorders such as wounds, abscesses, and ulcers as well as certain infections of the eyes, sinuses, and pleura. In some cases it is effective; in others, the results are less satisfactory.

SOMETHING NEW

Mrs. J. writes: My boys are just getting over impetigo. Now they have developed yellow jaundice. Does this mean the end of the first disease?

REPLY

To my knowledge there is no relationship between jaundice and impetigo. Treatment directed against the new disorder is now indicated.

Two Souvenirs

In the middle of a quiet afternoon the other day the telephone rang. The low, gentle voice at the other end was that of James Gavin, police reporter on THE TRIBUNE for the last 25 years.

"You remember," he began, "the other day you asked me what happened to all the guns used in Chicago murders, whether the police kept them in a museum or as souvenirs?

"Well, last night at home I opened a book and a rose fell out. The rose was still red, and the leaves were still green. Well, now, that's a souvenir. A gun's not a souvenir. All those millions of guns our boys are bringing back from the war right now, they're not souvenirs. They're tragedies.

"For the last 25 years women have been killing their husbands with those guns brought back from the last war. They called them 'souvenirs,' too. How can any one call a gun a souvenir? It doesn't make sense to me. A rose stays forever. A gun has just one purpose: to kill.

"Just the other day a boy who brought back a souvenir gun saw his stepfather fighting with his mother. He took the gun. He killed him. A good tussle would have ended it long before that.

"A girl shoots her husband with a souvenir gun he brought home. She said he was drinking. His family said she was cheating on him. Well, that man worked every day. You can't work drunk. If that .45 hadn't been lying there in that drawer, a souvenir, a good kick in the pants would have settled it.

"In Chicago alone already there are four or five others just like that.

"For 20 to 30 years those other souvenir guns have been used to kill. Thirty years from now you'll find countless tragedies still coming from the souvenirs brought back this time. Thirty years from now they'll be used for what they were made for: to kill.

"All those boys are sent out to kill," he went on. "They haven't it in them. Why they bring the guns home at all I don't know. Guns are only for law enforcement officers.

"Even so, 60 to 70 per cent of the policemen shouldn't be policemen. They kill, but the rest of their lives they're kicking the person they killed out of bed—"

"Kicking him out of bed?" we repeated.

"Seeing him. Haunted by him. I remember one policeman who killed a man he was chasing. He, the policeman, was a 200 pounder. Within a year he went down to 135. He went to drink. He died. He hadn't wanted to kill a man, and it got him.

"I've often thought of the man or woman on the assembly line making guns. They must sometimes wonder who this gun or that gun is going to kill. That's all it's made for.

"The little boy who never played with anything more deadly than a cap pistol is home now from war, with that souvenir gun, and Ma has it in a drawer and she's afraid of her life. Maybe 20 years from now it will be used. Tragedy, that's all.

"I remember covering a murder up on Surf st. 25 years ago. A woman killed her lover. His gun. One he picked up in Germany that other time. And another on the south side. She played the phonograph while she killed him. His souvenir, sure. Some guns are what people call pretty things, for what reason I don't know. I never saw a pretty gun.

"The police department takes all these used guns. They are covered with blood. You can't tell what they look like. The gun in a murder trial is turned over to the judge. Maybe he gives it to some one as a souvenir. What happens then? Some day another trial. You can't bring back the dead.

"When the police confiscate guns, they go five miles out in the lake and drop them in. That's when they are souvenirs. When they are down with the fishes."

Variation

A scout tells of an old lady who used to mark her mince pies T. M. One day she made two pies, and a neighbor, seeing them, pointed to one and asked what T. M. stood for. "'Tis mince," the old lady replied. And the other? "'Tain't mince."

"DEMOCRACY" AT WORK

MARSEILLE, France, Nov. 13—Since I was old enough to read a history book I have been a stanch isolationist. This outlook on internatianal affairs has been enlarged by my experience as a soldier in keeping the world safe for democracy.

In my travels across Normandy and into Germany I came in contact with very few French soldiers. I don't doubt that the French had some men under arms, but it certainly wasn't the amount she should have had. Those French armies the people in the States were reading about were French colonials, who aren't much beyond the savage stage.

Now comes what I consider the ironic part of my story. While waiting for a GI truck to come along to carry me to the center of Marseille, I was passed by a convoy. The equipment was entirely American, but the markings were French. On the canvas tops were signs to the effect of "Saigon or Bust, Vive la France."

Here was a group of French soldiers armed to the teeth with American equipment rushing to the far east to carry on the fight to preserve democracy. When I read the Stars and Stripes that afternoon, I came across an article that American troop ships were being diverted to carry these same French soldiers to battle against their uprising colonies. That is adding insult to injury.

Is this thing called freedom for the white man of Europe and the mixtures of races in America only? Are the people of America willing to send troops over here to hold the Germans in submission while another European parasite sits back and enjoys an easy existence at the expense of her subjects in Asia? We need send the French nothing more than a good labor administrator who can get the Frenchmen out of the cafes long enough to work the country back on its feet.

When we use the platform, "To make the world safe for democracy," we should make sure the policy doesn't end at the cessation of hostilities. I'm sure the Indonesian, Javanese, etc., are getting a huge laugh out of the Atlantic Charter.

WOES OF SUBURBIA

Chicago, Nov. 30—Winter comes, and it is reasonable to anticipate that the Rock Island suburban service, which has been faltering and staggering for many months, will find the cold weather too much and collapse altogether. Express trains will run behind locals or drag behind freight trains. Trains will back into the station to load passengers on or after the time they are supposed to leave. Schedules—yes, they have one, but what train runs according to it. The whole set-up is a putrid mess.

If but a small part of the effort that was expended in obtaining an increase in suburban rates had been devoted to an improved service, we would have something that at least would be less shameful. J. W. B.

THE WHY OF THE HOUSING SHORTAGE

Chicago, Dec. 14—The causes of Chicago's housing problem are: 1. A restrictive building code which has forbidden building of frame houses for 45 years. 2. Ever mounting Chicago taxes which have made real estate a questionable investment. 3. Collusion between politicians and labor racketeers, causing excessive costs restricting building and repairing. LET THE UNIONS DEMONSTRATE

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 12—I'm in favor of the unions and the functions their founders intended them to perform. But since the unions have become powerful, they have been overstepping their bounds and abusing their privileges. The General Motors strike is a good example. The unions want to inspect G. M.'s books, set the price of labor, set the price of automobiles, and regulate G. M.'s profits. The unions expect G. M. to raise the wages of the workers 30 per cent and still hold down the price of their product to what it was before the war. Until union demands are met, the union will strike. It has over $4,000,000 in a special fund set aside with which to fight G. M. in the present strike.

If the union is really sincere in its belief that G. M. can raise wages 30 per cent, hold the price of its product constant, and still make a satisfactory profit, there is a good way the union can prove it to the whole nation. Instead of using $4,000,000 to strike, they should start an automobile manufacturing concern of their own. This they are allowed to do by law. In fact, the union would have a big advantage over other manufacturing competitors, because the law allows any company or corporation owned by the union to go tax free. CORP. JACK C. WERNER

SUGAR RATIONING

Chicago, Dec. 14—Every Christmas my family looked forward to homemade Christmas breads, fruit cake and cookies, and candies. This year we don't even have a spoonful of sugar for our coffee. Yet the grocery walls are lined with sugar, the bakeries have stacks of fruit cake and cookies, and the candy stores are doing great business. One can buy fudge by the package to which one simply adds water and makes fudge, which may be better than nothing, but why the heck can't we have an equal distribution? Is it better for mother to go ahead and buy her cakes and cookies at 75c per pound and candy at $1.50 per pound and spend the afternoon in the show? Well, maybe so! Times change, but I guess I'm just an— OLD FASHIONED HOUSEWIFE

NO MONEY; NO DEED

Chicago, Dec. 13—My sister in another state and I own a house. She always disagreed on expenses for the upkeep and insisted that I buy her out, which I did at her own price. She told me that when I sent her the money I should send the deed also and she would sign the latter. [1] I sent her a money order and the deed. She acknowledged receipt of the money but will not sign the deed. [2] What can I do to get a clear title to the property? W. A.

1. We need hardly say that this was unwise. One way to handle it would have been to send your money in care of the bank with instructions to deliver the check on receipt of the deed.
2. We see no way to force matters without employing an attorney.

FOREIGN RELIEF UNITS' EXPENSES HIT 21 MILLIONS

Some Agencies Spent 50% on Promotion

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 — A total of $21,284,970, donated by Americans for the hungry and homeless of Europe, was spent instead for promotional expenses by the foreign agencies to which the money was entrusted, in the 1939-1945 war period, an investigation revealed today.

This spending for "publicity, promotion, administration, etc." was still going on at the rate of $496,000 a month in June, 1945, according to the latest reports available.

Some Spent 50%

Americans have kicked in a quarter of a billion in cash and an almost equal amount in supplies for war victims since 1939. These amounts exclude the vast sums sent abroad thru lend-lease and the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration. They are personal contributions to private relief groups from citizens stirred by the plight of war victims.

Some agencies spent 50 cents and more of each dollar thus contributed for publicity and promotion in this country, the net result being propaganda for the foreign nations involved, in the opinion of congressional observers, rather than relief for the destitute abroad.

WHEN MERCURY HITS 60, IT'S COLD WAVE IN FLORIDA

Natives Trot Out Ear Muffs, Overcoats

BY GAIL COMPTON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Gulf Beaches, Fla., Dec. 17—Florida suffered a cold snap recently with the thermometer dropping to about 60 degrees, and the reaction of the natives was a wondrous treat for newly arrived visitors from the north.

An unforgettable sight was the man with a wool cap pulled down over his ears and wearing an overcoat while turning on the sprinkler on his bright green lawn. At his heels shivered a dog clad in a bright red sweater. This scene was witnessed while the northerners had stopped the car to shed coats and sweaters in favor of shirt sleeves.

Chance to Show off Furs

In the towns, mothers hovered anxiously over children who had ear flaps pulled down while wearing wool mittens. A gleam of happiness was detected in the eyes of some women who strolled the streets in beaver and mink coats. It was one of their rare chances to show off their furs.

With the temperature now in the 80s, all the Florida papers make page one news of the cold snap in the middle west, complete with pictures of the snow and ice.

There are many other strange impressions to be gathered in this crowded state.

At the world's biggest alligator farm outside St. Augustine there is a shop crammed with articles made out of alligator skin for sale. Most of them are stamped, "made in Argentina."

But No Orange Juice!

Traveling down the highway it's a two to one bet that out of the car ahead of you will emerge an arm which hurls an orange rind onto the road. The big orange and grapefruit crop is being harvested now and the roads are filled with enormous trucks laden with fruit. The trees are bulging with oranges and their bright color is a pleasing complement to the waxy green leaves.

Perhaps when the orange crop is picked it will be possible for a visitor to get a glass of fresh juice. So far a week in the state has failed to produce anything but canned juice or a concentrate. The stores are selling oranges as big as grapefruits for 75 cents a dozen. It costs $4.64 to ship a bushel basket of the fruit to Chicago.

A sign of the times are the thousands of pieces of old tires and tubes which litter the highway. Evidently the cost of making the trip here by car runs high in rubber. A new tire without an OPA certificate in Daytona Beach can be had for $25 if you know the garage owner.

HOLIDAYS TO GO AGAINST GRAIN OF DRINKING MEN

Any one who thought to flush a merry Christmas or a happy New Year out of a bottle of bonded, straight, or Scotch whisky is likely to be disappointed.

There is a tremendous shortage of these holiday helpers, according to whisky men, and the reason is no particular secret. The last consignment of grain by the department of agriculture to the largest distillery in the world was enough to keep it operating only seven and one-half days during the month.

The only bonded whisky available comes from reserves, which are becoming depleted. In order to become bonded, whisky must remain in barrels for four years.

From these bonded reserves one barrel will make 16 cases of bonded whisky or 92 cases of blended whisky. Now when a whisky man sits down and confronts himself with that choice most any one with an eye to business can see how it is likely to come out.

OPA TO DECIDE TODAY ON RENT OF VETS' HOMES

Rentals for the temporary houses being set up by the city for married war veterans will be determined today by the office of price administration, the Chicago housing authority, which will operate the houses, was informed yesterday.

As soon as rents are fixed, the CHA said, the selection of tenants will begin. One list already has been made up as a result of visits by CHA workers in search of veterans in most urgent need. Applications are handled by the Chicago housing center, 39 S. La Salle st.

First of the war plant demountable houses to reach Chicago came from Kingsbury Heights, Ind. Three houses were trucked to the forest preserve site at Foster and Tripp avs., but cold weather delayed their erection.

EX-GRID PLAYER IS ARRESTED ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Ralph F. Haug, 39, of Long Lake, Lake county, was arrested yesterday on warrants charging assault and battery and assault with a deadly weapon.

The assault and battery charge was filed by his wife, Mildred, and the charge of assault with a deadly weapon was filed by Deputy Sheriff Frank Valenta. Valenta told Justice of the Peace Raymond Reardon that Haug threatened him and Deputy Ray Simmers with a shotgun when they went to his home Sunday in response to a report that Haug had beaten his wife. They found the wife in a neighbor's home.

Haug, who weighs 230 pounds, is a former Northwestern university football player, and formerly was an engineer for the state highway department. He was held in jail in default of bonds totalling $3,000 on the two charges. His hearing was set for 11 a. m. Dec. 28 before Justice Reardon.

SEEKS STATE FUNDS TO CUT REALTY TAXES

Ald. Keenan Asks City Council to Act

The city council yesterday was asked by Ald. Keenan [49th] to set in motion machinery for a reduced rate on real estate taxation in Chicago. Taxes at present are so high, he said, they inhibit the expansion of business and industry, and discourage home building.

Keenan's request was a resolution calling upon Gov. Green to remit to the various counties portions of state taxes collected in previous years for relief purposes. It would, Keenan said, lower the rate from the $4.22 for each $100 valuation levied in 1945 to about $3.00 per $100 valuation.

The state, the alderman said, now has approximately 100 million dollars in surplus funds collected for relief, and unneeded for that purpose now. If the money could be allocated to the various counties, it would reduce the real estate taxes, he said.

Keenan asserted there are 700,000 real estate tax payers in Chicago, of which 450,000 are home owners.

"They deserve a break," he said.

Report Is Received

The resolution was referred to the committee on consolidation, reorganization, and taxation, which is headed by Keenan, who said that a meeting would be called tomorrow to consider the proposal.

The council received a report from Ald. Moss [5th] on a recent trip to New York by a council subcommittee on housing to interest insurance companies in housing construction in Chicago.

Four out of five of the companies interviewed, Moss said, seemed "interested." Elements governing the companies' decision, he pointed out, will be land costs, availability of materials, and stabilization of labor conditions. The companies also made clear, Moss continued, that they preferred building on vacant land to slum clearance, and that they wanted no government subsidies.

Increase Judges' Pay

On the recommendation of Ald. Bowler [25th] the council passed an ordinance increasing the salary of the chief justice of the Municipal court from $15,000 to $17,000 a year, and associate justices from $10,000 to $12,000.

The increases, however, cannot become effective for sitting judges until they are reëlected, or until successors are elected, it was pointed out, since the incumbents were elected on a stated salary. There are 32 judges of the Municipal court.

Kelly Is Praised

Ald. Cohen [4th], a Republican, introduced a resolution lauding Mayor Kelly on his selection as president of the United States Conference of Mayors. The resolution praised Kelly in extravagant terms. Ald. Waller [43d] concurred in congratulating the mayor on his selection as conference president, but demurred at the rest of the resolution.

The mayor announced appointment of Ald. Cowhey [41st] to the Chicago recreation commission. Ald. Hartnett [12th] said that a subcommittee on taxicabs will meet tomorrow when it expects to receive a report from the city engineer on the need for additional cabs.

IT'S COMISES VS. FORTIERS AGAIN; ONLY ONE HURT

Mild Day in Court; 9 Men in Melee

BY THOMAS MORROW

Outside of maybe the Japanese army, the Comises and the Fortiers seem to have more trouble than anybody.

In Boys' court yesterday it wasn't so bad, just a minor skirmish. It took only four bailiffs and two policemen to separate John Comise Jr., 17, of 1102 Garfield blvd., and William Fortier, 17, of 4428 Wallace st., and there was only one casualty. Policeman Thomas Wall got cut on the hand.

There were previous indications that the two families were not on the best of terms. For instance John Comise Sr., 44, former personal bailiff to Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli, was fined $100 for assault on young Fortier's charge.

Slugged with Blackjack

Fortier said that Comise Sr., suspecting that Fortier had induced Comise Jr. to leave home, slugged him with a blackjack. Then there was another time when young Comise and Fortier joined forces and cast a brick thru the window at 543 W. 45th pl. The dornick caromed off the head of Comise's grandfather, Thomas Comise, 76, and Judge Jacob M. Braude put the young men on probation for six months.

That's the way things were when Comise Jr. got a yen to see a moving picture in the Stratford theater, 716 W. 63d st., Saturday night. He said that while he was sitting in the theater Fortier, Michael Brown, 17, of 501 W. 43d pl., and three companions came and sat by him.

Fortier left, Comise Jr. said, but when he tried to depart, Brown pulled a knife and told him, "Don't leave until the boss gets back." Comise Jr. managed to get word to Police Walter Lyons of Englewood, who appeared on the scene. As a result Brown and Fortier were before Judge Joseph B. Hermes yesterday on disorderly conduct charges.

Trouble Over Romance

Fortier was sitting with his mother, Therese, and Comise Sr.'s daughter, Catherine, 19, who left home when trouble developed between her family and Fortier, her boy friend. Comise, the elder, walked over to talk to his daughter.

"Don't take her away," said Mrs. Fortier. "She's my witness."

At this point Comise Jr. and Fortier began swinging at one another. Four bailiffs, one by one, were put into the lineup along with two policemen. Then Comise, the elder, joined.

When things settled down a little the two defendants obtained a jury trial, set for Jan. 8, and their bond was raised from $25 to $200 each. Then both families left the police building without another single bit of trouble. Catherine kissed her mother and went away with Fortier.

965,259 RECRUITS AT GREAT LAKES IN YEARS OF WAR

Authorities at Great Lakes Naval Training center said yesterday that a total of 965,259 recruits passed thru the center from Dec. 7, 1941, until Japan surrendered last Aug. 15. The peak month was October, 1942, when 40,079 recruits entered the center to supplement the more than 20,000 men already at Great Lakes. Present personnel strength is about 10,000, which is expected to be boosted soon to 13,000. Most of the recruits, after a 10 week basic training period, are assigned as fleet replacements.

TRIBUNE TOWER, CAROLS, TREE USHER IN YULE

Christmas carols rang thru the wintry air last evening when the traditional holiday program of yuletide music was opened in Nathan Hale court, on Michigan av. between Tribune Tower and the W-G-N studio.

Illuminated stars, 8 feet tall, on each side of the Tower were floodlighted for the one hour caroling program that started at 5 p. m. In the court, a 37 foot balsam Christmas tree from northern Wisconsin blazed into light, displaying on its crest a 3 foot star. The tree was erected last week by 12 men who worked an entire day on the project. The Tower decorations will remain lighted each night thru Christmas.

Musical Program Twice a Day

The broadcast musical programs, which will not be heard over W-G-N, will be played from 5 to 6 o'clock each evening this week thru Friday, and from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m. Saturday and Monday. Matinees will be given from noon to 12:30 p. m. thru Friday and from noon until 1 p. m. Saturday and Monday.

Yuletide festivities in other parts of the city started in earnest, with only a week remaining before actual celebration of the holiday. At the United Service Organization club, 131 S. Wabash av., school children contributed ornaments in the afternoon and decorated Christmas trees for soldiers and sailors.

Members of the army, navy, and marine corps also participated in a tree trimming party from 8 until 11 p. m.

Pupils at Waller High school 2039 Orchard st., were preparing for the presentation of their annual Christmas pageant, the story of The Nativity, to be given tonight in the school auditorium at 7:30 o'clock.

Potter-Sheldon Wedding Day to Be Dec. 29

BY JUDITH CASS

MISS MARGARET SHELDON, who was a Christmas day debutante two years ago, will be a Christmas time bride this year, for she and Orrin W. Potter Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Potter of Greenough, Mont., formerly of Chicago, are to be married Dec. 29. The ceremony will take place at 4:30 p. m. in Christ church, Winnetka, with the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard officiating, and a small reception for the families and a few close friends will follow in the Winnetka home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Sheldon.

Mrs. F. William Vietor of Greenough, sister of the bridegroom, will be the matron of honor, and the bride's sister, Miss Polly Sheldon, will be maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Mrs. William B. Morse, Mrs. Charles Nevitt, the former Kay Lyon of Oshkosh, Wis., and Miss Nancy Walton of New York. Gordon Erickson of Greenough will be best man, and ushering will be Alexander MacArthur, a cousin of Miss Sheldon; Monteith F. Judson, Ormsby Annan, and Mr. Vietor.

Mr. and Mrs. Potter, their son, and the Vietors, who all will arrive from Greenough Christmas eve, will stay in the homes of several friends of the Sheldons, hospitality for which both families are grateful as hotel accommodations are so difficult to obtain now. Also coming for the wedding are the bride's grandmother, the senior Mrs. Theodore Sheldon of Chicago, who is in New York City temporarily; the bride's aunts, Miss Katherine and Miss Marian Lewis of New Canaan, Conn., formerly of Chicago, and Miss Sally Havemeyer of Skaneateles, N. Y.

Mrs. Cyrus Mark will give a luncheon and miscellaneous shower Saturday for Miss Sheldon, who already has been feted at many parties. Mrs. Morse will give a luncheon for the bride-to-be Dec. 26 in the Woman's Athletic club and Mr. MacArthur's parents, the Alfred MacArthurs, will entertain the families at dinner that night in the Tavern club. Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon will give the bridal dinner on the 28th in the Indian Hill club. Following a wedding trip, Mr. Potter, a great-grandson of the late Orrin W. Potter of Chicago, and his bride will be at home in Greenough.

The International Relations center has invited Chicagoans who are leaders in scientific, educational, and cultural activities to a meeting at 4 p. m. today at which the speaker will be Dr. Grayson Kefauver, American representative at the conferences of allied ministers of education in London since 1944. Dr. Kefauver served as an adviser to the American delegation to the recent London conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural organization, which he will discuss. The meeting will take place in the Woodrow Wilson Meeting room at 84 E. Randolph st.

Here and There

Because of a slight illness, Mrs. Edward A. Leight is confined to her home and has postponed a luncheon she planned for her debutante grandniece, Miss Nancy Madlener, Thursday in the Arts club. The Leights have welcomed for Christmas their grandson, Ensign Edward Paul Leight, who has come from San Francisco to spend the holidays with them. Now that he has been discharged from the navy, Mr. Leight will continue his education at the University of Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Drake will give a small dinner at home tonight for debutante Joan Farwell, taking their young guests to the Mayfair room of the Blackstone for dancing later.

Mrs. William F. Burrows left Lake Forest yesterday for Harrisburg, Pa., where she will spend the holidays with her son-in-law and daughter, Comdr. and Mrs. Robert M. Whittemore [Peggy Burrows], and meet her new granddaughter, Nancy Whittemore, for the first time. The baby, a grandniece of Mrs. John C. Pitcher, was born Dec. 12 in Harrisburg, where Comdr. Whittemore is stationed with the navy.

The Casino club will serve luncheon Sunday to those who make reservations. The luncheon will precede the club's annual eggnog party around its giant Christmas tree. Members will bring gifts to go under the tree which later will be distributed to children in the care of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society. The Shining Hour choir will sing at the later party.

Her Debut Tea Leads Off Series

Miss Ruth Sheldon Lee, whose debut tea yesterday afternoon in the Fortnightly club was the first in a series of similar parties which will continue until just after the first of the year. A student at Vassar, Miss Lee is a daughter of Mrs. Douglas P. Street, who came with Mr. Street from their winter home in Winter Haven, Fla., to give the tea. The Streets will return to Florida today, but Miss Lee will be here during the holidays. [TRIBUNE Photo]

Thru the Looking Glass

Maybe bewildered men shoppers would be interested to know that toilet water is enjoying a tremendous revival in feminine favor. The girls from 8 to 80 are fans for it, not just because it's refreshing, but because the perfume it contains is so lasting.

One of the choicest gifts the men could trap at this late and hectic stage is a stunning white package, lettered in green, that contains not one but two handsome bottles of fine toilet water and a dainty sachet pillow in white. It's an intensely feminine package, and the kind of a gift that makes the feminine heart go pit-a-pat.

The two fragrances are quite unlike. One is a teasing, subtle fragrance for the more sophisticated occasions. The other is a straight, true gardenia. Both are aimed straight at the affections of the woman who is fastidious and obviously feminine in her tastes and both are considered to be outstanding in character and quality. The gardenia, for instance, is a superior translation of a flower fragrance that is, believe it or not, plenty hard to capture. It has the sweetness of the flower itself, and the cool green undertone of it, but it completely misses being cloying, which is exactly what the poor gardenia version always is.

The toilet water bottles are tall and slender, each topped with a small, exquisitely dainty artificial flower. It's one of those expensive looking presents, but the cost of the whole ensemble isn't staggering. It's $5.50, plus tax.

Vivid Taffeta Makes Party Dresses Swish

BY REA SEEGER

Ideal holiday party dresses for the young and not so young are made of that provocative swish stuff, taffeta. The gayer, the more vivid the colors and patterns, the more festive the gowns and dresses. Stripes in multicolors, huge plaids, small precise checks, small but bright plaids provide the gayest of color contrasts imaginable. Both short and floor length models are abundant and there are enough for both Christmas and New Year's balls. And if taffeta doesn't please, try the suave satins and surahs of the same brilliant colors and combinations in party dresses like the taffetas.

Sophisticated dinner dresses with an intriguing back fullness, reminiscent of the 1890 bustle backs, are made of the striped taffetas and surahs. The gowns fit in figure lines flaring around the lower half of the skirt. Bustle backs are also exaggerated in size and are effective because of the bias cut of the plaids or stripes. Other floor length dinner and evening gowns have full gathered skirts, with the stripes in vertical lines in the upper half of the skirt, the lower half or flounce using the horizontal line of the stripes. Such dresses have a quaint ball gown look, as tho copied from an old time fashion album.

Short length dresses are usually made of the bold and wide striped surah, combined with dark tops or blouses with either short or long sleeves. The skirts are casually shirred and gathered to a severely simple band belt. Stunning wide stripes of strong contrast colors make the skirts decorative, and the contrast of black top adds to the dramatics. Both the short and the floor length dresses are welcome gifts, party clothes for the rest of the winter season and late into spring.

Chicago GIs Take Part in French Movie

BY ANNE BRUYERE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Dec. 17—Chicagolanders awaiting redeployment in France are participating in a full length GI and French film being produced here at the studios of the Maitrise Artisanale de l'Industrie Cinematochique. The movie will tell a dramatic saga of the resistance and victory.

Tech. Sgt. John D. Reynolds, who is a graduate of Northwestern university and former radio actor over station WCFL in Chicago, is among seven GIs in the cast, which also includes Frank Army, who took the part of the jilted high school boy in the Broadway play, "Janie," and Larry Hugo, who played in the New York production of "The Skin of Our Teeth."

Capt. Alan Campbell, author of "Tales of Manhattan," wrote the scenario, and Marc Allegret, Parisian film director, collaborated on the script for the French movie production.

In the picture the French characters, who portray their real life roles in the Maquis, speak French and the Americans English, except for the few hesitating syllables every Yank abroad picks up. There will be no confusion, however, because a narrator's voice will tell the story.

"We are all on detached service to play in the film," Sgt. Reynolds said. "The whole company is leaving next week for Marseille. We are going to shoot outdoor scenes which will include on-the-spot takes of thousands of GIs waiting in block long lines at staging areas. There will be shots of a troop ship sailing for home from Marseille bay, too."

The information and education section of the United States army is contributing costumes and an army airplane for the production.

WAC Norien Dajewski, 3259 Beach av., Chicago, is in charge of the special services section providing music for the film, which will be released in the United States in February.

Another important movie about Yank adventures in the European theater of operations is being produced by GIs and WACs only at the Biarritz American university. The title is "It's Only Rank." The feminine lead is played by Nell Savage. Sgt. John M. Barnwell is the director, and Robert S. Hines is the camerman.

Corp. Richard T. Cox of Chicago's Jack and Jill players, recently took time out to produce a short documentary film starring the movie hater, Gertrude Stein, who called him "a charming genius." The entire production cost him less than a dollar as he used American army photographic equipment and a jeep for transportation.

"I'd have foregone redeployment for a chance to crank a camera at Gertrude Stein," he said.

Mishaps Often Befall Child in Spite of Parental Vigilance

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Just as I was getting launched on my morning's writing, thru the closed door I could hear "our" baby burst into tears and his mother call out, "Where is that stuff we keep for burns? I can't find it in the medicine drawer. . . ."

Of course I dropped my pen and flew. A baby with a burn! That took two persons' doing, I knew, especially when I found it was a face burn. It was important to keep those little hands from touching it, important to keep it well coated with a preparation which we use, and important, too, to divert the baby so he would not notice the pain too much.

"It was . . . important, too, to divert the child so he would not notice the pain too much." [TRIBUNE Studio Photo]

So later, after the burn was dressed, he and I stood at the window and talked about birds [he talks too, his own language], and looked at books, while the baby's mother broiled his chop and brought his lunch upstairs on a tray. Then his mother and I concocted a trick bandage, coated with the medicine, for the angry red welt on the round little cheek, and got him settled for his nap.

As all this went on I heard how the accident had happened: Just one more of those quick, unexpected things that babies and little children can do in a flash.

Being a cloudy day the baby's little elephant lamp, which sets on his low book shelves, was lighted. While his mother's back was turned, he had reached way back for the lamp, lifted off the shade, and then had pulled and tipped over the lamp, so that the hot bulb rested on his cheek. Well, you can imagine what that could do to a baby's tender skin. It caused a second degree burn.

Even if you exercise eternal vigilance, as we do, things can happen. But if you have young children and don't—well, the consequences can be serious.

ON THE AISLE

D. H. Lawrence and the "Lumbar Ganglion Jump," or a Jazz Evening in Orchestra Hall

There is such a thing in this world as caution, and I wish I had more of it. It would have been perfectly simple to sidestep the Max Miller Quintet when it met in Orchestra hall last night to play some original jazz compositions, but no, I had to find out what happened. So here I am, stuck with trying to tell you how D. H. Lawrence sounds in musical terms of emotional nerve centers in such items as "Fantasia of the Unconscious," "Solar Plexus Blues," and "Lumbar Ganglion Jump," which according to the articulate announcer of program notes has to do with music and the back of your neck. It sounded to me like musical therapy with an easy, rhythmic drive to take the kink, if any, out of any neck willing to coöperate. But if I wanted to unkink a really stubborn set of snarled nerves, I would take them right down to the Mayfair Room to hear Burl Ives.

The quintet, meanwhile, was out to reëstablish Chicago as a jazz center, and it had Mr. Miller at the piano, Ken Smith at the drums, Bill Funkey at the alto saxophone, Jimmy Raney at the guitar, and Mickey Simms, who seemed to me the best of the lot, playing the double bass with vitality, a deep string rhythm, a tone to delight Koussevitzky himself, and a sense of fun that knew when to come out of hiding. Neither Sidney Bechet nor Tony Parenti appeared, for reasons of illness and radio commitment, respectively, but Muggsy Spanier brought his trumpet as guest in something they called "Carmen Avenue Jump" that took off in high fever and throbbed with rhythmic fury until it suddenly lost interest and trickled into silence.

To my ear the peak of the playing was the double bass, and the hardest to take was the battering on the vibraharp, but none of it added up to the best such music I can remember, which was played by the Benny Goodman Sextet in the days of Teddy Wilson and Lionel Hampton.

Notes

K. T. Stevens returned to "The Voice of the Turtle" at the Selwyn last night after a month's absence, but the Erlanger had a new "Carmen Jones" in Urylee Leonardos, who stepped in when both Muriel Smith and Inez Matthews were indisposed. . . . Cross Ethel Waters out as co-star with Willie Howard of the incoming "The Passing Show." . . . Warren Coleman [the "Crown" of "Porgy and Bess"] and Inge Hardison of New York's "Anna Lucasta" have traded companies for five weeks with Frederick O'Neal and Rosetta Le Noire at the Civic. . . . Leif Erikson, just out of the army, has been engaged to play opposite Sono Osato in "Undine." . . . Taking pity on the poverty of the repertory for violoncello, Vladimir Dukelsky has composed a concerto which Gregor Piatigorsky will play with the Boston orchestra in Boston Jan. 4 and 5 and in New York Jan. 12. . . . As a hopeful finger in the dike to stem the flood of inquiries about the Metropolitan Opera's repertory for the Chicago engagement next May, only Edward Johnson knows, and maybe he doesn't. Information should be coming along in three or four months.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 17—Frank Morgan and Leon Ames team again for "But Not Goodbye." Ames plays a Yankee fish packer. Keenan Wynn and Morgan do a couple of devilish astral spirits. Richard Quine and Audrey Totter will carry the romance while they kill off that lovable Cecil Kellaway with a bolt of lightning. It's all in the hands of S. Sylvan Simon and Irving Starr. . . . If Frank Capra's not careful, Leo McCarey may beat him to the punch on "The State of the Union." He, too, has been telephoning authors Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse about filming their play. . . . Bing Crosby may not return here until 1946. He has sifted so many radio offers back east, he feels plumb strained. He's holding out for a transcribed program and a hunk of stock in the sponsor's business. If he gets that kind of deal, it'll turn radio upside down. Maybe it'll look prettier that way.

Just Call Her Savage

Ann Savage, displeased with Columbia's treatment of her, got a release from her contract and went to PRC for a picture, which turns out to be a sleeper. Now, I hear, Harry Cohn, having ogled the film, is asking why Ann was let go. If I remember correctly, it was Cohn himself who okayed the release. . . . Rex Ingram, who played the Lawd in the screen version of "The Green Pastures," will be narrator in George Pal's technicolor fantasy, "John Henry and Inky-Pooh." The famous Negro Nash choir has been signed for background music. . . . Frances Langford, bringer of so much cheer to our boys during the war, has been named chairman of the entertainment committee for the armed forces "bedside network," which is especially designed for bed ridden men in 111 military hospitals.

Little Troubles of the Stars

Hedy Lamarr isn't having a baby; nor is she surprised that people think she is. Her name and Dorothy Lamour's are so similar that she's getting many of Dottie's baby presents. Then, too, the twin sister of Hedy's nurse has already been engaged for Lamour's. I don't wonder that you're mixed up. So's Hedy. . . . Dennis Hoey goes into "The Strange Woman" as Hedy Lamarr's father. . . . Don Barclay, famed cartoonist just back from doing soldier pictures abroad, visited Cary Grant on the "Notorious" set. When I asked whether combat slowed up his work, he replied, "Girl, the only thing you draw in combat is a gun!" Most Hollywood gals, he said, don't take kindly to his drawings of them—unless the pictures are in print with their names spelled right. He has done one of me, but is afraid to let me see it. If it's bad enough, I'd love it.

Feet First Into Fame

Johnny Coy, Paramount dancing star, is way ahead of the comer class—he's arrived. What a cute kid! Incidentally, since our modern screen story about Peter Lawford broke, he has been number one on their hit poll. When we picked him, he was fourth. . . . In one week Cedric Hardwicke finished directing Gertrude Lawrence in "Pygmalion," played opposite Helen Hayes on a radio broadcast, and started rehearsals with Katherine Cornell for "Antigone," which opens in Connecticut on New Year's eve.

A Stripper Scripts

Gypsy Rose Lee, when I visited her recently, showed me the workshop in which she locks herself when the writing bug hits her. It's on the fourth floor of the home formerly belonging to Charles Dillingham, and has everything from kitchenette to polar bear rug. I bet Gypsy crawls under that when she gets chilly. She told me of doing articles for a small magazine. I asked her why, with her name, she didn't go in for big time. "Because," she explained, "the editors of the little magazines don't change my words." . . . Eight stitches were needed for Hank Daniels' chin when Jack La Rue failed to pull his punch in a movie sequence at Republic. . . . With her role in "Heartbeat" finished, Ginger Rogers takes off for her Oregon ranch to spend the holidays.

INSTALMENT XXXVIII

DISCHARGED

Inspector Headcorn reflected aloud that it would not matter whether this Marks fellow were alive or dead except in the unlikely event that both the Bolles sisters happened to have destroyed existing wills.

"Marks? Who's he?" Crewhurst asked. "How does he come into it?"

"Simply that he is—or was—the residuary legatee in the event of a double intestacy, and the woman whose belongings we're ransacking now is, or has been, his legal wife. The facts are that the late Simon Bolles' niece married a first cousin, also a Bolles, but subsequently became Mrs. Marks. She was a potential heiress, you see, in her own right, and her two children, Millicent Bolles and much later Harry Marks, stood to inherit, if alive."

The Wyfforde man slapped his brow. "Millie Bolles! But she's the one that died in her bath out in Cairo, and if I'm not mistaken this little dark skinned customer stopping here at this very minute——"

"Just so. And according to him his half brother-in-law is alive. Something to think about, eh?"

"Whew!"

In the drawing room a curious scene was being enacted. Maud's suspicion filled eyes had traveled slowly from one face to another, always coming to rest on that of Avis. It was as Headcorn stepped without a sound into the darkened study that she launched her question.

"Doctor Bruce. How did he happen to be here?"

The accusing words stabbed thru the deadened stillness. Avis thought, she knows, she saw me at Bracken when she fired the shot. Robin spoke for her, awkwardly. "I gather he happened to be passing when the sergeant barged in."

"That's right," Sgt. Budworth confirmed.

"Most timely. One might say providential. Miss Marriott," she rasped, "you are discharged."

The unseen inspector saw the girl's mouth open in a gasp, sensed the electric vibrations of the lighted room he was watching. The young man, Grier, was flushing hotly, remonstrating in a voice rough with urgent dismay, "You can't hold Avis responsible for——"

"Miss Marriott knows my meaning," the mistress of Turrets overrode her godson. "What is that necklace you are trying to conceal under your dressing gown? I knew it! My mother's garnets. You have, in short, been accepting bribes."

Avis was on her feet, tearing at the clasp behind her delicate white throat. "She made me take them," she cried. "She was sweet to me, I'd have done anything in my power to save—"

"Miss Bolles," said the inspector as he appeared in the room. "I must inform you that while you are at liberty to dismiss your employe I cannot permit her or any one else to leave this house. Each and all of you will have to be cross-examined."

Again the turgid tide ebbed from Maud's cheekbones. "So you still persist in your utterly fantastic view of my sister's death? I tell you it is impossible, nothing you or Dr. Bruce can say will persuade . . . I shall demand an inquest."

"There will be an inquest," Headcorn said dryly. "Meanwhile, will you assert that it was your sister's nightly practice to polish the framework of her window with a damp cloth? And how does it happen that the slipper presumably worn on a sooty roof has no smut or grime on its sole?"

Every eye stared. In the strained hush following the inspector asked Avis if the bedroom casement had remained open all day. It had not. "I opened it myself this evening, after Miss Erica was in bed," she said.

"And did you wipe over the paint? You didn't. I see . . . Miss Bolles, all fingerprints in or round this window have been carefully removed. The slipper was not worn up to the roof, it was carried and placed where my sergeant found it—probably soon after the victim had been knocked unconscious in her bed and dropped thru her own window."

Maud collapsed into the nearest chair.

"Miss Marriott, come outside."

The inspector was marching her into the lounge. She was stammering stupidly about Erica's necklace, how till this fatal moment she'd kept it hidden, always desperately seeking a chance to slip it back to its owner.

"Did you drink your after-dinner coffee?" he demanded.

"Did I——? I must have, I remember her pouring it out and . . . No! I left it on the little table over by the back window. I was so frantic to sneak out. Some one did drink it tho. There were five empty cups when I washed up——"

"O, so you washed the cups! Pity. Did the victim have coffee? There's an empty cup in her room."

The victim! That was Erica. "I took hers up to her. You can't mean——"

"Mr. Grier, don't empty that vase!"

By the raised window sash Robin snarled, "What's wrong with throwing out dead flowers that stink to heaven? Miss Bolles is going to faint. O, have it your way!"

The button chrysanthemums were fresh, she'd picked them yesterday herself. She wondered why the water in the clear glass should have turned muddily brown. And then as the inspector took the vase and clumped down into the lounge with it she got a revealing whiff. Coffee.

The inspector was telling them they could now go to their respective rooms.

"And stop there. Sgt. Budworth will remain in the upper hall and see that none of you attempts to leave the house or to visit the top floor."

Maud did not stir. Robin had to touch her shoulder. They passed Avis, mounted the long curving stair, the sergeant following in their wake when he saw the other three dawdling below. Suddenly the sergeant's voice rang out.

"Your own room, Mr. Grier. What's this you've got under your jacket? Shoes!"

As Olive and the crushed Oscar began their climb Robin banged into his door across the landing. The inspector plunged past them, but waited till they had shut themselves into their rooms. Avis got to the stairhead just as the blond sergeant displayed his trophy. Maud's gray kid house shoes, wisps of black rabbit fur scuffed into the seams. She heard the inspector's subdued whistle.

"He was guiding her right in," the sergeant muttered. "Something warned me I'd better be quick on the draw and was I right? He nearly got away with it. The minute she'd slumped down in her armchair he'd got these off her feet and was whisking them away. I'll leave you to guess why."

"To get rid of this animal fluff. It's easily scuffed up from the carpets. What interests me is the soles."

Avis heard a step behind on the stair. The doctor. She knew by his look that he also had seen and heard. "O," the racked whisper came from her, "this is going to be terrible for him!"

"For Grier? Yes, quite."

Corned beef is easy to cook, and a chunk of it in the refrigerator is a guarantee that there'll be something to feed holiday guests or a crowd stopping in late after a play or movie. Thinly sliced corned beef also is attractive when arranged on a buffet table platter with cold sliced turkey.

To cook a piece of corned beef, cover it with water and place the cooking kettle over low heat so that the water just simmers. Then forget the meat for several hours. A piece of corned beef weighing two or three pounds will cook tender in two and one-half to three hours. A larger piece will take longer. If you buy a whole brisket, weighing about 10 or 12 pounds, cooking will take most of the day, probably six hours. No seasonings are needed in the cooking water, but if you want to drop in a few peppercorns, an onion, and a stalk of celery or a carrot, for added flavor, you'll certainly do no harm. Keep the kettle tightly covered.

The cooking water from corned beef is wonderful for vegetables. Often potatoes, carrots, and onions are cooked with the beef during the last 45 minutes on the range, but this cooking liquid can serve again at later meals, even if another kind of meat appears on the menu. For example, you might serve baked pork chops, baked potatoes, and green beans cooked in the corned beef water, saving the corned beef itself for a later reappearance.

The cooking water also makes an excellent sauce or gravy to serve with the beef. Make the sauce like white sauce, using the corned beef water in place of milk, and adding horseradish or mustard to sharpen the flavor.

Good corned beef hash can appear at a company dinner without apology; I like the kind made like an omelet, brown and crisp underneath, and folded. Baked hash with or without the poached eggs is good. Mustard, horseradish, or tartar sauce is the proper accompaniment.

Corned Beef Hash
[Serves four]
2 cups chopped cooked corned beef
2 cups chopped cooked potatoes
¼ cup chopped onion
1 cup cooking liquid from beef
Salt, pepper
Bacon drippings

Mix corned beef, potatoes, onion, and cooking liquid, adding salt and pepper to taste. Melt drippings in heavy skillet. Spread beef mixture evenly in skillet. Cover for the first 15 minutes. Then remove cover and continue to cook for 15 minutes longer, until bottom of hash is well browned. Use low heat. Fold hash like an omelet and turn it onto a hot platter to serve.

Planked hash and eggs are a fine supper dish. Spread the hash mixture of the preceding recipe on a greased plank, make indentations or "nests" in the surface of the hash with a tablespoon, and break an egg into each nest. Pour a little cream over each egg and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, until eggs are set and hash browned. Crisp bacon may be served on the side.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Creme Brulee
[Serves four]
4 eggs, slightly beaten
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup brown sugar
2 cups whipping cream, scalded

Combine eggs, salt, and ¼ cup sugar; add slowly to cream and beat constantly. Cook mixture in a double boiler 5 minutes, beating constantly with a rotary beater. Pour into a buttered baking dish and sprinkle remaining sugar on top. Place under broiler to form a crust and melt the sugar. Chill before serving.

THE QUESTION

What quotation of prose or poetry has remained in your memory since school days?

WHERE ASKED

511 S. Paulina st.

THE ANSWERS

Helen Tonka, supervisor, 2718 23d pl.—"Put I before E except after C, or when sounded like a, as in neighbor and weigh, and except seize and seizure, and also leisure, weird, height and either, forfeit and neither." A nun gave this poem to me in grammar school and I memorized it because I had trouble with my ie's and ei's.

M. S. Parker, chart artist, 1421 N. Ashland av.—As a punishment for misbehaving in school one afternoon I had to learn 25 verses from the Bible. I picked out the shortest verses I could find. The shortest verse in the Bible and the only verse I remember of those I memorized is "Jesus wept." It is a powerful phrase.

B. F. Higgins, section manager, 162 S. Stewart av., Lombard.—The history of the period when Lincoln was President has always attracted my interest. I took a great liking to it when I was in school and I still enjoy reading every bit of Lincolnia I can get my hands on. I remember Lincoln's Gettysburg address word for word.

Leda Myers, editor, 1350 N. Lorel av.—Our English teacher must have shared my liking for Chaucer as we were required to learn many parts of Chaucer's "Prologue to the Canterbury Tales." I learned many lines from this famous epic and can still quote them with the correct old English accent in which Chaucer wrote.

Harry H. Nissen, section manager, 5464 Cortez st.—The lines I remember are from "Paradise Lost" by Milton — "Here may we reign secure, and in my choice to reign is worth ambition, tho in hell. Better to reign in hell, than to serve in heaven." Our teacher taught Milton's writings in a very serious manner.

Scottish Rite Masons Plan Feast of St. John

The feast of St. John the Evangelist will be observed by Grougas chapter of Rose Croix, a Masonic Scottish rite group, with a special program at 8 p. m. Thursday in the Scottish Rite cathedral at 935 N. Dearborn st. Guest speaker will be Dr. H. Ray Anderson, minister at the Fourth Presbyterian church, whose theme will be "A Man Sent from God." There will be singing and instrumental music by stage and radio entertainers, and presentation of a holiday story, "Spirit of Christmas."

Daughters of Sweden to Have Christmas Sing

A Christmas sing is a tradition of the season with the American Daughters of Sweden, and tonight members and guests will hear an unusually gala program in the Fine Arts building. The club's large chorus will be augmented by two guest groups, the Norwegian Singers league and the Danish Illinois Singing society. All three choruses will perform separately and will combine in one massed choir to sing carols.

Scholars Told: Map Program for Homework

on the SOLID side

This business of getting an education is a pretty serious routine. If all fellows and gals devote 12 years of their life to it, nine months a year, five days a week, and six hours a day, it must be something important. So as long as it takes so much time, why not make the most of this yearnin' for learnin' that's upon you? For what guy or gal has 12 years to waste?

You're a smart young character, but no one would ever know it from the homework routine you follow. You're one of those brains whose idea of a perfect setup for sopping up knowledge is a comfortable chair within easy reach of the radio, the phone, three or four of this month's magazines and, if at all possible, with the concession on the family icebox as well. You'd rather do anything than the assigned work, and first thing you know you've frittered away the entire evening. Come now, is this how geniuses are made?

Let's get on the ball and map out a personal program for homework pursuits. You know before you start how much time you have to spend on each subject, so add it all up and it comes out how long you'll have to hit the books of an evening.

Pick yourself a quiet spot, as far as possible from the temptations of phone books and gin rummy cards, and concentrate. Even a genius, j. g., would find it tough trying to cope with an experiment in organic chemistry and Perry Como's "I'll Buy That Dream" at the same time. Something like that is bound to be distracting. And if you try to mix your history reading and your favorite radio show, whose fault is it if you pop out with Bob Hope's latest gag right in the middle of your serious report on Jackson's Civil war campaign?

Plan your work, allot yourself enough time, and stick to the plan. If you're given a large project as an assignment a month or two in advance, do the work little by little instead of setting the household in an uproar by working into the wee hours of the dawn the day before the assignment is due. And when your work is done, if it's done steadily and with concentrated effort, there will be plenty of time for all the fun you want to fit in, too.

You may be a bright young character, it's true, with all the potential talents of a baby genius, but even Einstein takes time out to brush up on his theory of relativity once in a while!

Nylon Hosiery Stocks Gradually Piling Up, but Not on Counters

New York, Dec. 17 (AP)—Nylon hosiery has not turned up yet on store counters, but stocks gradually are being built up all along the line.

The National Association of Hosiery manufacturers said today yarn now is available to turn out 2½ million dozen pairs a month.

Some manufacturers are stockpiling nylons until they can make sizable shipments to retail accounts. Others are alloting output as it is available and retailers are building up their own inventories. A resident buying office said shipments received by retailers have been so small they have not dared put the nylons on their counters. Some have distributed the hose to store employes and others have contributed them as premiums in war bond drives.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	Pass
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
1 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass

Opening lead, seven of spades.

Today we have another slight case of fraud. West perpetrated a swindle of a type not frequently seen and while South might have avoided the disaster, in all fairness his case is one which calls for our collective sympathies.

The bidding was rather circuitous. South's opening is a little short of the technical requirements for an opening bid, but the hand has the merit of containing seven honor cards distributed thru all the suits, and furthermore can be opened with one club which always permits an opener to get out at a reasonable level. North responded with one diamond awaiting developments and South's rebid of one heart is preferable to one no trump, inasmuch as spades are not stopped. The reader will note that the showing of a new suit at the level of one requires no additional strength in the hand of the opening bidder. North, "overapproached" with a bid of one spade and South dutifully respected the showing of a new suit by responder, by calling one no trump. North decided to stop fiddling and contracted for game.

West was in the unhappy position of not being able to lead the unbid suit. His predicament was somewhat reminiscent of the elderly lady who was on lead with a holding of four kings and demanded a new deal because she just couldn't lead from a king. He chose the seven of spades thru dummy's announced four card suit.

Declarer ducked and the trick was taken by East with the queen. The two of hearts placed the lead in dummy. No danger appeared imminent as declarer went lightly about building up extra tricks in the club suit. The nine was led from dummy and ducked in the closed hand. West permitted this to hold. Intoxicated with the success of this maneuver declarer continued with another club and West peeled off the four setting tricks.

No brief is held for the manner in which declarer went about his business, but the fact remains that West employed a splendid bit of strategy. It was quite apparent to him that with normal play declarer could tally nine tricks, since he was marked with the ace-king of diamonds and the queen of hearts, as well as the jack of spades. If he took the jack of clubs and then cashed the ace and king a trick would be developed for declarer in that suit. If he didn't cash, he would never get in again since East is known to have only one club.

Of course, when the nine of clubs held the trick, declarer should have run for cover with his nine top tricks, but the lure of the overtrick was too much for him.

Dr. Yard to Review 10 Years' Work of Round Table Group

A decade of work for the bettering of human relations will be reviewed tomorrow by Dr. James M. Yard, founder and director of the Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews, at the organization's anniversary luncheon in the Continental hotel. The guest speaker will be Chancellor Arthur H. Compton of Washington university, who will discuss "Human Relations in the Atomic Age."

In the summer of 1935 Dr. W. E. Garrison of the Christian Century called together a group of prominent citizens who organized the round table. Gen. Charles G. Dawes was appointed chairman, with Fred W. Sargent, Albert D. Lasker, and Judge John P. McGoorty of Superior court as vice chairmen. Judge McGoorty has remained as co-chairman of the round table, with Max Epstein and Austin L. Wayman currently as co-chairmen.

About 50 meetings were held in the first year, in schools and churches, acquainting the community with the ideals of amity and brotherhood. Thus far this year more than 1,000 meetings have been held, and about 125 high schools and colleges have participated in programs sponsored by the round table. As a result of Dr. Yard's efforts round table groups have been set up in Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Denver, Des Moines, Kansas City, and South Bend.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

The Nick of Time

I sometimes wonder what went wrong;
Just what it was that changed you so.
[At one time I was quite concerned;
It's unimportant now to know.]

I used to worry, just at first,
About what happened, when and how.
[It bothered me a little then;
I seldom think about it now.]

All things must change, they say, and you
Have shown precisely what is meant.
[Not that you broke my heart, my dear,
You merely added one small dent.]

SHIRLEY

Telephone Etiquet

I wonder how many subscribers [who do not use dial phones] realize how much they can help their operators by remembering a few simple rules which will avoid many wrong numbers.

Speak directly into the transmitter, with your lips not more than a half inch away, using your normal tone of voice. Never use the word "please" after giving the number because it sounds too much like "three." Also, because "two" and "three" sound much the same, say "too" and "th-ree." Pronounce "four" as "fo-wer," and always make a full round "O."

Two little aggravators are "five" and "nine." They sound somewhat alike, so say carefully "fi-ive" and "ny-yen."

Don't hurriedly swallow the last digit or letter when giving a number. Enunciate each one carefully and you will soon find you are not getting many wrong numbers.

Keep sufficient change in your hand when using a public pay phone, in the event you talk overtime. If you have to scramble frantically around for another nickel, one position on the board is being tied up and impatient customers are flashing and muttering, "That operator must be asleep again."

"Presto"
I said—and opened Mom's eyes with my Quick Fruit Coffee Cake!

● Yes—Presto is the answer to fancy baking with modern ease. For Presto is more than a cake flour—it's self-rising cake flour! The baking powder and salt are already in it—pre-measured and pre-mixed by a wonderful blending process that whirls them together 100 times a minute. Saves you a lot of measuring and sifting . . . eliminates the most frequent cause of baking failures. Prove it with this recipe . . .

PRESTO QUICK FRUIT COFFEE CAKE

2 cups Presto Self-Rising Cake Flour
½ cup Nucoa or shortening
1 egg
¼ cup honey
¼ cup corn syrup
¼ cup milk
¾ cup moist mincemeat

(1) Sift, measure Presto. (2) Cut in Nucoa till coarse crumbs are formed. (3) Beat egg very light with the honey and corn syrup. (4) Add with the milk and mincemeat to Presto. (5) Mix only until moistened and turn into greased pan lined with waxed paper and paper greased. (6) Bake in moderately hot oven (375° F.) 25 to 30 minutes. (7) Remove from pan at once and coat with thin confectioners' sugar frosting or honey. (8) Sprinkle with ¼ cup chopped nuts if desired and return to oven for 2 minutes. Yield: One 8 x 8 inch square.

SELF RISING CAKE FLOUR

Use Presto in any cake-flour recipe, but omit the steps of adding baking powder and salt. They're already in Presto!

LESLIE O'CONNOR FILLS TWO JOBS

He'll Give Up the Old One Soon, However

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

After 25 years Leslie O'Connor yesterday discovered that baseball really has its complications. He found himself at the two extremities of the business—one as general manager of the White Sox and the other as assistant to the commissioner—and to add to his distress it will take him until the first of the year to squirm free of the latter entanglements and thus be able to hang his hat regularly at Comiskey park.

As far as being moved from the commissioner's pay roll to that of the White Sox, that was taken care of when he officially succeeded Harry Grabiner Dec. 15, but somebody has to see that the furniture is packed and delivered at Cincinnati where the new commissioner, A. B. Chandler, is setting up headquarters. And O'Connor is taking care of these details.

It's a Huge Job

Moving the commissioner's property isn't just a matter of opening the door and giving the movers the word. There are records upon records involved in the case. There are the old files of the national commission which went out of business to make room for K. M. Landis as the big boss in January of 1921.

In the years that baseball was handled by a one man board, decisions were handed down at length, the simplicity of the old national commission having failed to establish a permanent style. All these decisions, made by Landis until his death a bit more than a year ago, must be shipped to Chandler.

Dykes Takes a Hint

It is gradually dawning on the folks that James Dykes who handles the White Sox on the field, was wide awake when he noticed the "This Place Has Changed Hands" sign on the office that henceforth will be occupied by O'Connor.

Somebody recalled for Dykes' ears that time worn crack about a new broom sweeping better than an old one and this, 'tis said, reminded the manager that he had been going along for several years with more than one club's share of dead wood. That's how it happened that both Pitchers Johnny Humphries and Lee Ross were unloaded on the Phillies.

Phillips Wins Elimination Title Fight in London

LEEDS, England, Dec. 17 [Reuters]—Al Phillips of London beat Jim Brady of Dundee, Scotland, in an elimination bout for the British and empire featherweight title tonight when the referee stopped the fight in the sixth round.

Waterfield Is Man of Hour in Cleveland

BY EDWARD PRELL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Cleveland, O., Dec. 17—Bob Waterfield's most enthusiastic fan is Dan Reeves, the smallish, dapper, 33 year old, New York born owner of the world champion Cleveland Rams. Dan can afford to talk profusely about football's latest sensation, at least for the next three years, because during this period the two will have no salary huddles.

It is highly probable that the rookie quarter back holds the richest player contract of all current National Football league players. Cleveland newspapers reported it calls for a total of $60,000 for the 1946-'47-'48 seasons. Today Reeves would not affirm or deny it, but did admit the estimate is "very close."

The Whole Thing's Secret

"I told him," said Dan, "not to talk about the terms of the contract."

"O. K.," he replied, "I'm not even going to tell my wife."

Reeves agreed that the 190 pound Waterfield was a prominent fellow in the Rams' 15 to 14 triumph here yesterday over the Washington Redskins, but he thinks Bob's most remarkable performance was on Thanksgiving day, when the Rams whipped the Lions in Detroit to clinch the western division title.

"In the Cardinal game in Chicago the Sunday before Thanksgiving," said Reeves, "Bob suffered muscle injuries in his side. Until the day of the Detroit game he couldn't raise his right arm. We gave him a couple of shots to deaden the pain. You know what he did to the Lions."

In this game, Waterfield threw 10 passes to Jim Benton for 303 yards, giving Jim a new league record for yardage in a single game.

The Rumors Are Spiked

Reeves definitely took care of a flock of rumors which have been swirling around the town. He denied emphatically that Lt. Paul Brown will coach the Rams next year. This is a report which has been picking up momentum for several days. Lt. Brown will coach the rival Cleveland eleven in the All-America conference.

"Adam Walsh's contract has another year to run," said the club owner. "And we have an option on his services for three additional years. As for his assistants, Bob Snyder and George Trafton, they know they will be welcome to return."

He denied that the champions will train next summer in California. The Rams were based in Bowling Green, O., this year and Reeves said there is a possibility they will find a spot in Wisconsin.

"We don't want to be too far away from the college All-Star game," he added. The Rams will make their first appearance in this brilliant series, sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., next August in Soldiers' field.

BY FRANK MASTRO

Finals of the first post-war boxing tournament sponsored by the Catholic Youth organization will be held tonight in the Coliseum. Thirty-two of Chicago's ablest amateurs will compete for the 16 championships in this 15th C. Y. O. fistic spectacle—eight in the open class and a similar number in the novice division. These are the survivors of an original field of 312.

Only defending champions able to come thru the early battling with flying colors were Welterweight Abe Lee and Featherweight Joe Plummer. Both represent the Lewis School of Aeronautics at Lockport, Ill. Lee also won the National A. A. U. 147 pound title last April, while Plummer was successful in his quest for the 1945 city Golden Gloves bantamweight crown. The 18 year old Lee will be pitted against Don Lonergan of St. Matthew parish, winner of the Chicago Golden Gloves novice lightweight championship 10 months ago.

Plummer to Meet Yoshino

Plummer's opponent will be Pvt. Yoshito Yoshino of Fort Sheridan, who yesterday was substituted for Johnny Mezzano, a discharged army veteran, after the latter reported he would be unable to fight because of illness. Yoshino gave Plummer's backers a scare in the semi-final competition last month when he had Joe on the verge of a knockout in the first round. Plummer subsequently was awarded a third round technical knockout when Yoshito was unable to continue because of a hand injury.

That is the only change in the program, which will start at 8:15 o'clock with the novice flyweight title fight between Hilton Depillars, St. Anselm, and Reyes Garcia, St. Francis Assisi. Following the heavyweight novice championship event involving Don Lambert, St. Joseph, Summit, Ill., and Tom Horton of St. Elizabeth parish, the ring will be cleared for the battles between their more experienced compatriots.

Five Veterans in Running

Five honorably discharged service men remain in the running for championships. These are Charles Hobday and John Polcyn, army sergeant and marine sergeant, respectively, who are the open heavyweight finalists; Jack [Scotty] McBurnie, navy radioman, open bantamweight; Jack Morrissey, army air forces bombardier, novice lightweight, and Goodwain Murry, army noncom, novice middleweight.

Favorite for the team trophy is St. Elizabeth High school, which has four survivors in the running.

All the finalists will report at C. Y. O. center gymnasium at 2 p. m. today to be weighed and examined.

Proceeds of the big show will go to Bishop Sheil's fund for underprivileged youths. Tonight's pairings:

AMONG the candidates for the University of Wisconsin basketball team are Tom Rippe, son of the Badgers' football line coach, and Seymour Bakke, son of the school's trainer. . . . Both are returned service men. . . . John Sobek, forward on the Notre Dame quintet, is the third member of his family to play basketball for the Irish. . . . George won monograms from 1939 thru 1942, and Andy was a varsity man last season. . . . The latter is at his Hammond home just now awaiting his draft call. . . . A fourth brother, Frank, is a Hammond High school star. . . . The big crowds at the Tulane-Notre Dame and Tulane-Louisiana State football games on successive Saturdays cut into the attendance at the New Orleans Fairgrounds race track. There will be no conflict Jan. 1, however, as the races will be held in the forenoon, allowing the fans ample time to reach the Sugar bowl for the Oklahoma A. and M.-St. Mary's contest. . . . Johnny Grodzicki, brilliant young Cardinal mound prospect, has received an honorable discharge from the army and will play in Panama until time to report to the club's Florida spring base. . . . Boxer Jack London, whose real name is Stan d'Asquith, has joined the Oakland, Cal., police force. . . . The Chinese Golfers Association of Northern California boasts nearly 400 members and conducts monthly tournaments. . . . James Wong Howe, the well known Hollywood camera man, is a member, as is Charles Lowe, owner of a big stable of pacers and trotters. . . .

The University of Minnesota hockey team walloped Michigan twice last winter, 10 to 0 and 15 to 2, but Vic Heyliger, coach of the Wolverines, has a much stronger sextet this season. . . . The ice rivals will meet in a series for the Western conference championship in Ann Arbor Jan. 18 and 19 and in Minneapolis Feb. 1 and 2. . . . Manager Ossie Bluege of the Washington Senators has purchased a farm near those of two former big league stars—Sam Rice and Lu Blue. . . . Joe Cronin says his playing days are thru. . . . "I'll not even do any pinch batting in 1946," says the Boston Red Sox boss, "Let the young fellows do it, now that the war is over and all." . . . Ballet dancing requires a rugged constitution. . . . Frank Nelson of the San Francisco ballet, for example, once called signals as first string quarter back for the City's Commerce High school eleven, and Joaquin Felsch, another feature dancer, held the ski championship of Chile. . . . If Lt. Johnny Walsh should return to the University of Wisconsin in time for the boxing season, as reported, the school would have two of the nation's leading ring coaches. . . . The other is Navy Lt. De Witt Portal, who formerly coached at San Jose, Cal., college.

Our Yesterdays

We pause and maybe think with fear
Of days now gone—days full of pain,
Of days we would not live again.
But we'll forget and 'neath the sod
We'll bury them—and trust in God.

So for our yesterdays we will not grieve,
Instead, above their graves we'll smile and leave
Blue violets, for faith, and hope, and spring,
While autumn leaves for memories we bring. —J. O. L.

Chicago Golf Fans Get Two Meets in July

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

The Chicago district golf season, busiest in the country thruout the war years, will step up its competitive tempo next July, when the Victory National tournaments conducted by the Chicago District Golf association and the All-American events run by George S. May of Tam O' Shanter will be held in consecutive weeks.

This was announced jointly yesterday by Robert S. Hulbert, newly elected president of the C. D. G. A. and Maestro May. The Victory National program, which embraces a 72 hole open competition, as well as special duels in pro-amateur, pro-ladies, and pro-senior divisions, will be played from July 17 thru 21. These shows will be pursued by the All-American open, amateur and women's tournaments in the next week, July 24 thru 28, at Tam O' Shanter.

Avoid Date Conflicts

Hulbert and May agreed to the succession of weeks in the interests of avoiding date conflicts, loss of time and unnecessary travel and expense to the players. Byron Nelson, who Sunday won his 19th big league tournament of the year in Fort Worth, Tex., is the defending champion in both open sections, and is expected to be on hand for both tournaments.

Mention of date conflicts also brings up the impending meeting of various golf association officials thruout this area, which the C. D. G. A. will hold shortly for the second straight year. Past seasons produced a number of date clashes in tournament play, with the result that many outstanding tournaments were neglected.

Iron Out Troubles

A year ago last week, Larry Rutherford, then president of the C. D. G. A., assembled the officers of all golfing groups hereabouts, and arranged what proved to be the most neatly timed schedule in Chicago golf history. Hulbert plans to pursue the same policy, and has appointed Rutherford the new tournament chairman to arrange 1946 dates so that they will not conflict.

Rutherford yesterday was beginning to iron out the potential runins between the C. D. G. A. tournaments and a number of outstanding battles in the public links field, which the association entered last year.

Keeleys Set 2d Mark with 1,240 Single

The record breaking Keeley Half and Half bowling team established another national season mark last night in the North End Traveling league. The Keeleys, who recently shot a 3,463 series for the best team score in the nation, last night added a 1,240 high single team game while defeating the Baby Ruths on the Kaadland Recreation alleys.

Paul Marion led the Keeleys in setting the new record, compiling 11 strikes to finish with 298. George [Ace] Calder produced 268, Harold Ploch finished with 254, Matt Simmons turned in 225, and Carl Winterberg had 195. The Baby Ruths won the first game, 943 to 928, but the Keeleys took the second, 1,178 to 1,083, and the third, 1,240 to 1,074.

The two victories increased the Keeleys' lead in the league to three games. The defeat in the first game was the Keeleys' second suffered on their home alleys this season.

Marion ended the evening's bowling with a 764 series, which included 29 strikes and no spares. He shot a 200 in the first game and then added a 266. He appeared on the way to a perfect game in the last, but leveled only eight pins in the last frame to finish with a 198. Scores:

BALTIMORE TO ALL-AMERICA: FIELD IS YOURS

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 17 (AP)—Officials of the Baltimore club of the All-America conference were assured today by the city park board they would have the use of the city's big Municipal stadium next fall.

R. Bruce Livie, who holds the franchise, and his principal associate, Edward Nielsen of New York, named Howard Jones of Baltimore and Henry Knight of Chicago as others associated in the Baltimore club and said that three Washingtonians, whom he did not name, also were interested financially.

HAWKS SEEK TO MOVE INTO 1ST PLACE TIE

Face Canadiens at Home Tomorrow

BY EDWARD BURNS

The goal-crazy Chicago Blackhawks and the fancy Montreal Canadiens will meet tomorrow night in Chicago Stadium. The Hawks, with a background of an 8 to 3 victory over the Boston Bruins, a 7 to 3 triumph over the New York Rangers and a 6 to 4 conquest of the Detroit Red Wings, in their last three starts, expect to win and move into a first place tie with the Canadiens.

Bill Mosienko

Regardless of which team wins, there will be keen personal rivalry, for this season's greatest scoring line will be skating against the line which was hailed last season as one of the greatest forward strings in the history of the league. To name names, the league-leading line composed of Doug and Max Bentley and Bill Mosienko will be skating against the Canadiens sterling trio, Maurice Richard, Elmer Lach and Toe Blake.

Hawks' Line Tops

The Hawks' top line is far ahead of the Canadien threesome in personal attainment this season. Richard-Lach-Blake have accounted for 25 goals and 24 assists for 49 points in 18 games; the Bentley brothers and their flashy pal, Mosie, have rung up 72 points with 35 goals and 37 assists in 17 engagements.

Despite the foregoing supremacy of the Chicago line, Blake in the week's scoring table was good enough to horn into the top five individual scorers on the season's totals. Otherwise the top five would be exclusively Blackhawk.

In figures compiled after Sunday night's games, Max Bentley continued to top the league in both goals and total points. Max has made 17 goals and 13 assists for 30 points. Mosienko is second with 10 goals and 14 assists. Blake and the Hawks' Clint Smith are tied for third on points, each with 19. Blake has made 12 goals to Smith's 10.

Doug Bentley Climbs

Doug Bentley, by virtue of two goals and an assist in Sunday night's 6 to 4 conquest of Detroit, passed his teammate, Alex Kaleta. Doug has made 8 goals and 10 assists and Kaleta has made 7 goals and 10 assists. After this flock of five Hawks and Canadien Blake comes Blake's linemate, Lach, with five goals and 11 assists. Richard is twelfth on the scoring list with eight goals and six assists.

The Canadiens, who have been in first place or thereabouts all season, nevertheless are finding the going much tougher than in the last two war time seasons.

St. George to Open Holiday Meet Tonight

Play in the 12th annual senior Catholic high school pre-season basketball tourney sponsored by St. George High school will start tonight at 6 p. m. when Holy Trinity and De La Salle meet in the St. George gymnasium.

Five first round games will be played tonight, the unusually heavy card being necessitated by a big entry list of 21 teams. Following the opening game, St. Mel will meet St. Gregory, St. Rita will oppose St. Clement, St. Ignatius will play St. Constance, and the host team, St. George, will encounter St. Michael.

Mount Carmel High school has been named the favorite for the championship. Last year the south side quintet was defeated in the second round by St. Patrick, which then went on to take the crown. This season the Carmelites, with four veterans, have won six of seven games. The favorites will start in quest of the title tomorrow night against Lewis School of Aeronautics from Lockport.

St. Patrick will play its first game Thursday night with St. Elizabeth, one of the newer members of the expanding Catholic league. Play will continue daily thru Sunday when the finals will be held.

N. U. AND DE PAUL FACE STADIUM TESTS FRIDAY

Northwestern and De Paul will place their undefeated records at stake against two of the tallest teams in college basketball in the first of a series of double header programs in Chicago Stadium Friday night.

The Blue Demons who possess plenty of height in George Mikan, 6 foot 9 inch center, will be forced to concede an over-all height advantage to Oregon State, whose starting five will average 6 feet 5 inches. Northwestern's opponent will be Western Michigan of Kalamazoo, a team which averages 6 feet 3 inches.

Both visiting teams are expected to give the local quintets their strongest competition of the current season, a fact which was conceded by Coaches Ray Meyer of De Paul and Dutch Lonborg of Northwestern at yesterday's basketball writers' luncheon in the Morrison hotel.

WRITERS' POLL NAMES M'MILLIN COACH OF YEAR

New York, Dec. 17 (AP)—Alvin [Bo] McMillin, whose coaching of Indiana to the 1945 Big Nine football championship has brought him two personal honors in three days, said today that "the honors make me feel just as good as the day I scored that touchdown against Harvard."

McMillin, named the coach of the year today in a poll of coaches conducted by the New York Herald-Telegram and picked as the sport's man of the year by the Football Writers' Association of America on Saturday, referred to the touchdown he made for Centre college in its 6 to 0 upset triumph over Harvard in 1921.

STUD HORSE IMPORTED

Club Owners Back Chief in Topping Case

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Cleveland, O., Dec. 17 — The National Football league today voted, 10 to 1, in affirming Commissioner Elmer Layden's previous decision forfeiting Dan Topping's Brooklyn franchise and awarding all its players to the Boston Yanks.

The dissenting ballot was cast by Emil Levin, a member of the legal staff of J. Arthur Friedlund, Chicago attorney who is the representative of Topping. When Topping announced recently that he had joined the All-America conference to establish his club in Yankee Stadium, he said that Friedlund had succeeded him as president of the Brooklyn club.

Topping Sells Stock

Levin declared at today's hearing that Topping has disposed of all his stock, 51 per cent, in the Brooklyn club. The National league replied that Topping never has reported such action and that sale of the stock would have to be approved by it. This stand meant that the league considers Topping the head man of the Brooklyn franchise.

The National league questioned Levin's right to appear in behalf of the Brooklyn club as the representative of Friedlund, whom they do not recognize as its president. As a "matter of courtesy," however, it was pointed out, he was allowed to stay in the meeting and even cast a vote.

Layden Holds Three Proxies

Commissioner Layden held the proxy votes of the New York, Boston and Philadelphia clubs. Team representatives at the hearing were: Phil Handler, Chicago Cardinals; Ralph Brizzolara, Chicago Bears; Chile Walsh, Cleveland Rams; John Holohan, Pittsburgh Steelers; Lee Joannes, Green Bay Packers; Sid Carroll, Washington Redskins and Gus Dorais, Detroit Lions.

BID FOR FRANCHISE

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 17 (AP)—The Los Angeles county council of the American Legion today made a tentative offer to purchase the franchise in the National Football league of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Harry Meyers, representing the Legion group, wired President Elmer Layden:

FARMERS MUST GET AID OF U. S., SEN. HILL SAYS

Funds Needed to Educate Rural Children

The American farmer, celebrated for his rugged individualism and pugnacious independence, has changed, evidently, and now must look to his government for his education and hospitalization.

The changes were told yesterday in an address by Sen. Hill (D., Ala.) before the 11th annual session of the Associated Women of the American Farm Bureau federation at the Sherman hotel. Federal aid, the senator said, was the only solution to protecting the health of the nation's rural population and seeing that its youth received proper instruction in the three Rs. He mentioned he was co-sponsor of bills in both causes.

Send Millions Out of Areas

He explained: "The farmers send millions of their dollars out of the rural sections each normal, peace time year into other sections for . . . automobiles, farm machinery, fertilizer, clothing, manufactured goods. . . . The rural sections cannot tax the profits from these millions of their farm dollars. The only way the rural sections can get back some of the farmers' dollars so badly needed for schools and education . . . is by the federal government collecting some of the dollars in taxes and sending the dollars back to the farm sections thru federal aid for education."

Arguing for federal subsidies to hospitals, he said doctors flocked to spots where there were adequate facilities. When he asked for a show of hands from those who believe they have adequate facilities, fewer than 5 per cent responded.

Sigrid Schultz Speaks

Sigrid Schultz, Berlin correspondent for THE TRIBUNE spoke to the women last night and asserted that American administration of occupied Germany has "lost the first round" because of untrained, gullible officials in charge.

"Our part is to devise a plan for the Germans to do constructive work," she said. "We must get men and women to Europe who are trained for the job of administration."

The session had drawn 108 voting delegates from 39 states, altho approximately 600 women were present. Today will be devoted to sessions on family problems.

'OLD MOMAN,' 73, DRAMATIST OF COURTS, DIES

Oklahoma City, Okla., Dec. 17 (Special)—"Old Moman," courtroom dramatist who in a colorful career obtained acquittals for 303 accused slayers, died here today of pneumonia at 73. Once rich and nationally known, he died in near poverty in a room where for the last two years he had lived alone on a $40 a month pension.

Moman Pruiett

His full name was Moman Pruiett. He was born on an Ohio river boat and had only 19 months of formal schooling. He studied law in a law office where he was employed as a shoe shine boy and janitor and was admitted to the bar at 23.

Convicted in Robbery

His ambition to become a lawyer, he related in an autobiography, stemmed from his conviction while still a boy of a Texas robbery he said he didn't commit. "I'll turn murderers and thieves loose in your midst," he threatened the judge who sentenced him to five years.

Pruiett began practicing law in the southwest at a time when most lawyers based their pleas on bare facts. Pruiett introduced emotion and fed it to frontier juries in large doses. He was a picturesque figure, with black hair falling below his shoulders.

In one trial the prosecution scoffed at his self-defense plea for a client, accused of slaying a man who had threatened him with a pencil. Pruiett, who contended a pencil could resemble a knife, seized a juror by the collar and lunged at his breast with a pencil. The jury agreed a pencil could look like a knife and voted acquittal.

None Sentenced to Gallows

On another occasion a penniless Negro was sentenced to death despite a vigorous defense by Pruiett. The lawyer went to Washington and appealed to President McKinley, obtaining a commutation. No one of 343 accused slayers for whom Pruiett appeared in 27 states ever paid the death penalty.

Pruiett's wife died in 1943. The last of his fortune vanished when a hurricane swept away his Florida mansion and other Florida properties.

URGE RENAMING 5 G.O.P. COUNTY BOARD MEMBERS

The names of William N. Erickson, William Busse, George A. Miller, George F. Nixon, and John Mackler, Republican country town members of the county board, were handed to the Republican 1946 slate committee yesterday as potential candidates for reelection. George M. Fisher, chairman, said Erickson's name was submitted as a possible candidate for board president.

Robert L. Hunter, president of the State civil service commission and a former president of the Better Government association, was proposed as candidate for county judge. Dr. J. B. Martin was suggested by 2d ward leaders for sanitary district trustee. Atty. John W. Taucher was suggested by the 39th ward for clerk of the Probate court.

Harold A. Slegan, lawyer, 43d ward, was profered for Municipal court judge as was former Municipal court Judge Joseph L. McCarthy. Skokie Republican leaders submitted the name of George E. Dilley, lawyer and World War II. veteran, for country town county commissioner.

MORE PARKING SPACE IS URGED FOR HIGHWAYS

Increased parking space of a permanent nature must be provided at super-highway entrances to the central business district, the Cook county advisory committee on superhighway financing was told yesterday.

Permanent parking lots of the open deck type and with as many as three levels may be needed, said Matt Sielski, engineer for the Chicago Motor club. Sielski is a member of the committee which is studying a proposed 70 million dollar county bond issue, to be retired from motor fuel tax funds, which would be used to rush the construction of expressways.

It was urged that city officials take immediate steps to see that adequate parking space is set aside in suitable locations.

PAY INCREASES BY BUDGET ONLY URGED ON BOARD

Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary of the Civic federation, yesterday urged the sanitary district board not to grant wage or salary increases in any fiscal year in which they are not set up in the budget.

Pointing out that the board granted its employes a 9 per cent increase this year thru transfer of funds within departments, Sutherland told the board at a public hearing on the 1946 tentative budget that, "We do not believe it was the intent of the legislature to permit fundamental changes in the budget during the course of a year." Such changes make the public hearings on the original budget meaningless, he said.

The board, which has under consideration a tentative budget of $59,453,669, heard pleas from a dozen labor organizations for wage adjustments, and a protest from Frank J. Bilek, president of the Cook County Civic council, over a board consisting of nine trustees. Bilek said five could do as good a job.

MISSING WOMAN FOUND 12 MILES FROM HER HOME

Mrs. Imgeborg Michaelson, 37, of Long Lake, Lake county, who vanished from her home on Dec. 4, was found yesterday at the home of relatives in Antioch, a village 12 miles from Long Lake.

After she disappeared her divorced husband, Rudolph, 43, a textile factory worker, was detained for questioning, but was subsequently released. The four youngest of their six children were placed in temporary homes.

When she appeared before County Judge Jerry L. Persons to ask for custody of the children, Mrs. Michaelson said she left home because Michaelson refused to get out. The couple was divorced Sept. 24.

WOUNDED GIRL, WHO WON'T TALK, TO FACE COURT

Joan Forrest, alias Mary Winters, 23, who was arrested Sunday after she called at a physician's office to have a bullet wound in her left ankle dressed, will appear this morning before Chief Justice Harold G. Ward for a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus. She has been a patient at County hospital since her arrest and has refused to tell police why or by whom she was shot.

Town hall police were working with authorities in California in an effort to determine if there could be any connection between Joan and a Mary Anna Winters who was arrested in Long Beach, Cal., in 1941 on suspicion of grand theft of an automobile. No disposition of the case was given in the wire. Fingerprints of the Mary Anna Winters mentioned in the wire were similar to those taken of the woman in County hospital. The descriptions of the two also were identical. Police did not disclose their information to the girl.

She told police she knew no one in Chicago and that she probably was wounded by "a stray bullet."

CITY COUNCIL APPROVES NEW GARBAGE LAW

A new refuse disposal ordinance providing fines from $5 to $200 for persons who throw garbage into alleys or streets or who fail to provide suitable refuse containers for their homes or places of business was approved yesterday by the city council.

A suitable can is described as of heavy gage metal, with a tight fitting cover, from 20 to 32 gallons in size. Enforcement of the container provision will be suspended until at least Jan. 1, 1947, if a home owner has a satisfactory container of either metal or concrete.

The ordinance also says private scavengers must change to closed body trucks as their old trucks wear out. The license fee for scavenging was raised from $25 to $100 per vehicle. City collections will be made at homes or apartments containing less than five living units and business establishments that have less than one can of refuse a week. Others must employ private scavengers.

On a table beside the bed was a bottle of cleaning fluid, and a bottle containing medicine for indigestion. Two war bonds found in the room carried the name of William F. Prendergast, 2102 Clinton st., Minneapolis, as beneficiary.

Examination of the body by a coroner's physician failed to establish the cause of death. A chemical analysis will be made.

BAN UNNEEDED BUILDING, CPA HEAD REQUESTS

Small Asks Change in Cities' Codes

BY ROBERT YOUNG
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17—The government today asked communities to prohibit nonessential building, including night clubs and "juke joints," until the housing crisis is nearer solution. The construction industry was urged to exercise its ingenuity and use substitutes for scarce brick and lumber to hasten volume production of new houses.

Both requests were made by Civilian Production Administrator Small who asserted the communities "have a duty" in the housing emergency to revise their building codes to permit use of substitute materials, such as concrete blocks, in place of lumber.

Addresses Opening Session

Small addressed the opening session of a two day housing conference. Attended by representatives of government, AFL and CIO labor unions, and real estate, building and home financing interests, it was called by the national housing agency at the suggestion of Reconversion Director Snyder.

Delegates will attempt to work out ways to stimulate construction activity and relieve the housing shortage. The meeting also is expected to bring out expressions of opinion on President Truman's housing program which sets a goal of 500,000 new homes in 1946 and provides for price ceilings on new and old houses.

Emphasizing the need of housing for war veterans, Small said communities could use their building permit systems to prevent a drain on building materials thru nonessential construction.

He estimated the country's need for new homes is 1,250,000 units annually in the next 10 years, but said 1946 construction will total about 600,000.

Biggest Demand from Vets

John B. Blandford Jr., national housing administrator who is presiding at the conference, read a letter from Snyder in which the reconversion director said a large part of the houses to be built next year should sell "well under" the $10,000 limit indorsed by President Truman. Discussing this, Coleman Woodbury, assistant housing administrator, estimated that 85 per cent of the demand for new homes in 1946 will come from veterans and said the houses will not be in the luxury class.

Joseph E. Merrion of Chicago, president of the National Association of Home Builders, warned that immediate recommendations must be made to break construction barriers and provide building materials if the meeting is to achieve its purpose. He asked the government to refrain from "hasty and ill advised" regulations and cautioned congress against enacting "cumbersome" legislation that would hamper the building industry.

Would Lease to Vets

Walton Onslow, director of public relations for the National Association of Real Estate Boards, suggested that office of price administration regulations be changed to permit owners to lease homes to veterans when leases expire instead of to present tenants. Under current regulations owners must lease to present tenants or occupy the houses themselves.

William Nicholas, secretary of the CIO housing committee, demanded that the government requisition large homes to house veterans and their families. He asserted there is no reason why "one family should live in a 40 room mansion."

Testifying before the senate banking and currency committee, Lewis W. Douglas, president of Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, opposed the Wagner-Ellender-Taft housing bill on the grounds it would increase the cost of home ownership instead of reducing it.

Kirkeby Says No Decision Made on Lease of Drake

Arnold S. Kirkeby, president of National Cuba Hotel corporation, said yesterday no decision had been made on renewal of the lease it holds on the Drake hotel, expiring April 30, 1946. The hotel is owned by National Realty and Investment company and the Benjamin Marshall estate.

The company said its building program included plans for a new 2 million dollar factory near Syracuse, N. Y., for the manufacture of air conditioning and refrigerating equipment.

On April 1 it will redeem Niagara, Lockport, and Ontario Power company 5 per cent first mortgage and refunding bonds at 104½ per cent.

GRAIN FUTURES END IRREGULAR; RYE RECOVERS

Grain futures prices closed irregular yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade after rye recovered from an early break. May rye fell 2⅞ cents a bushel on selling attributed to the office of price administration's refusal Saturday to revise its order making the rye ceiling price on the 1946 crop effective June 1 on all trades.

The break brought aggressive buying of the old crop deliveries headed by a professional trader and December advanced 2¾ cents from the low and closed at the top. Net gains on the near-by months were ⅛ to 1¼ with new crop deliveries ¼ to ⅞ lower.

Other grains were affected by rye. The active deliveries of wheat lost ¼, oats finished unchanged to ¼ lower, barley was unchanged to ½ higher, and corn unchanged at ceiling prices.

KAISER-FRAZER WILL MAKE OWN BODIES FOR CARS

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 17 (AP)—The Kaiser-Frazer corporation announced today that it will make its own automobile bodies for the new Kaiser and Frazer cars. Installation of presses for body manufacture will start within 60 days.

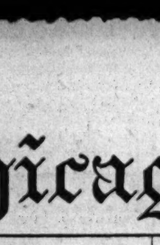
Ward said Forster's duties as head of the traffic appliance section will be taken over by J. J. Slattery, assistant division manager and buyer of housewares.



Henry C. Forster

Lynn E. Aldrich announced his resignation as vice president, treasurer, and director of the Chicago Daily News, Inc. He also resigned his position with the Chicago Daily News Printing company and Daneco corporation, which controls the publishing company. Aldrich has been associated with the publishing company since 1927 and has been a director since 1938. He did not disclose his future plans.

Jerry Freshman, who recently completed 3½ years of army service, has been named assistant manager, public relations director, and entertainment director of the Drake and Blackstone hotels.

PACKERS' AGENT SAYS CONGRESS FLOUTED BY OPA

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 (AP)—Wilbur Laroe Jr., counsel for the National Independent Meat Packers association, today charged the office of price administration "flagrantly flouts" laws passed by congress. He told the senate small business committee the agency "follows its own policies, regardless of what congress says." The committee is studying the problems of small business.

Laroe said packers should receive an additional ½ cent a pound on all meat at wholesale prices and another ½ cent to meet prospective wage increases.

He charged the OPA has failed to live up to the Barkley-Bates amendment to price laws, effective last July, which he said provided that packers be given a price to bring a fair profit on each type of meat. Instead, the OPA has been "gambling with our meat industry."

SUPPLY OF HOGS INCREASES, BUT MARKET HOLDS

Hog receipts yesterday in Chicago increased to 25,500 head, the biggest total for Monday in three weeks. However, prices held generally at ceiling levels, with the $14.85 a hundred pounds limit paid for almost all barrows and gilts and the $14.10 top for all packing sows.

Cattle receipts decreased to 14,300 head. This was the smallest Monday cattle total since June 11.

Prices were firm in all classes and some of the cattle under pressure late last week made a mild recovery. Most steers sold from $16 to $18. Steady to strong prices were paid for heifers, beef cows, canners, cutters, calves, and bulls.

Commercial Air Service in Philippines Due Soon

Europe's Need of Food Rated as 'Insatiable'

The demand for food in Europe is "insatiable" after five or six years of hunger, and anything the United States can send is sorely needed, Nathan Cummings, president of Consolidated Grocers corporation, said yesterday. Altho agricultural production is being restored, he said, no efficient program has been adopted and the restoration will be slow.

Cummings returned Sunday after a month in England, Norway, and Sweden, where he conferred on possible food imports and exports for his company under semi-official sponsorship of the departments of commerce and agriculture.

Payment Made Difficult

The primary difficulty in setting up trade relations is the scarcity of both money and merchandise in Europe to pay for American shipments, he said. Accordingly, he offered prospective buyers a year before payment would be expected. This could be in merchandise.

The United States should be able to ship enough surplus food to provide Europe some basic necessities, he said. Included would be citrus fruit juices, evaporated milk, and canned luncheon meats. The first products to come from Europe as payment will be fish.

Sweden's food supplies are plentiful, he said, but in Norway and England only starches such as potatoes are in adequate supply.

Machinery Most Serious Need

Cummings asserted that a lack of agricultural machinery will delay food production longer than any other factor. American implements, even when available, are not always suited to European farms, but efforts are being made by manufacturers to solve the problem.

He saw "no evidence whatsover" of food surpluses in American stocks in Europe and said no food would be shipped back.

Three representatives of Consolidated Grocers will go to Europe early in 1946 to fix details of European orders, he said. They plan to go to Czechoslovakia in addition to England and Norway.

LOWER TARIFF FOR AIR FRATE FILED BY T. W. A.

Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., yesterday filed a new air frate tariff with the civil aeronautics board and announced extension of this service Jan. 1 from five to 33 cities on its coast to coast route. The new rates would permit sending a 100 pound transcontinental shipment in the lowest classification for $33.63, against $37.95 now.

T. W. A. also said an arrangement had been made with Continental Airlines to permit thru frate service and rates between all cities on both systems. The agreement marked Continental's entry in the frate field. The service extensions will provide facilities for more than 500 communities within the terminal areas for pickup and delivery service.

J. A. Smith, cargo sales manager of Continental, said rates would range from 26½ to 38½ cents per ton mile.

COLLET REJECTS OPA DEMAND FOR CITRUS CEILINGS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 (AP)—Stabilization Director Collet today rejected OPA's demand for immediate restoration of price ceilings on fresh citrus fruits. Ceilings were suspended Nov. 19.

However, he warned that "if excessive rises are not promptly curbed or eliminated as a result of ample supplies and voluntary restraint on the part of the industry this office will act forthwith to reimpose price ceilings."

New York, Dec. 17 (AP)—Heavy cashing of profits today sent the stock market tumbling. Prominent issues dropped 1 to 7 points in the sharpest setback since April 9, 1943. Steels, motors, rails, aircrafts, and specialties led the retreat, in which the Associated Press 60 stock average lost 1.8 points. Of 985 issues traded, 840 declined, 77 advanced, and 68 closed unchanged.

Brokers generally attributed the break partly to "tipsters" who predicted a relapse and to the simultaneous move of speculators to realize gains under the 25 per cent capital gains tax law on the idea this impost might be stiffened.

"Thin" Markets Speed Declines

"Thinness" of many issues contributed to individual weakness. [A stock has a thin market when bids and offers for it are few.] Labor stalemates and belief the advance, now in its fourth year, was due for a serious technical "correction," also inspired much liquidation.

Offerings, heavy in the first two hours when volume passed the million share mark, tapered later.

Conspicuous losers included Eastern Air Lines, off 7, Douglas Aircraft and Chrysler 3¼ each, Southern Railway 3⅛, and American Telephone, International Harvester, and Northern Pacific 3 each.

RAIL BONDS LEAD DROP

New York, Dec. 17 (AP)—The bond market was clipped for many losses of 1 to more than 2 points today in a general selling movement that centered on rails but left its mark on other groups.

Northern Pacific bonds resisted the trend as did numerous higher priced corporates. United States government loans rose 1/32 to 6/32 of a point on renewal of trading interest after the official ending of the Victory loan.

CHICAGO PRICES FALL

Prices fell yesterday on the Chicago stock exchange in turnover of 51,000 shares. Of 145 issues traded, 113 declined and only 10 advanced. Active losers included Curtiss-Wright, off ⅝; Peabody Coal, down ¾, and Chicago corporation, Asbestos Manufacturing, and Oak Manufacturing, each off ½.

U.S. Fact Finding Experiment Nearly Bogs Down at Outset

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17 (AP)—The government's first experiment in use of fact finding to settle a labor dispute nearly bogged down at the outset today on the relation of company profits and prices to labor demands for wage increases.

Temporarily refusing to settle the double question, the "guinea pig" oil wage fact-finding board recessed until tomorrow with the announced intention of putting its dilemma before Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach and Economic Stabilizer Collet.

The opening hearing produced considerable confusion amid sharp disagreement between industry spokesmen and representatives of the Oil Workers union. The discussion became so technical the board summoned labor department legal experts for help.

Forerunner of Other Boards

Chairman Frank P. Graham said afterward that the panel was moving slowly because it had no precedent. It is regarded as the prototype of the board which will begin hearings Wednesday in the General Motors corporation strike and one to be appointed in the steel wage dispute.

Much of the session revolved around demands by Lindsay P. Walden, union general counsel, that the board state definitely whether it would relate any ultimate wage recommendation to possible price increases. The union contends the industry can absorb the 30 per cent pay rate hike demanded without raising prices.

Walden provoked another deadlock by demanding that the board go to the White House if necessary for authority to subpena company books and determine profits. Company representatives refused to consider the profits question, asserting this had no bearing on the wage issue.

Pure Oil Withdraws Brief

Ben Harper of Houston, Tex., Pure Oil company counsel, withdrew its brief from the hearing and said he would not reenter it "until we know what the rules are going to be." He asserted the panel previously had indicated the profit issue would not be raised in the hearings.

Walden countered by insisting that profits were a fundamental issue and that the fact finding would produce no facts unless the industry's financial position were publicized.

When board members told Walden they had no statutory authority to compel introduction of such evidence as company books, Walden suggested that they "take the matter up with the President of the United States to determine how they can be obtained."

Chicago Firms Plan Bonuses for Christmas

Substantial Christmas bonuses have been or will be paid by Chicago industrial and commercial establishments this year, a survey disclosed yesterday. Some of the companies are making public announcements and others merely inform employes thru notices on office and factory bulletin boards.

As in previous years the basis for payment varies widely. Many base amounts on length of service and earnings or only one of these factors. Others pay according to individual merit or at the discretion of company officials.

Harvester Gives $950,000

Probably the largest distribution in the area this year was made by International Harvester company, which recently paid $950,000 to approximately 60,000 employes. Wages and length of service decided the size of the individual checks.

Approximately 5,000 Chicago employes of Stewart-Warner corporation on Wednesday will receive Christmas presents in the form of "vacation allowances." A week's pay will be given all employes on the pay roll Nov. 25 who have worked a year or more or who have completed 1,800 hours of work. The total was not disclosed.

Abbott Laboratories will pay a special Christmas cash bonus at the rate of $5 for each year of service with a minimum payment of $10 and a maximum of 50 per cent of one month's salary.

600 Benjamin Workers Paid

The Benjamin Electric Manufacturing company has presented bonus checks to 600 employes, but did not disclose the total paid or the basis of payment.

The bonus list also includes a substantial number of investment houses, most of whom experienced one of their most active and profitable years in 1945.

Bache & Co. will pay up to six weeks' salary. It also is adding $125,000 to its employes' retirement and benefit fund. Goodbody & Co. will pay one to three months' salary.

Other such firms who have or will make distributions include Paul H. Davis & Co.; Harris, Hall & Co.; Glore, Forgan & Co.; Hornblower & Weeks; A. G. Becker & Co.; and Kidder, Peabody & Co.

PHONE CALLS HITCH RIDES ON REA POWER LINES IN RURAL TEST

Jonesboro, Ark., Dec. 17—(AP)—The Bell telephone system and the rural electrification administration put into operation today an experiment to test whether it would be feasible to supply a farmer with telephone calls over the same power line that gives him lights.

Engineers of REA and the Bell system studied the results and REA Administrator Wickard, in Washington, said he hoped the method—which involves hitch-hiking telephone calls—would give new service to farm families which have no telephones.

Instruments are dial type and much like those used on other telephone lines. A small box with tubes, similar to a table radio, produces a high frequency current from the power line which carries the telephone conversation. A "coupler" located outside the house, permits the current to enter or leave the power line, but prevents the power current from entering the telephone instrument.

FURTHER DROP IN PRODUCTION, JOBS FORECAST

Trend Will Reverse Next Year: Lubin

BY THOMAS FURLONG

A further perceptible drop in industrial production, employment, and national income was forecast yesterday by Isadore Lubin, United States commissioner of labor statistics.

Isadore Lubin

By spring unemployment will reach 6 to 9 million, government statistical evidence shows, after which the trend should be reversed, said Lubin who spoke at a conference on reconversion sponsored by the Public Administration Clearing house, 1313 E. 60th st.

Dr. Louis Wirth, University of Chicago sociologist, told the conference the high level of general "prosperity" attained in the war years must be maintained or organized society will fall apart. Such social chaos can be averted only by a positive government approach to economic problems, said Wirth who said he spoke as a sociologist and made no claims to be an economist.

Truman Plan Indorsed

Lubin indorsed President Truman's "fact finding" formula for settling wage disputes. He recalled the labor department had made a similar recommendation several years before the war.

Such fact finding boards, he said, should have the authority to subpena pertinent books and records, including private records of employers, to determine their ability to pay higher wages. Later, he said in response to an inquiry, there was little doubt that industry can afford to pay higher wage rates without general price increases and that government policy is based on that assumption.

The country's economic goal should be a national income of 170 billion, he said. This income must be so distributed that individuals will receive 130 billions of the total. This will mean a weekly wage of $45 for the average worker, he said. This level of income is required, Lubin said, to keep employed those who will be seeking jobs in the next few years.

Trend Will Reverse After Spring, Says Lubin

Bigger Spending Required

"The American people are going to have to spend 46 billion dollars more than they did in 1941 to achieve this national income," he said.

Lubin urged continued price control with a clear cut government statement of the period control will be retained. Later he said it was his personal belief that wholesale prices may rise 15 to 20 per cent next year.

Dr. Wirth outlined what he described as the "new frontiers of government." These included public housing, health, and cultural activities to develop the "latent potentialities of the human personality," and other public services.

Wirth predicted a vast increase in government public information services on the pattern of the recently abolished office of war information.

Individualist Held Outmoded

"Once people have had a glimpse of the promised land they will not docilely accept a return to lower living standards," he said, referring to high war time wages.

Wirth dismissed all opposition to government encroachment in the economic field with the flat assertion "there are no longer any intelligent conservatives and I can document that statement."

The individualistic approach in economics has been outmoded, but conservatives will not recognize it, he said. Evidence of the "hangover" of the individualistic era, he said, are 1,200,000 pieces of property of separate ownership in the city of Chicago.

The conference was arranged, the sponsors explained, to give "background information" on public questions. This morning the research economists of the Congress of Industrial Organizations and the American Federation of Labor will speak.
